What can a group of young artists in Los Angeles do to help send missionaries to where they are most needed?

What if we combine our love to draw with our faith in Jesus?

We did not know we could use our passion and work to share about missions! During the pandemic, being part of digital missions became our answered prayer. We could use our digital art to draw for God's Kingdom.

Digital missions is sharing the gospel through digital tools, resources, and strategies. This is the time to use technology to reach those who do not know Jesus. Through this prayer guide, we want families to pray for unreached people.

We hope that you will dare to dream bolder by using your skills for global missions. He will take us further than we can imagine when we say "Yes" to Him.

We invite you to be part of our journey with this prayer guide!

— ANDREW FENG, INDIGITOUS U.S. LEAD, AND NICK WU

Who Are Frontier People Groups?

Frontier People Groups are people grouped by language and culture. They are “Frontier” because fewer than 0.1% are Christian. That means fewer than one person in 1,000 identifies with Jesus in any way!

There are about 5,000 Frontier People Groups. This prayer guide shows 31 of the largest groups. Your prayers will cover a total of 700 million people! Many are Muslims or Hindus. Statistically, they won’t ever meet a Christian in their lifetime.

With so few Christians, Frontier People Groups need missionaries. Pray for Christians to go and help them become followers of Jesus!

For Parents

We invite you and your family to pray for 31 Frontier People Groups.

Begin by telling the story from the perspective of the character. Then, pray together with the three prayer items. Finally, scan the QR code to watch a prayer video.

Your prayers make the biggest difference!

Afghan Tajik

سلامر علیکم (salaam alaikum)! My name is Sherzod and I belong to the Afghan Tajik people in Afghanistan. I made two delicious dishes, a rice dish called osh and some flatbread. Osh is one of my favorite dishes. It has lamb, different spices, and vegetables like pepper and garlic. In my tradition, showing hospitality and having guests come over to my house is a great honor. I hope that my friends who are coming over later will enjoy these two dishes as well!

أهلا ('ahlan)! Hi there! My name is Amastan, and I'm nine years old and I belong to the Tuareg people in Algeria. My father and I are traveling to the nearby well with our donkey to bring back some water for our family. What I'm most excited about is playing a game called melghas with my friends! Melghas is a game where kids first hide themselves. Then, another tries to find and tag them before they reach the well for a drink. The last time we played, I got caught before even touching the well. This time, I'll outrun all the other kids and reach the well first!

Brahmin

शुभ प्रभात (shubh prabhaat). Good morning, I am Ved. Would you like to observe me performing this worship ritual? Only the Brahmin are able to perform this special ritual, as we are the only caste that can be priests. It is a great honor for outsiders to observe, because we only perform our Hindu rituals for those in higher castes. The younger generation of Brahmin no longer seek this ancient practice, and few know the knowledge of Vedas. Most are now seeking to be educators, lawmakers, scholars, doctors, politicians, computer engineers, and so on. However, as an elder priest, I hope to spread the importance of our tradition and knowledge.

Rakhine

ဟာလ်လို့ (haallo)! Our names are Kyine, Pemala, and Yadana, and we belong to the Rakhine people in Myanmar. We are all on our way to the Thingyan Water Festival. This annual festival is significant to us because it marks the first day of the new year! A long-running tradition of our people is taking the sprigs of thabyay plants (leaves of tropical plants) and using them to sprinkle scented water on our friends and family from silver bowls. Another custom we enjoy is the endless stalls of Burmese street foods, where everything is free during the festival. It's a celebration of life and rebirth!

Fulani

Sannu! My name is Maimuna (left), and this is my mother, Nabilah (right). We belong to the Fulani people in Nigeria. The two of us just got back from a short journey, where we delivered milk to our tribe's children. When we travel, my mother and I wear these face markings and carry these special milk bowls to represent which tribe we are from. Our tribe is scattered over many pastures because we are semi-nomadic, meaning that we travel great distances to find supplies and shelter, while also taking care of cattle and other animals. I can't wait to see where we go next!

ਹੇ ਉਥੇ (hē uthē)! Hey, there! My name is Pavith Ramday, and I am part of the Arain people in Pakistan. We come from a humble background of an agricultural caste, but over many years we have been able to rise up and become lawmakers and politicians. My father was a lawyer, and I followed to become a lawyer, too. One day I'll teach my future son to work hard during his education as we Arains are always diligent in our work. Right now, I have to make a call to one of my clients. Talk to you soon!

Pashtun

سلام عليكم (salaam alaikum)! I'm Mahzala, a Pashtun woman from Pakistan. I am wearing this bright and colorful dress because I am practicing for the Attan dance. This is a folk dance that Pashtuns performed in times of war or weddings, and it is now the national dance. The dancers, men and women, move in a circle while clapping and turning along to the rhythm of drums. I am so excited to perform this dance, and I hope everyone will enjoy it too!

Wolof

Salaam aleekum, I'm Fadia! I'm a Wolof woman living in Senegal, Africa. Right now, I'm in the village square. All of the community events take place here, such as dancing and wrestling matches! In my community, one of the most important things for both women and men is how we dress, and I love to wear fancy dresses and headdresses. Later, I'll be going to the market to buy grain for my family. Many of the people at the market will be dressed in formal clothing because clothing is such an important part of our culture!

Turk

Merhaba! My name is Silaah, and I belong to the Turk people in Turkey. I am a carpet-maker, meaning that I spin yarn, turn colorful knots into rugs, and embroider handmade carpets. Carpet-making has been a part of my family's tradition for many generations. I was taught by my mother, whose mother taught her, and so on. One tradition we have is using colors of the earth, such as dark green and brown, with bits of richer colors, such as royal purple and red. This piece of cloth I am holding is my latest creation! It can be made into many different things, like rugs or carpets, or perhaps a scarf of some sort. I can't wait to see what it becomes!

Uzbek

Salom! I am Anora, and this is my friend Tahmina. We're both Uzbek women living in Uzbekistan. I come from a family of shepherds, a common profession here in my city. Today, my children and grandchildren are continuing work on the same farm that I worked on when I was a young girl. Nowadays, I spend most of my time with the older women in my community, where we like to sit and chat, and watch the younger children play in the streets.

صالام (salam)! My name is Makin, and this is my wife, Rima. We both belong to the Northern Arab people group in Yemen. We recently got married a few months ago and have been living happily with each other since. The two of us are also the only Christians in our families. Both of us just came back from a secret gathering where we sang songs and gave praise to God. Because worshipping God is not allowed in Yemen, we have to be careful traveling to these gatherings. My hope is that one day Rima and I will be able to worship God freely with our families and community.

Chechen

Салам (salam)! I am Salamu, a soldier of the Chechen army. Even when the nation is at war, I say that there's always time for a dance! We dance because we are an independent country! No matter how much the Russian troops invade, Allah will grant us freedom!

I am Chovka, wife of Salamu. It is a great day because I can dance with my husband. He is always out at war, fighting in battles, so I pray to Allah every day that he comes home safe. As I go out to work in the fields each morning, I cannot help but worry about how my husband is doing. I can only pray and hope that Allah continues to protect him so that we can dance together like this again.
