Historical Note:

David Presbury Clark (1907-1995) was born in Missouri to Edward Payson Clark Jr. (1870-1938) and Florence Daisy Moore (1872-1945). He worked in a variety of architectural positions throughout his life around the state. Notably, he worked for Berry McAlester in the late 1920s, Deering & Clark from 1933-1942, and was the manager of his own firm from 1946-1960, the architect for the state of Missouri from 1960-1979, and the architect inspector of hospitals and nursing homes in Missouri from 1966-1977 before retiring in 1979. Clark spent ten years on Columbia's Planning and Zoning Commission, five years on the Zoning Adjustment Board, and was chairman of the first Columbia Building Code Committee. He was also a member of the American Institute of Architects, past president of the Missouri Association of Registered Architects, a member of MU's School of Forestry, Fisheries, and Wildlife advisory council, and active in the Acacia Masonic Lodge, Moolah Temple, and the Lions Club.

Clark married his wife Ethel Melloway (1909-2004) in 1931, and they had two sons--Donald R. (1933-2003) and Stephen E. (1943-2010). Clark died on November 2, 1995.
