Foreword

Too many years have passed since the results of Championships and International Matches organised by The R&A were last published. Peter Ryde's Royal and Ancient Championship Records 1860-1980 followed by his supplement to 1983 recorded the results of that period admirably. Since then, with the exception of The Open Championship, we have not built on his work – until now.

This volume covers the period 1984-2012 and if we required encouragement and inspiration to embark on its compilation, which we did, it was supplied in ample measure by R&A Captain, Pierre Bechmann. His enthusiasm for golf and his interest in the progress and achievements of its finer players are boundless. Pierre treated excuses for inaction such as 'the task is too great' and 'it will be out-of-date before we finish' with a level of disdain which put us on our mettle and ensured that we set to work with a will.

This book is the result of six months of concentrated effort and my thanks go to our editor, Peter Lewis, and his research team for achieving what seemed an impossible target at the outset.

The readership of this book may not be large and some will say that surely the best way to record and update all of the information it contains would be by modern digital means. That is without doubt true but the book is nonetheless a companion of record and old friends, past players and close followers of the game may more comfortably enjoy the memories these pages rekindle perhaps over a drink or two together after dinner.

Introduction

When I was appointed to set up the British Golf Museum in 1988, one of the first books I read was Peter Ryde's Royal and Ancient Championship Records 1860-1980 along with his supplement for 1981 to 1983. Now 25 years later, this book picks up where Ryde finished and covers the years 1984 through 2012.

There are a number of enhancements over Ryde's book. Wherever possible, we show the players who missed the cut in the stroke play championships and we show all the rounds for the match play events. We have chosen to lay out the book differently. We start with the Junior Open Championship and follow the age groupings for amateur golf right through to the Seniors Open Amateur Championship, including all the relevant international matches. We then finish with The Open Championship and the Senior Open Championship. Finally there is an appendix with a summary of the career records of all Great Britain & Ireland, Continent of Europe and USA golfers who have played in full international matches.

Now it is possible, in a single volume, to track the amateur careers in R&A events of future stars of the game such as Darren Clarke, Luke Donald, Paul Casey, Padraig Harrington, Rory McIlroy, Graeme McDowell, Colin Montgomerie, Justin Rose, Lee Westwood, Thomas Bjorn, Sergio Garcia, Martin Kaymer, Jose Maria Olazabal, Jesper Parnevik and Jean Van de Velde to name but some and then examine their achievements in The Open Championship. It is also possible to follow the exploits of players who stayed in the amateur game such as Peter McEvoy, Nigel Edwards, Garth McGimpsey, George Macgregor and Stuart Wilson. In addition one can study the remarkable records of Gary Player, Bob Charles and Tom Watson amongst others in the Senior Open Championship. Finally, one can peruse the full results of the championships and the international matches to muse upon those who succeeded, those who didn't and those who went on to make their mark in other areas of the game.

The world of R&A Championships and International Matches has changed somewhat since 1983. The British Youths Open Amateur Championship, the Youths' International Match for the European Golf Association Trophy and the Youths' International Match for the Alex Mackay Memorial Trophy were all played for the last time in 1994. The British Mid-Amateur Championship was introduced in 1995 but then ceased in 2007. The Senior Open Championship began in 1987. The Junior Open began in 1994 and its organisation was taken over by The R&A in 2000. The separate England versus Scotland and Wales versus Ireland Boys International Matches underwent a change in 1985 when the winners played against one another the following day and the two losing teams did likewise. The match became a full round robin event in 1996. The Mark H. McCormack Medal was introduced in 2007.

Readers may spot various name changes for events. Our policy was to call an event by the name which was used for that specific year. This was based on the best evidence, usually the championship programme or the draw sheet. The Junior Open was actually called the Junior Open Championships through 2006. The Boys Amateur Championship had the fuller title of The Boys Amateur Golf Championship through 1999 in the draw sheets, so we have used that. The Senior Open has had a plethora of name variations over the years. The Boys Home Internationals was known simply as the Boys International Matches between 1985 and 1995. Starting in 1996, its full name was The Boys Home Internationals for The R&A Trophy and then it was shortened in all the sources to The Boys Home Internationals starting in 2003.

We had to deal with what turned out to be just under 42,000 names spread across fourteen championships and international matches. Different members of the project team worked on separate events. The result of this working methodology was that each championship or match had to be dealt with in isolation from the others. When we had to enter new championships into our Player Database, with a few exceptions, we rendered it as we found it. No attempt was made to standardize players' names or golf clubs year by year in any one event or across all events. This has led to a certain amount of inconsistency in how names are presented throughout the book. There was also something of an issue regarding the different spellings of names in the source material and we simply didn't have time to investigate all the discrepancies, resulting in some variations in the text.

Unfortunately the binder containing all the results for the Seniors Open Amateur Championship between 1984 and 1996 has gone absent without leave from its normal resting place in our archive. This means that we have limited information for that period. As a result, we can only show the top finishers for those years. We also faced a challenge in finding the full field results for the Senior Open Championship between 1987 and 1991, so again, we have shown what we have found to date. We had an interesting time with the Boys Amateur Championship draw sheets for 1987 and 1990, where a few names in the first round had either been omitted or obliterated with white-out. This has resulted in some competitors who played and lost in the first round appearing with the name of 'Unknown'. In addition we were not able to verify some of the names of the team captains and where there was doubt, we simply omitted them.

I have used the plural when describing our work and this is a reflection of the fact that it was very much a team effort. Working with me were Fiona MacDonald, Michael Lewis and David Moir. David undertook the difficult task of working on all the team events with the exception of the Walker Cup while Fiona and Michael dealt with what at times seemed like never ending data entry and proofing. All three of them worked with great skill, determination and spirit. Charles Dickinson made all the data entry possible with a series of upgrades to our Player Database and kept up with the flow of corrections to the database. Duncan Weir and Angela Howe gave much valued support throughout the project.

Dave Kelly and Graham Nuttall at The PPL Group enthusiastically embraced the concept of designing a book where the contents would come in an uneven flow over a six month period and the complete text would not exist until just before going to print. I would also like to thank Nathalie Pollmann Hill at the EGA for her help in finding details for some of the European team members over the years and Craig Nelson, the Library Manager of The Scotsman, for sharing what information that paper held about the Seniors Open Amateur Championship between 1984 and 1996.

Finally I would like to thank Peter Dawson for his constant encouragement and wise guidance throughout the project.

2. The Boys Amateur Championship

Between 1984 and 1995 this Championship was all match play with a starting field of 192 players and a 36 hole final. In 1996 most of the opening day's play was washed out and, to make up time, the final was reduced to 18 holes and played on the same day as the semi-finals. The 18 hole final was retained in 1997 and 1998. In 1999 the field was increased to 256 players and the final reverted to 36 holes. In 2010 the starting field was reduced to 252 players each of whom played two rounds of stroke play. The players with the 64 lowest scores and ties advanced to the match play stage with the final played over 36 holes.

3. The Jacques Leglise Trophy

(Co-organised with the European Golf Association)

Through 1995 the Jacques Leglise Trophy was played for over one day immediately prior to the Boys Championship. Between 1984 and 1991 the teams played four foursomes matches followed by eight singles. This was increased to five foursomes and ten singles in 1992 and this format continued through 1995. In 1996 it was decided to increase the match to two days with four foursomes and eight singles matches on both days. In 1998 the match was played on the Continent of Europe for the first time.

4. The Boys Home Internationals

In 1984 England played Scotland and Wales played Ireland on the same day. A format change was introduced in 1985 where England played Scotland and Wales played Ireland on the first day. A second day was added where the two winning teams played for The R&A Trophy and the other two teams played one another. In 1996, the event became a full round-robin series played over three days. In 1997, it was played on a different course from the Boys Championship for the first time.

6. The Youths' International Match for the European Golf Association Trophy

(Co-organised with the European Golf Association)

The Match, consisting of four foursomes and eight singles, was played on a single day in 1984 and 1985 immediately prior to the Youths Championship. When played on the Continent in 1986 and 1988 it was contested over two days with four foursomes and eight singles on both days. However, it remained a one day event when played in Britain in 1987 and 1989. It was then played over two days between 1990 and 1994 irrespective of the host venue. The Match was discontinued at the same time as the Youths Championship.

9. The Walker Cup

(Co-organised with the USGA)

Until 2009, the match consisted of four foursomes and eight singles played on each of the two days. That year it was decided to play ten singles matches on the second day and this was repeated in 2011. The only exception to this was in 1993 at Interlachen, when torrential overnight storms washed out the first morning's play. As a result, it was agreed to adjust the format to make up for lost time. There were no foursomes on the first day and instead ten singles matches were played in the afternoon. On the second day, four foursomes were played in the morning, followed by ten singles matches.

(Co-organised with the European Golf Association)

The format for the St Andrews Trophy Match consists of four foursomes and eight singles played on both days. Up until 1996, the St Andrews Trophy had been played early in the season. In that year the decision was taken to hold the St Andrews and the Jacques Leglise Trophy matches at the same time over the same course in late August.

12. The British Mid-Amateur Championship

The British Mid-Amateur Championship was introduced in 1995. Michael Bonallack, then Secretary of The R&A, explained that 'this new championship is intended to encourage the older amateur who has decided against a career in professional golf'. Entrants had to have reached the age of 25 before the start of the championship. The format consisted of two rounds of stroke play with the leading 64 players advancing to the match play stage with the final played over 18 holes. The championship was discontinued in 2007.

13. The Seniors Open Amateur Championship

Initially the starting field for this championship was 252 players who played the first two rounds over two courses and then, the top 50 players plus ties played the third and final round. The age qualification stipulated competitors must be over 55 before the first day of the event. The first change to this format was introduced in 1989 when places in the starting field were allocated to different age groups. In 1998, there was an alteration to the places allocated by age group. This change was only used for one year and the allocation by age was then abolished. In 1999 the starting field was comprised of the lowest handicap entrants, irrespective of age. There was another alteration in 2005 when the top 60 plus ties advanced to the final round. The biggest change then occurred in 2009 when the starting field was reduced to 144 and the championship played over one course.

14. The Open Championship

In 1985 a four hole play-off was introduced, replacing the existing 18 hole one. The first such play-off took place in 1989 and the first time that sudden death was required was in 2002. The cut after 54 holes was abolished after the 1985 Open.

Appendix One

International Matches – Players’ Records

The International Matches – Players’ Records shows the year by year results for each player who participated in the Walker Cup, the St Andrews Trophy, the Youths’ International Match for the European Golf Association Trophy and the Jacques Leglise Trophy. The first section looks at the Great Britain and Ireland players, the second at the Continent of Europe players and the third at the USA players. Finally there is a statistical summary showing the cumulative records for the teams in each match and their overall records.
