SIGHTSEEING
SALT LAKE CITY

Zion, the city of Saints, capital of Utah, founded in 1847 by the Mormon pioneers, who had trudged overland from Illinois, is a center of business enterprise, natural beauty and historic interest. It is notably well laid out, with wide, straight streets, shaded by poplars, catalpas and other deciduous trees, and bordered by running mountain water. Within the city what usually is inspected by the visitor is Temple Square, containing the chief Mormon buildings—the Temple, Tabernacle and Assembly Hall. Adjacent to the Square are the Beehive and Lion Houses, formerly the headquarters of Brigham Young, and the new Administration Building. The State Capitol Building, built of Utah granite and marble at a cost of $2,500,000, stands on an eminence at the head of State Street, overlooking the city, and contains a museum of natural resources that is well worth visiting. Fort Douglas, U. S. Military Post, is located on the bench of the Wasatch Mountains, three miles east of the city, and can be reached by auto or electric car.

HAWAII

BECAUSE now you can go in new luxury and comfort and with speed all the way—in the Malolo, one of the world's great ships—and because you can rest and play at one of the newest and most beautiful of hotels, The Royal Hawaiian at Waikiki Beach.

The Malolo is not alone the smart way to travel to Hawaii—it's also the swiftest route—only four days from San Francisco's Golden Gate to Honolulu's Golden Shores. And within a few hours' journey are the rare and varied allurements of Kauai, Maui and Hawaii, isles of enchantment.

The Malolo sails from San Francisco every other Saturday. Seven other Matson liners afford weekly sailings from San Francisco to Honolulu and sailings every 21 days from Seattle or Portland. To the South Seas and Australia, every 21 days.
