The composition of the Greater London Council is 100 councillors and sixteen aldermen. Each of the 32 London Boroughs (one of them – the City of Westminster – joined with the City of London and the Inner and Middle Temples) returns two, three or four Greater London councillors; but it is envisaged that, when revised Parliamentary constituencies have been settled, each constituency will return one Greater London councillor. Councillors hold office for three years and retire together. Elections are held every third year on a day fixed by the Home Secretary. The aldermen, eight of whom retire every third year, are elected by the councillors from among councillors or persons qualified to be councillors.

The Greater London Council has jurisdiction over an area of some 620 square miles with a resident population of 7,900,000 and a rateable value of £636,000,000.

NOTES

The figures in Table 1 (pp. 5-8) are votes counted, of which the total is 6,862,340. The names of successful candidates, shown in heavy type, also give an indication of the number of seats available, two, three or four, in each borough.

The number of valid ballot papers counted at this election was 2,181,536, which includes 203 papers in which not all the possible number of votes allowed was used.

Excluding the borough of Hounslow (where the number is not available) there were 6,298 spoilt papers which were replaced by returning officers before the persons voted.

6,253 ballot papers were wholly rejected as invalid for the following reasons:

Lacking the official mark .. .. .. .. .. .. ..	81
Elector voted for more candidates than he was entitled to .. .. .. ..	2,659
Marked so that the voter could be identified .. .. .. ..	309
Unmarked or wholly void for uncertainty.. .. .. ..	1,979
Postal votes received before the close of the poll but which failed in various ways to comply with postal voting regulations .. .. .. ..	1,257
Total .. .. .. .. .. .. ..	*6,253

*The total does not equal the sum of the other entries because the 32 postal vote failures from Sutton have also been included in the other categories.

The total number of ballot papers used, valid and invalid, but excluding spoilt papers, was 2,187,789 and this figure is used in Table II (p. 9) for the number of 'persons voting', since each such ballot paper represents an elector who made an attempt to vote or to record a deliberate abstention.

(a) In these boroughs the total number voting differs from the total of the hourly returns. The discrepancies (which may be due to some electors taking their ballot papers from the clerk but not placing them in the ballot box and in a few cases to clerical errors) are not sufficient to affect percentages.

(b) Ballot papers excluded from the count of votes are here included, since each represents an attempt by an elector to record a vote, in person or by post.
