department of the Practice School, some 10 by 25 feet in size. This is provided, as are all the school rooms, with elaborate wall blackboards.

On the north side of the hall are cloak rooms for the ladies, and a similar room for the gents.

In the extension are six school rooms, which will be occupied principally by the practice classes and as study rooms for the primary department.

All the rooms are well lighted by large windows, with transoms at the top and also over the doors, to give plenty of light and ventilation.

Much attention has been paid to the matter of ventilation throughout the building. In each room a large ventilator is located near the ceiling through which the pure air is drawn in, while the foul air is pumped out through an opening near the floor, by means of a fan located in the attic, operated by steam or water motor.

The finish of this floor throughout is of ash, including the wainscoting, while the ceiling is of spruce. The walls are plastered with a new patent preparation called Adamant, which not only forms a very hard surface, but takes on a beautiful white finish.

Two broad stairways lead from the hall to the SECOND FLOOR.

In the extension is the Assembly room, 44x55 feet in size and 22 feet high, with large arched windows on the south and west.

Between this room and the hall are more cloak rooms, with wash bowls and closets.

On the front, over the main entrance, is a large Library room, 42x28 feet. Just north is the room devoted to the study of the Ancient Languages.

In the north-east corner is the Modern Language room. Directly across the hall, in the north-west corner, are two reserve class rooms.

South of the center of the building is the History and Literature room. In the south-west corner is located the Preceptors' room of Methods, Miss Knight's.

The south-west room is devoted to Mathematics.

All the Normal school work centers on the second floor around the Assembly room, saving much running up and down stairs.

THE THIRD FLOOR. Is devoted to science, elocution, music and drawing. In the north-west corner is the Chemical laboratory, while in the north-east corner is the Science class room.

Next north in front is the Apparatus room. These rooms are devoted to Prof. Hudson's departments.

In the center of the front is the Lecture room. This is a fine room and will be seated with opera boxes.

The next room to the south is the head-quarters of the Elocution teacher.

Across the south end is the drawing and music department. This is a large and beautiful room, being some fifty feet in length and lighted by seventeen windows.

The third floor is finished in pine.

THE BASEMENT. Is fitted up as a residence for the janitor, a gymnasium, the steam heating apparatus, and for general supplies.

GENERAL DETAILS. The building throughout is wired for electric lights and piped for gas and water.

The Grandest and Cheapest Excursion Yet Offered. S. W. Cummings, general passenger agent of the C. V. R. R., recently visited Ausable Cham, and found the beauties and wonders of the place so delightful that he at once resolved that the people of Northern New York should have opportunity to enjoy a day there at nominal cost and under the most advantageous conditions.

Excursion Manager Bentley, of the O. & L. C. R. R., was commissioned to work up the details, and after taking the trip himself found it feasible, and has accordingly arranged to run an excursion to Ausable Cham on Thursday, Aug. 7th—starting from Ogdensburg at 6 a. m. and including all stations west of Malone—and one starting at 7 o'clock on Friday morning from Malone and including all stations to Champlain.

The fare from Ogdensburg, Madris, Lebanon and Norwood will be $1.75 for the round trip, including admission to the Cham, and $1.50 for all points east of Norwood. The trip will be by rail to Rouse's Point, and thence by steamer to Fort Kent, and thence by the Keeseville, Ausable Cham and Lake Champlain R. R. three miles to the Cham. The boat ride will vary the trip so as to break any weariness, and will take the excursionists past historic points on the lake which no recent excursionists from this section have visited.

Ample time will be given at the Cham for excursionists to pass through it and enjoy its magnificent views and wild formation.

Tickets will be placed on sale at all stations for this splendid trip on Monday, Aug. 4th, and will close Wednesday evening, the 6th. The number issued to each station has been carefully apportioned, and cannot be increased. The number to be sold is to be rigidly limited, and when exhausted neither love nor money can avail to procure more. It is certain that a fine class of people will make up the companies on both days, and that a more delightful trip has never yet been offered by Mr. Bentley to the public. He will personally accompany both excursions, and give his best efforts to making them all that can be asked.

As most of the people of this region know, Ausable Cham is a narrow ravine or canyon through which Ausable River flows into Lake Champlain. It is in places 50 feet wide, in others only 10. Its walls tower to a height of 200 feet. The length of the cham is about 2 miles, and along its entire course are walks, stairways and bridges so that visitors may go to every point and enjoy every attraction of the gorge with the least possible discomfort or fatigue. It is one of nature's wonders, and a day spent there will remain for years a cherished memory. Besides the natural attractions of the place is the new cantilever railroad bridge erected from wall to wall of the Cham—having a length of 245 feet and its deck a height of 150 feet from the river. It is a magnificent piece of work, and interests and impresses all who see it.

The Magazine. The special attention of our readers interested in outdoor games is called to Outing Weekly Tennis Record, of which the Midsummer Number appears this week, enclosed to 24 pages and containing most excellent accounts from its own special correspondents of the important tournaments of the week in this country, Canada and Great Britain, with many excellent illustrations, specially prepared by Outing artists. The popularity of Lawn Tennis is second only to base ball and as this game entitles both sexes in actual contest we think it is destined to supersede Base Ball as an amateur's game. Like the growth of Lawn Tennis the success of Outing Weekly Tennis Record has been almost phenomenal. This week's Record embraces the tournaments at Chicago, Ill., Westchester, N. Y., Hastings, N. Y., Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., etc. etc. The "Local and Club Talks" are exceedingly interesting and cover as wide a field as the game of Tennis.

Drake's Magazine for August opens with a charming paper on Zuni, the Pueblo city of New Mexico, by Chas. F. Lummis, illustrated by F. O. Drake. Philip Campbell has a strange weird story in this number, called "The Discovery." "Miri's Reformation" by Julia Ditto Young, is a fine bit of character sketching. Manda L. Crocker contributes an entertaining account of a visit to "The Devil's Cave" at Mokinville, Tenn. "His Ideal," by "Becky Olympus Smith," is a funny thing, laughably told. "Mrs. Larkin's Growler" is rather out of the usual run. J. P. Ritter sends a witty paper on "The Mammoth Feasibility." "Jottings" are as crisp as ever, and the "Quack" department more than usually brilliant. This Magazine, at the low price of $1.00 per year, has secured a large clientele in England, as well as in America. Published at 11 Frankfort street, New York city.
