PESTICIDE STATEMENT

Natural terpenes and essential oils are derivatives of agricultural products and pesticides are commonly used in the cultivation of such products. All of our products meet FDA standards for pesticide content. However, many states that allow introduction of these materials into final consumer products for vaping or other “flower” related products have higher standards than those required by the FDA, and many of our suppliers may not regularly test for compliance with such enhanced regulations or meet them. Notice is hereby provided that in any such products it may be possible that our products may contain pesticide residual content higher than a particular state’s maximum allowance. While we believe that there is higher risk in products containing citrus material, there have been rare reported issues with other materials as well. Because of the nature of the products, we strongly advise that all customers engage in testing of all ingredients before introduction into final product to determine pesticide content.

Unless otherwise specifically warranted by testing performed at the request of the customer prior to shipment of the product, Extract Consultants will not be liable for residual pesticides in any standard product and does not warrant or represent that any product is free of such residual pesticide content. By purchasing our product you agree to release, hold harmless and indemnify Extract Consultants from and against any cost, liability, expense, action or other claim of any kind arising out of or relating to residual pesticide content in such product.

Pure organic or synthetic formulations that are tested and warranted to be within a particular state’s regulatory pesticide residual compliance can be arranged with our company upon request and at special pricing.
