Dr. T. C. Pathak Organising

President of Maharishi National Cultural Celebration in his introductory and welcome address said that "His Holiness Brahmaleen Maharishi Mahesh Yogi Ji was Maharishi in the truest sense. One of the greatest spiritual teachers of this era, he was an ambassador of Indian culture and knowledge in the world, the epitome of world brotherhood and an extraordinary union of the Vedic tradition and the modern scientific knowledge. A phenomenon such as this can be

Dr. T. C. Pathak, Organising President of Maharishi National Cultural Celebration giving introductory and welcome address.

Ji was born only to remind the world once more of the lessons of peace, prosperity, happiness and Vasudhaiv kutumbakam (the world is one family) and to explain to the world that mantras of Lord Rama 'Ramrajya' and Lord Krishna 'victory of dharma on adharma' are still as contextual as they were in the Treta and Dwapar yugas.

If we make a historical analysis of the last few centuries, it can be seen beyond any doubt that after Treta and Dwapar, if there is one great personality who was determined to see this planet as a united, happy, peaceful and prosperous world, it is Maharishi Ji alone. Since the time of Bhagwan Adi Shankaracharya, there is hardly any Mahapurush who descended on this Ved-bhoomi, Dev-bhoomi, Purna-bhoomi Bharat as a Divine avatar and worked for the good of the entire world at many different levels. Through scientific analysis of Indian Vedic science and Dhyani Yog, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi Ji spread it to the whole world and established the foundation for world peace, prosperity, happiness and invincibility. He reorganised and restored Vedic sciences in the world and thus has reestablished Bharat as Vishwa Guru again”.

Dr. Pathak informed that in Maharishi National Cultural Celebration this year, 550 students of MVM Schools from 16 states are representing 7 regions and 100 students from various other schools of Raipur are also participating. ## Value of Fluent and Impressive Speaking English in the Job Market

During the survey conducted by the Hindu in South, it has been revealed that ability to speak fluently and impressively in English is greatly valued in the job market. Effective communication skills in English has emerged as a standard tool to assess one's employability or the lack of it. Often students with an exceptionally good academic record find themselves out of the race as they can't form a single meaningful sentence to speak cohesively. Even Head of Infosys Software development Mr. Nagarjan Srinivasan admitted that “ It is heartbreaking when we are forced to reject students otherwise brilliant and with exceptional academic records but utterly incapable of speaking a single sentence in English.”

2. Proficiency in English communication is highly valued by the employers and now demanded by the parents in respect of their wards from the schools, because when other qualifications are equal, English communication skill tilts the scale in one's favor. At present even in English-medium schools, the teaching methodology lays more emphasis on grammar and literature and less on effective communication.

3. In this backdrop there is a need of facilitator to help students to overcome their diffidence in speaking in English. Facilitator can help in shaping one's personality and at the core of personality is the ability to communicate. The demand for good communication is increasing day by day both in urban as well as rural areas for better opportunity to realize their aspirations in a competitive job market.

4. Formation of an English speaking club at school level is one of the means to help students to be good communicators and have better chances for placement. The club can serve as a platform for students to get together, interact informally, give each other the opportunity to practice writing and debating in English, overcome stage fear, build confidence, and acquire the ability to collect and retain information that can bring about an all-round improvement in their personality.

5. Far from being a rigorous training module, the club should enable the students to cultivate the vital communication and soft skills through enjoyment and fun.

6. School should identify students keen on acquiring communication skills and enroll them as member of the club. It will provide to them an opportunity to enhance their communication skills and it will be for them to make use of it. The activities of the club should be held for about 30 to 40 minutes every day, six days a week. Each student should get a turn to speak, write or participate in the activities.

7. However, it is important for the school to identify a moderator, preferably among their faculty, who has a passion for communication and related soft skills to act as mentor for the club.

The Brain Integration Scale: New understanding for educators, students about developing the capacity of the brain for maximum performance

Dr. Guy-Paul Gagné has described progress in the scientific understanding of the Transcendental Meditation Technique and brain function, a topic explored in meetings with many educators during his recent tour across Canada. Dr Gagné is an expert in the Brain Integration Scale and its application in the field of education. The Brain Integration Scale was developed by Fred Travis, Ph.D., Director of the Center for Brain, Consciousness, and Cognition at Maharishi University of Management, USA.

The conclusion of Dr Gagné's presentation* on the Maharishi Channel described related research on the Brain Integration Scale and Norwegian athletes.

In that research, Dr. Travis and colleagues studied 33 world-class Norwegian athletes—those winning Olympic medals and other top level competitions. This study, which did not involve Transcendental Meditation, revealed that the world-class athletes scored higher on the Brain Integration Scale than average-performing athletes. 'The statistical numbers were actually very close to those of the TM Meditators practicing for three months,' said Dr Gagné.

'The main difference between top performers and average performers was the Brain Integration score, but what is amazing that we can produce the same effect just by introducing TM.' He explains further, 'This does not necessarily mean anyone is going to becoming a gold medalist, but we can at least develop the capacity of the brain for maximum performance in whatever field the student wants to pursue. We're talking about scientific proof of the capacity of TM to produce champions.'

Interestingly, the difference in self development and moral reasoning between the world-class athletes and average athletes was not so great. Psychological tests for self development usually involve intellect and balance of personality, and only a few people score very high. 'But when you look at the Brain Integration Scale, the difference is huge—it's much more statistically significant. What this means is that the Brain Integration Scale is a much more sensitive measurement to evaluate brain performance than the usual tests given by psychologists.'
