QUALITATIVE & QUANTITATIVE SOCIAL RESEARCH

The Open - Round 11

Inevitably, an early draw offer by Zong-Yuan Zhao was snapped up by Malcolm Tredinnick on top board in the last round, thus guaranteeing Zhao outright tournament victory on 9.5/11 and Tredinnick a draw with an IM! Darryl Johansen gave Ian Rogers the chance to grab outright second when he accepted Dejan Antic's draw offer on move 17; and Ian duly grabbed this chance with a comprehensive victory over Michael Morris, ending with a decisive pin and a crushing passed a-pawn as Black. So Ian was second on 9/11, and Darryl had to be content with equal third on 8.5/11 with Mark Bluvshstein, who duly won his game against Gareth Oliver by withstanding his opponent's aggressive intents, winning a pawn and then turning the tables to decisively attack Gareth's king in their major piece endgame. In one of the most interesting games of the round, Igor Goldenberg got to equal sixth on 7/11 (with Antic fifth on 7.5) by withstanding Michael Wei's wild attack, then finding he had only a perpetual check draw despite having four pawns for the exchange due to his opponent's powerful passed b6 pawn! Mirko Rujevic joined Igor and Malcolm there when his two connected passed pawns ground down Junta Ikeda in a rook and bishop ending.

From the Organisers

2006-07 Australian Open Chess Tournament

Overall, the Open seemed to be enjoyed very much by those who attended. We received a number of positive comments about the venue being a very good place to play chess and about the smooth way the competition operated, with rounds starting on time, no disputes marring the atmosphere and good chess being played by the field, which included 4 GMs and the stellar performance from IM Zong-Yuan Zhao in winning on 9.5/11.

As organisers, it is important to emphasise that this successful and enjoyable atmosphere was created by a number of people and their efforts. In the lead up to the tournament, we received a lot of help from Libby and Michael Smith and the ACTJCL generally—for example, they allowed us to hang our website off theirs and to piggy back our score sheet format and order off their work. Behind the scenes, people like Jim Flood helped with setting up the venue and Shun Ikeda not only helped with that, but turned up regularly to provide a wide range of quiet support (as well as lollies and biscuits for the workers!). Paul Dunn put in many hours diligently entering the games, backed up frequently by Ian Rout, and without them it would have been hard for people to keep up with progress. I can't say how much we appreciate all that support.

Also behind the scenes, it is important to pay tribute to the families who kindly billeted chess players—and drove them to the venue day after day—and by so doing made their attendance possible. We sometimes think people in the wider chess community take this type of generosity for granted, but we have to say how impressed we are that people will take others into their home for two weeks over the holiday season and cheerfully care for them and their needs. Good on yer! Great credit goes to the arbiters—Dr. Charles Zworestine and Roland Eime—who kept a firm and cheerful eye on everything, sorted out queries smoothly and effectively and produced results sheets and draws in remarkably quick time. They were the main reason everything ran so smoothly on the ground.

Shaun Press did a great job—under trying circumstances—ensuring that live broadcast of at least the 4 top boards took place. It sounds easy, perhaps, but wiring 4 DGTA boards to the laptop and the latter to the internet via a standard telephone modem is a tricky business and the fact that the laptop didn't really like the software driver and spat the dummy now and again, triumphantly showing the blue screen of death would have tried the patience of a saint. He also regularly updated results on the bulletin board late in the evening when he got home after a very long day so that wider community could keep up with what was happening. Well done, mate.

Our sponsors—the Mental Health Council of Australia, Convenience Advertising, instinct & reason, QQSR, the YMCA, and the Tuggeranong Southern Cross Club itself—made it possible to hold a competition with 4GMs and a wide range of prizes. Without them, we would have struggled to get off the ground.

Last, and by no means least, thanks are due to the nearly 60 souls who played in the Open itself. While numbers have continued to fall steadily and in linear fashion from 1998 to the present (an issue which needs detailed consideration for the future) the fact remains that people came from around the world and from all corners of Australia to play. The pleasure they experienced and the thanks they gave us in person made the effort of organising everything worthwhile.
