In his judgment the introduction of electric lighting generally will prove of much benefit to gardens by killing insects.

—The season has fairly opened at the Lake View House and the Ausable Chasm, and it promises to be an unusually prosperous one. Thus far over a thousand people have passed through the Chasm, enjoying the sublimity of that wonderful freak of nature. The chasm is in a very good and safe condition, as in every instance nearly all the old stairways and bridges have been replaced with new and substantial ones. The new railroad is proving a direct benefit to this popular resort, we are pleased to say.

—The guests at Hotel Champlain certainly have no reason to go into the heart of the great Adirondack wilderness for hunting, as two fine deer were seen near Bluff Point station within a few days by the station agent at an early hour in the morning, a short time after the steamer arrived there. The members of the Champlain Game Club are all law-abiding citizens, consequently the deer are safe, and the Club is on the watch to capture them alive. —We think we are safe in saying that never before in the history of Plattsburgh has there been so much interest manifested in improving the residences and grounds, as well as the streets and walks. Go where you will, there will be found well-kept lawns. But how about the Riverside Cemetery, where repose the dust of heroes, whose resting place is visited by hundreds of tourists who spend a few days in our midst. There are many fine and costly monuments and finely kept lots there. But its general appearance is not inviting. There is nothing which strangers visiting a town notice quicker than the care taken of the cemeteries. Parties have entered the grounds and mowed out spots of grass here and there to feed their horses, and to make the decoration the more complete, some one has seen fit to dig sods in different portions of the grounds. How long shall this state of things exist?
