1 Introduction

The IOC identified the need to normalise the codification of the sport disciplines. The need for such a normalisation is identified by:

- IOC Technology to keep all the historical result databases coherent (JORES database),
- the ORIS Project where this will help the electronic data exchange between the Games organisers, International Sport Federations, National Olympic Committees, Continental organisations, the Olympic Data Feed (ODF) recipients and the IOC,
- the International Sport Federations for easier identification and archiving,
- constituent groups of stakeholders receiving, processing and presenting Games data to global audiences, such as the World News Press Agencies (WNPA) and broadcasters, to use it as reference in developing and setting up their systems and software,
- Continental Organisations,
- other multisport event's organisers who intend to use data feeds compatible to the Olympic Games data feed platform.

A discipline is a branch of an Olympic sport comprising one or several events.

2 Sport Disciplines on the Olympic Games and/or YOG Programme

A sport is governed by an International Federation and may include several disciplines.

When defining the codes, some sports have been divided in disciplines but, for a number of reasons, this is not always the case. Where a sport comprises a single discipline, the same code will be used for both sport and discipline.

The goal in defining these codes is to keep them unique, though the Paralympics may use the same codes where the discipline are the same.
