Motorcycle racer dies in tragic accident

Friends and family of a local professional motorcycle racer gathered at Knox Presbyterian Church October 2 to celebrate his life.

plications of a motorcycle accident that occurred the day before.

The 33-year-old had a number of career wins under his belt.

Mr. Wilson had already won the Canadian Championship title this year and was racing September 24 — the last race in his career — for the sake of racing, said his father Frank Wilson of Rockwood.

"His first love was racing and sports," he said.

Mr. Wilson began his racing career in 1992 at Shannonville Motorsport Park near Kingston. He received his first win that year.

The following year he was a four-time WERA National Champion in Atlanta and had 53 consecutive first places. It was that year he became addicted to the sport.

In the following years, Mr. Wilson won a number of tournaments including the 1995 National Open Sportbike Championship for Suzuki Canada as well as several top 10 finishes at the Hard Charger award in Las Vegas. He also placed 12th in the Daytona 200 as Top Privateer. Since 1997, Mr. Wilson rode for Kawasaki, Honda, Suzuki and Yamaha.

After the loss of his best friend from a motorcycle accident, Mr. Wilson decided to finish his racing career where he started — with his friends at Shannonville.

In addition to motorcycles — which he had been riding since he was 11 — Mr. Wilson had a number of other interests including triathlons, fishing, hunting, hockey and skiing.

Last year, Mr. Wilson ran for council so he could help the youth and the elderly—two groups that were neglected by the present council, Frank said.

"He wanted to bring the 20th century into, in what in many ways, is the 18th century to Milton," he said.

With the racing career coming to a close, Mr. Wilson — who was an electronic technologist by trade — was planning to follow the footsteps of his father and brother by going into the printing profession. "I could say so much about the lad," said Frank about his son.

Frank said his son was a good person without racial or religious prejudices, who didn't drink, smoke or do drugs.

And it says a lot about a person when there isn't enough room to for everyone to sit during a funeral.

There was well over 400 people at the church, he said. "There were people from all over the country and the U.S.," many who are from the racing circuit.

After the service, some of the people followed the casket on their motorcycles.

Mr. Wilson also leaves behind his mother Sandra, his brother Bill and his wife Rose of Mississauga, his sister Ann and husband Ron James of Milton as well as his nieces and nephews Kayleen, Janet and Robert. All of Mr. Wilson's organs were donated.
