Scholars believe that some of the people including the Burmese (or Bamar), the majority race, are of Tibeto-Burman stock whose ancestors migrated from the northeast and some of Mon-Khmer stock who came from the east. However, after the discovery of the fossilized jawbones of the Amphipithecus bahinensis in central Myanmar some historians believe that the people might have evolved from the primate ancestors already living in the landmass that was to become the Republic of the Union of Myanmar.

From the 3rd century BC a flourishing civilisation was developed by a race called Pyu whose last great kingdom of Srikshetera was destroyed by invaders from the east in the 9th century AD. The survivors assimilated into the society of the Bagan Kingdom that rose to power in the 11th century many miles north of their ruined city. The rise of the Bagan civilisation saw the strengthening of Theravada Buddhism, initiated by King Anawrahta (r.1044-1077) and which flourished to play a central role in lives of most Myanmar people to this day.

After Bagan was destroyed in 1287 during the reign of a weak king by the armies of Kublai Khan, various kingdoms rose under great monarchs all over the land: Mon, Rakhine, and Burmese kingdoms.

Hanthawaddy was the capital of the Mon kingdom under the rule of the Mon king Binnya U (r. 1453-1385). Successive Mon monarchs including the great Queen Shin Saw Pu (r. 1453- 1472) and King Dhammazedi (r. 1472- 1491) were instrumental in the glorification of the Shwedagon Pagoda: they raised the spire to its present height and were the first to cover it with sheets of beaten gold.

Pix: Musicians at the Shwedagon Pagoda, Yangon, in 1895

The royal capital of Mrauk Oo on the western coast was founded in 1430 by the Rakhine king Min Sawmon (r. 1404 -1433) who left the throne he established at Laungyet for many years until he settled in Mrauk Oo. It was a beautiful city that dazzled foreign visitors who saw it in the 18th century.

King Tabin Shwehti (r. 1531-1551) and his successor King Byint Naung (r. 1551-1581) founded a Burmese Empire in Lower Myanmar in the 16th century. In the 18th century it was Alaungpaya who founded the last dynasty of Burmese kings in Upper Myanmar until the country was colonised by the British in 1885, and the last king Thibaw was exiled.

Myanmar's independence was won in 1948 but Bogyoke Aung San, (father of Daw Aung San Suu Kyi) who had led the fight for freedom was assassinated by a political rival in 1946.

A short period of democracy plagued by insurgencies gave way to 26 years' of socialism under General Ne Win. The poverty of Socialist mismanagement led to country-wide protests in 1988 followed by 23 years of an open economy under military rule.

Plans for a change to a "discipline flourishing democracy" were unveiled in 2003 and elections were held in late 2010. On March 30 2011 the military handed power to the present government led by President U Thein Sein, who has initiated many reforms although many challenges remain after 50 years of totalitarian rule.

Buddhism

By Ma Thanegi

Buddhism is not a religion, because religion is based on faith and prayer whereas in Buddhism practice, i.e the way of living is more important than faith or prayer. Buddhism is also not a philosophy because philosophy is about intellectual thought without practice. Buddhist practice is about using a combination of practice in the Buddha's Way of good living, objective awareness of one's weaknesses and intellectual thought to discard all that is negative in oneself.

Morality is the basis of the Buddha's teachings and the Eightfold Path also known as the Middle Way teaches adherents to avoid the three roots of evil Greed, Anger and Delusion and to live a moral life based on Dhana, Sila and Bawana.

Dhana means charity, Sila means purity and Bawana means Conscious Awareness which is achieved through meditation.

The Eightfold Path

1. Right Understanding of having insightful knowledge of the Dhamma.
2. Right Thought of having thoughts that are free from lust, ill will and cruelty and thoughts of loving kindness, compassion, non-hatred and objectivity for all living beings.
3. Right Speech of abstaining from speaking false words, slander, rude, harsh and abusive language and idle, frivolous gossip.
4. Right Action of conduct that is moral, honourable and not harmful to others.
5. Right Livelihood of avoiding a living that is harmful to others.
6. Right Effort in being diligent in the avoidance of evil by thought, word and deed.
7. Right Mindfulness in being consciously aware of all the activities of mind and body
8. Right Concentration of meditating to prevent violent emotions from arising.

Meditation

There are two different practices of Theravada Buddhist meditation.

One is Vipasana, a system of Conscious Awareness to be keenly aware of one's emotions such as anger, pain, hurt, jealousy, and greed at the very onset of their rising, and thus be able to control them; in a world where you cannot control Fate, at least you can control how you respond to it.

The other meditation system is Thama Hia, practiced by those desiring to attain supernatural powers. Some practice this first and when they have improved their concentration powers, move onto Vipasana meditation.

The People

By Ma Thanegi

There are 134 national races in Myanmar by official count, of which the eight major races are the Chin, Kachin, Kayah, Kayin, Shan, Mon, Rakhine and Bamar (Burmese).

Most of the people, about 85%, are Theravada Buddhists, followed by Christians at about 10%, Muslims and Hindus at about 4% each, and others, including animists who revere deities in their own culture, 1%.

The people of any religion are deeply rooted in their beliefs and culture, and they hold deep reverence towards their traditions.

Customs, Ceremonies and Festivals

Making Merit

The majority of the people of Myanmar, made up of different races, are Buddhists. The three main practices of a Buddhist should be Dahna, Sila and Bawana: Dhana meaning charity, Sila meaning purity of thought, word and deed and Bawana meaning meditating to achieve conscious awareness. All three in combination lead to Nirvana the End of Suffering of life cycles but charity without sincerity is worthless. However it is the easiest to practice and it has become a reflexive action in daily life.

Soon Kyway

Buddhist celebrations, apart from weddings and spirit festivals, are centred on breakfast or lunch called Soon Kyway offered to members of the Sangha, the community of monks, as well as to nuns. Afterwards the abbot or a senior monk will give a sermon.

Shin Pyu

Every Buddhist boy can enter the monkhood as a novice from the time he can clearly recite the verse of application to the age of 19, when he is eligible to become a monk. His father, uncles or older brothers can become monks, all of them for a few days or as long as they wish. If it is a lavish affair with hundreds of guests. His sister is likely have her ears pierced at the same time in a ceremony that does not involve monks.

Monthly Official Holidays and Festivals

Full Moon days in each month coincide with a Buddhist event but only the most important are official holidays. Christmas, Ramadan, Depavali and Karen New Year are also holidays. The Water Festival holiday preceding the Burmese New Year that falls on 17 April is the longest, with government offices closed for ten days from 12 to 21 April. In October and November there are Light Festivals, with the October festival celebrated with paying obeisance with gifts to older members of the family or workplace. In November, there are street fairs in the cities, villages and neighbourhoods setting off fire balloons and all-night weaving contests held on pagoda platforms to see which team finishes a monk's robe by dawn.

Superstitions

Most of the Buddhists and many of the ethnic races who live in remote places still believe in the celestial beings that guard nature, as well as in spirits of animist worship. Most Buddhist families have horoscopes made of palm leaf marking planetary positions of the time of birth, so that when an astrologer is consulted he need not calculate that data but only on the present position of the planets. For a Buddhist, the day in the week with its animal symbol is more important in marking his birth than the monthly zodiac sign. As suggested by the astrologer or palmist, any bad fortune can be removed by a ritual called "Yadaya Chay" so the person's anxiety can be easily eased with this very effective placebo ritual. In general, consulting fortune-tellers replace the need for therapy.

The worship of the 37 Lords and Ladies of the pantheon of spirits known as Nats is widespread in Myanmar. Also there are "protector" celestials, ascetics or ogres whose legends are often entwined with the history of famous pagodas as well as the "guardians" of villages or towns, mountains or jungles.

Obesance Ceremony

For all religions in Myanmar, respecting older people is a tradition. The Buddhists hold annual obesance ceremonies of kneeling and bowing in front of all the elderly in the neighbourhood, rich or poor, with gifts for each person. The obesance ceremony with gifts is also held for mentors such as older writers and artists and for teachers from kindergarten upwards, for as long as the teachers are alive.

Weddings

The ritual of a traditional wedding is elaborate but no monks participate. There is no need for dowries although in many communities it is the groom who needs to pay the bride's family. Marriage, for all the races, means a union not only of two people but of the extended families of each side. However for Buddhist apart from a wedding or a reception, the marriage is also commemorated by a Soon Kyway in the same way that events such as births, birthdays, deaths, anniversaries of marriage or death and house warmings are commemorated.

Thanakha

One custom shared by almost all the races is the use of thanakha bark paste to smear, lightly or thickly as preferred, on the face and limbs as a cooling agent, sun screen and to clarify the skin. It has a fresh lingering fragrance that is most attractive.

Destination founder lives the travel dream

Text by Stuart Deed, Pix by Mika Itavaara

It has been said that the secret to lifelong happiness is to find something you love and make a career out of it and that has been the case for Mika Itavaara, a Finn whose passion and business is travel.

The 38-year-old first came to Myanmar in 2003, when the country represented the final frontier in Southeast Asia for him.

"At that time I was responsible for Asia production for a European tour operator," Mr Itavaara said.

"I was totally charmed by the people wherever I went. The next year I came again and travelled a bit further and tried to learn more and to expand my horizons. I led the first tours of the company to Myanmar."

I thought now was the time to do something new and I left Myanmar
at the end of 2008

The role of managing director at Asian Trails was offered to Mr Itavaara in 2005 and he lost no time accepting the position. However, a sharp downturn in the tourism industry after the monks' protests in 2007 known as the Saffron Revolution and Cyclone Nargis in 2008 prompted Mr Itavaara to explore other options and he left Myanmar.

"I thought now was the time to do something new and I left Myanmar at the end of 2008 and pursued a long-held dream of having my own company in Finland and doing exciting trips to worldwide destinations," Mr Itavaara said.

"I set up Mandala Travel with my friend and later took on more partners before I moved back to Asia and made Bangkok my base because it was only a short hop away from all the countries where we were running tours, including Myanmar," he said.

"Most of my friends remained here and we always kept in touch, so I feel very much at home here in Yangon.

"Once the political reforms really seemed to start taking place I decided to move back for good and gathered an experienced team to work with me.

"It has not been all roses starting my own company here and choosing partners. But I would not like to be in any other country and relish the opportunity to be a witness, and to share the excitement of this historical time in Myanmar."

Mr Itavaara's company, Discovery DMC (Destination Management Company), was established in 2011 as an inbound tour operator that provides a complete travel service.

"Our clients are individual travellers, corporate clients and embassies here and travel companies abroad," he said. Discovery DMC has 10 full-time employees in travel roles but Mr Itavaara said the firm is growing fast and he is diversifying into some media-oriented ventures by drawing on contacts abroad. Having travelled extensively, if not exhaustively, in Myanmar Mr Itavaara said his favourite destinations are Kyaing Tong "for its fascinating for its tribal villages" and Ngapali Beach for relaxation.

"But if I had to choose one place that I feel most passionate about it would be the Himalayan region and Putao in the north for its unique and untouched wilderness and snow-capped mountains. I hope this area and its eco-systems will be saved from logging."

Mr Itavaara said both Kyaing Tong, in eastern Shan State, and Loikaw in Kayah State are underrated as tourist destinations, although the latter needs more and better hotels.

Next on Mr Itavaara's visit list is the ruby mining town of Mogok in Mandalay Region, which has recently been opened to foreign tourists as a travel destination. Mr Itavaara has a strong background in adventure tourism, including rock climbing and mountaineering. A love of adventure has encouraged him to explore and begin offering bicycle tours of Dala, the town on the other side of the Yangon River from downtown Yangon.

"We did a soft launch last winter of Yangon Cycling tours (www.cycling-myanmar.com) with my local friend who also has his own travel company. After extensive bike rides around Yangon neighbourhoods and Dala we came up with two routes to start with," he said.

Mr Itavaara said one route through Yangon was abandoned because the traffic in the city is too intense.

"We have been running tours on a request basis during tourism high season. It was much more challenging to find suitable cycling guides or captains than expected," he said.

"We have been training a new batch and hope to start daily tours next high season, from October onwards. Ideally we would like to employ all of our guides from Dala because there are not that many jobs there but the language skills seem to be limited. We would be happy to hear from any good candidates there; please get in touch!"

Mr Itavaara said the cycling tours start at Nanthida jetty near the Strand hotel, where the participants meet before boarding a ferry to cross the river.

"We have chosen a nice route in Dala along small lanes that pass pagodas, monasteries, ponds, canals and markets. This is an easy-going ride with simple bikes on flat terrain suitable for anyone," he said.

"The main attraction is to see typical rural life in Myanmar and take a little break from the traffic and noise of Yangon city, which is so close to Dala. For those who come to Yangon and have little or no time to visit local villages, this is a good introduction to the countryside."

Mr Itavaara's plans for future development include a travel booking platform that tourists could use to pre-book and prepay their holidays in Myanmar and a some more adventure tourism: this time by motorcycle.

But greater investment in the industry, particularly in accommodation, is needed to bring prices down for adventure tourism, including rafting, cycling, motorcycling and mountaineering.

"At the moment it is still quite expensive to do adventures in Myanmar if you compare with neighbouring countries and there are still all kinds restrictions and limitations," he said.

"I would like to see more expeditions coming to explore the unique and wild north in the future."

Hilton to manage five properties in Myanmar

By Rahul

HILTON Worldwide has announced the signing of management agreements with Eden Group for five Hilton Hotels and Resorts properties in Myanmar.

The partnership with Eden Group, announced on June 11, represents another significant milestone for Hilton Worldwide's expansion in Myanmar. In 2013, Hilton Worldwide became the first western hotel group to sign an agreement to operate in Myanmar.

Under the agreements with Eden Group, two of its recently opened properties in the capital, Nay Pyi Taw, and at Ngapali beach in Rakhine State, will be rebranded as Hilton Nay Pyi Taw and Hilton Ngapali Beach Resort respectively. They are scheduled to welcome their first guests as Hilton hotels in October.

Three other hotels will open in the next three years, namely Hilton Bagan and Hilton Inle Lake in 2016 and Hilton Mandalay in 2017.

The 200-room Hilton Nay Pyi Taw will open in time for the ASEAN Summit and ASEAN Plus Summit 2014 in November. The hotel spans more than 404,000 square metres, and will feature three food and beverage outlets, including an all-day dining restaurant, as well as meetings and events spaces.

Hilton Ngapali Beach Resort, at one of Southeast Asia's most beautiful beaches overlooking the Bay of Bengal, offers 51 guestrooms. The beachfront property also features an all-day dining outlet, a bar and function rooms.

Hilton Bagan will offer 220 rooms; Hilton Inle Lake, 180; and Hilton Mandalay, 300 with a spacious 1,000 square metre ballroom.

Eden Group, founded in 1990, is one of Myanmar's largest private companies. Its key business sectors include construction, banking, hospitality, energy and agriculture.

Figures from the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism show that as of December 2013 Myanmar has 923 licensed hotels and about 34,834 rooms throughout the country.

The figures show that Yangon has 232 hotels with 10,175 rooms, followed by Mandalay with 104 hotels (4,439 rooms), Bagan-Nyaung U with 77 hotels (2,386 rooms), Taunggyi-Inle Lake with 70 hotels (1,939 rooms) and Nay Pyi Taw with 50 hotels (4,030 rooms).

Bangkok Airways to fly Yangon-Mandalay route from Chiang Mai

By Rahul

BANGKOK Airways plans to launch ATR 72 services from Chiang Mai to Mandalay and Yangon in late October, reported the Centre for Aviation.

The new services will give Bangkok Airways five routes to Myanmar. Bangkok Airways is already the largest foreign carrier in Myanmar, with three routes and 40 weekly services.

Opportunities in the fast growing Thailand-Myanmar market are the main driver of the carrier's decision to open a turboprop base at Chiang Mai and increase the number of turboprops in its fleet.

Mandalay will initially be served with three weekly flights and Yangon with four weekly flights. Bangkok Airways is confident both markets will grow and it will eventually be able to support more flights on the routes.

Other secondary routes are likely to open between Thailand and Myanmar because passenger traffic between the neighbouring countries is growing rapidly and expected to accelerate after visa requirements are lifted.

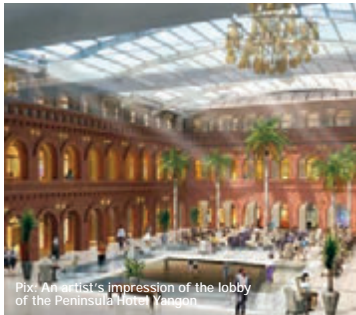

Myanmar and Thailand announced plans to lift visa requirements in late 2013 but implementation has been delayed.

Bangkok Airways offers almost 11,000 weekly seats to and from Myanmar, making it the largest carrier in Myanmar's international market with about a 10 per cent share of total seat capacity.

Bangkok Airways has roughly doubled its capacity to Myanmar during the past year, offering a fourth daily flight on the Bangkok-Yangon route and launching services from Bangkok to Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw. Capacity is slated to increase by about another 18 percent in late October when Bangkok Airways adds a fifth daily flight on the Bangkok-Yangon route and launches the services from Chiang Mai to Yangon and Mandalay.

For the time being, Bangkok-Mandalay and Bangkok-Nay Pyi Taw will continue to be served by seven and five weekly frequencies respectively. A319s serve the Bangkok-Mandalay route while Bangkok-Nay Pyi Taw is usually served with ATR 72s, but A319s have been used during peak periods. Bangkok Airways will have about 13,000 weekly seats in Myanmar in November, accounting for 25 percent of the carrier's total international seat capacity.

HSH and Yoma sign agreement for Peninsula Hotel Yangon

By Rahul

HONG KONG's Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels and Myanmar's Yoma Strategic Holdings Limited signed a shareholder agreement on March 10 to convert the heritage-listed former Burma Railways headquarters building into the Peninsula Hotel Yangon.

Serge Pun and Associates, in conjunction with Singapore-listed Yoma Strategic Holdings, announced in November 2012 that it would redevelop the company's 10-acre plot, which houses FMI Centre, the Grand Mee Ya Hta Residence and the former Burma Railways headquarters, into a two-million-square-foot, mixed-use residential, commercial, retail and hospitality project in Yangon's central business district. The project will cost about US$350 million.

Yoma Strategic also established a partnership with Mitsubishi Corporation and Mitsubishi Estate for a separate business hotel, serviced apartments, high-end condominium, and retail and office space to be developed as part of the project.

The landmark project is considered crucial for the future prospects of Yoma Strategic Holdings, which is trading at about S$0.75 (about US$0.60) on the Singapore Stock Exchange, about 25 cents off its peak in 2012.

Some of the world's biggest hotel chains have declared an interest in expanding their presence in Myanmar. They include Shangri-La Hotels and Resorts, Orient-Express Hotels, Best Western, Accor, Pan Pacific Hotels Group and Hilton Worldwide.

Soft opening for Rose Garden Hotel

By Rahul

ROSE GARDEN, Yangon's newest five-star hotel, had a soft opening on March 29 with a "limited service concept" to offer competitive introductory room rates to travellers, trade partners and corporate clients.

The hotel's second and third floors are fully furnished and comprise 83 superior twin rooms and 21 superior king rooms. There are also eight queen deluxe bamboo twin bed suites and eight king deluxe bamboo bedrooms and three Badauk superior suites with deluxe king-sized beds.

The hotel's remaining floors will open during 2014. All rooms will feature such amenities as flat screen TV, a wireless internet option, mini-bar, coffee maker, IDD telephone and bathrooms. There will also be non-smoking rooms and rooms for the physically disabled and the option of booking adjoining rooms.

The design of the hotel was inspired to reflect the rich heritage of Bagan, the capital of the first Myanmar empire founded by King Anawrahta in 1057 CE. The hotel is near scenic Kandawgyi Lake Park, one of Yangon's landmarks.

ACLAS expands to Myanmar and Asia Pacific regions

By Rahul

ACLAS Global, a world leader in aviation spares support, is expanding its operations in Myanmar and the Asia Pacific market through a new distribution hub in Singapore.

In addition to its spares and aircraft on ground (AOG) service for all ATR aircraft, ACLAS plans to offer support for Boeing 737NG and Airbus A319/320 planes, as well as those already supported in Myanmar, including the Embraer E-series.

A shipping agreement has been signed with a Myanmar-based third-party logistics company to ensure speedy and efficient dispatch and delivery to Myanmar and throughout the Asia Pacific region.

ACLAS said eight airlines operate ATR aircraft in Myanmar. ACLAS customer Myanma Airways recently confirmed an order for six new ATR 72-600 aircraft.

The ACLAS announcement confirms the company's commitment to the Asia Pacific market in which ATR has reported that in 2013 it accounted for nearly 85 per cent of sales of aircraft with fewer than 90 seats in the fastest growing countries of Southeast Asia.

Traders Hotel Yangon rebranded as Sule Shangri-La Yangon

By Rahul

HONG KONG-based Shangri-La Hotels and Resorts has officially rebranded Traders Hotel in Yangon as the Sule Shangri-La Yangon from April 28, after an extensive renovation that took two and a half years to complete.

The 484-room hotel, on Sule Pagoda Road in the city's central business district near the 2,000-year-old Sule Pagoda, opened in November 1996.

The lobby of Sule Shangri-La Yangon evokes bygone colonial days with imposing white columns and a grand staircase that ascends to a balcony overlooking the lobby lounge.

The classic impression extends to the double-height lobby lounge where a tiered crystal chandelier highlights a wall mural and panel details with intricate peacock motifs.

Uniforms worn by the hotel's staff celebrate Myanmar's colourful traditions and include dresses in unique styles especially designed for the hotel. Doormen wear a range of seven different uniforms, each representing Myanmar's seven states.

The hotel's public areas feature tall ornate Burmese vases, panels of intricate woodcarving and works commissioned by local artists. The hotel is a showcase for local artists and craftsmen, and their works are creative depictions of Burmese legends.

The hotel's updated restaurants and lounges offer a variety of choices. Summer Palace, Shangri-La's signature Chinese Restaurant, offers views of a busy street through large window alcoves.

The Gallery Bar was modified to reflect a public drinking house from the former British era. Half curtained windows allow a glimpse of the dark wood interior with wrought iron and brass details.

Memorabilia and photographs from the early 1800s decorate the walls and add nostalgia to a menu of homemade shepherd's pie, steaks, light bites and crisp cold beers.

The hotel's renovation also involved three other venues – Café Sule for international flavours and Asian favourites, the Peacock Lounge, an informal venue for catch-ups between friends or executives, and the Gourmet shop serving baked goods, snacks and beverages.

Other facilities offered by the hotel include a Health Club comprising an outdoor pool, fitness equipment, and sauna, steam and massage rooms. The hotel's meeting spaces occupy three levels of the building and were refurbished in a modern palette with gold accents.

While the décor references the past, guestroom amenities are thoroughly modern. The hotel's 484 remodelled guestrooms have large picture windows that frame views of the city, the Yangon River or the Shwedagon Pagoda.

Myanmar and Indonesia sign visa exemption agreement

By Rahul

MYANMAR and Indonesia signed an agreement on visa exemptions for ordinary passport holders of the two countries on the sidelines of the 24th Association of Southeast Asian Nations Foreign Ministers' meeting in Nay Pyi Taw on May 10.

The agreement will enable Myanmar citizens arriving in Indonesia by air to stay visa-free for 30 days. Indonesian citizens will be able to enter Myanmar visa-free under the same conditions.

The agreement was signed by Myanmar Foreign Minister Wunna Maung Lwin and his Indonesian counterpart, Marty Natelegawa. It is part of a move for an ASEAN Common Visa by 2015, as stipulated in the ASEAN Framework Agreement on Visa Exemptions signed in Kuala Lumpur in 2006.

The agreement aims to help improve relations between citizens of both countries, increase connectivity among ASEAN members and boost local and regional tourism.

The agreement is expected to boost tourism between the two countries and to help both countries reach a bilateral trade target of US$1 billion in 2016.

Myanmar currently has visa exemption agreements with Indonesia, Vietnam, the Philippines, Cambodia and Laos.

Inle Lake tourism destination management project launched

By Rahul

THE Institute for International Development and the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development based in Kathmandu, Nepal have launched a regional tourism destination management plan for the greater Inle Lake region, with support from the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism and the Government of Luxembourg.

The project builds on research and consultations by IID in 2012 and 2013 from which a key conclusion was the need to develop a sustainable tourism management plan that included Inle Lake and the surrounding highlands.

A report released in November 2012 said the project's priority was the "proper coordination and management" of the lake and the surrounding area. This was one of the elements highlighted in an evaluation of a Ministry of Hotels and Tourism Action Plan released in late 2010 in response to concern about the water level in the lake dropping to an unprecedented low.

The tourism industry in the Inle Lake region has undergone rapid expansion in recent years and it is attracting increasing numbers of tourists. This trend is likely to accelerate further from a significant base of at least 100,000 international tourists in 2012, combined with a similar number of domestic visitors to the lake, giving a minimum base of 200,000 visitors a year.

The project was launched by creating a Project Advisory Committee of Union and Regional stakeholders representing the public and private sector at the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism in Nay Pyi Taw on March 13.

It was followed by an open group discussion, with participants from the local tourism section in the lakeside town of Nyaung Shwe on March 17. Other activities will include developing a visitor forecast model, preparation of guidelines for sustainable tourism development, training in tourism planning and conducting the first detailed survey of tourists in the region.

Inle Lake, the second largest freshwater lake in Myanmar, is renowned for its beauty and serenity, and has been attracting visitors for hundreds of years. The lake combines rich historic and cultural traditions with significant environmental values due to its high biodiversity and rich ecosystem.

It has been listed as an ASEAN heritage area and is being assessed for qualification as a UNESCO International Biosphere Site.

The regional tourism destination management plan includes a proposal for forming and funding of a permanent tourism destination management organisation, which is in line with the Myanmar Tourism Master Plan.

IFC loan to boost Myanmar tourism

By Rahul

INTERNATIONAL Finance Cooperation, a member of the World Bank Group is lending US$80 million to subsidiaries of Shangri-La Asia Limited to expand its hospitality business in Myanmar.

The loan's objectives are to improve the country's business and travel infrastructure by providing international standard rooms and conference facilities, boost the tourism sector, contribute to economic diversification and sustainable growth and create job opportunities.

IFC's investment will be used to complete the renovation of Yangon's Traders Hotel and increase its capacity from 270 to 485 rooms. IFC's investment will also be used to complete the construction of the Shangri-La Residences Yangon, which will contain 240 serviced apartments.

Both projects are expected to be completed in 2014 and will help to meet the demand in Yangon for hotel rooms and serviced apartments for business travellers and expatriates living in the city.

IFC will also work closely with Shangri-La to ensure international environmental, health, and safety standards are met at the sites. The renovation and construction projects are providing jobs for more than 1,000 Myanmar workers. About 600 permanent employees, of whom about one-third will be women, will be recruited and trained in hospitality to staff the properties.

Shangri-La also broke ground for its second hotel project in Yangon near the site of the Shangri-La Residences Yangon. In addition to 350 well-appointed guestrooms and suites, the Lakeside Shangri-La Yangon will have three restaurants, two bars, spacious meeting and convention facilities, a health club and an outdoor swimming pool.

PAN Pacific Hotels Group launched the Parkroyal Nay Pyi Taw in Nay Pyi Taw, the Myanmar capital, its second Parkroyal property in the country.

The 180-room hotel is conveniently located near the Myanmar International Convention Centre, the official venue of government functions, and opened with 90 rooms available. The remaining rooms are due to become available by the end of 2014.

Parkroyal Nay Pyi Taw offers an all-day restaurant, spa, gym, swimming pool and a range of meeting facilities.

Parkroyal Yangon is also to undergo renovations to refresh its dining spaces, lobby and meeting and entertainment facilities.

In 2013, Pan Pacific entered a joint venture agreement with Myanmar's Shwe Taung Group to develop the country's first Pan Pacific hotel near Yangon's famous Bogyoke Aung San Market. The 348-room hotel is scheduled to open in 2017.

Myanmar's first pop-up project launched

Pix: Transit Shed No.1

MYANMAR has a new venue offering the three distinct spaces of a gallery, a retail space and a restaurant.

TS1 Yangon, Myanmar's first pop-up concept project, opened to the public on April 5. It is in Transit Shed No. 1 between Lanthit and Kaing Dan No (1) jetties on the Yangon River in the heart of the city.

The concept, developed by Pun and Projects, aims to further connect Myanmar with the global community and spearhead urban renewal and cultural exchange in the country.

In keeping with the pop-up concept, which is spreading in popularity throughout Europe and the United States, TS1 Yangon will feature different exhibitions in the gallery space, different retailers in the retail space and different menus in the restaurant space; all "popping-up" and rotating regularly.

The project will be used to demonstrate the possibilities for downtown Yangon's rejuvenation and is an illustration of how collaboration by people with distinctive skills and voices – be they local or international visitors, artistic or culinary, urbane or unpolished – can be merged to create not just a moment, but a movement to revive this historic neighborhood to its potential.

The culture component of the Yangon Pop-Up Project is TS1 Gallery, which opened with an exhibition of works by celebrated Myanmar artist Phyo Kyi.

Pun and Projects founder Ivan Pun said TS1 is plans to host up to seven exhibitions in the coming year, featuring up to 15 artists from throughout Myanmar.

The retail component of The Yangon Pop-Up Project opens with Myanmar Made, focused on showcasing the best and most interesting products found in the country.

Merchandise has been carefully selected to feature traditional craftsmanship but designed with a fresh perspective. Both TS1 Gallery and Myanmar Made will be open to the public daily, from 10am to 8pm.

The cuisine component, Port Autonomy Restaurant + Bar, set to open later this spring, will reflect the ethos of the project and focus on creating a gastronomic experience that is about the exchange of ideas between Myanmar and the world.

In addition to the three anchor components, the space will also play host to a carefully planned programme of cultural and social activities, potentially including community education, concerts, literary readings, performances, screenings, trunk shows and workshops.

South Korean-Myanmar joint venture to build Myanmar's biggest hotel

By Rahul

SOUTH KOREA'S KDB Daewoo Securities has announced a joint venture with a Myanmar company to build the country's biggest hotel in Yangon.

The US$220 million Daweoo Amara Hotel project, which will include a 15-storey luxury hotel and a 29-storey serviced residential high rise near Inya Lake and have a total of 661 rooms, is due to open by the end of 2016.

The project will developed by a consortium comprising Daewoo International, POSCO Engineering and Construction, and South Korean luxury chain Lotte Hotels and Resorts holding an 85 per cent share and Myanmar's IGE Group of Companies holding the remaining 15 per cent.

The 29-storey serviced residential high rise will have 315 rooms and the hotel will have 346 rooms. Facilities will include a convention hall, indoor/outdoor pools, fitness centre, spa, restaurants, all-day dining and a club lounge.

The project was approved under a "Build-Operate-Transfer" agreement with the Myanmar Investment Commission, which involves a 70-year lease after which the property must be returned to the Myanmar government.

The main design motif of the luxury hotels' interior was inspired by the birth of the sacred lotus, which is a symbol that represents Myanmar.

The design of the high rise will be inspired by four of Myanmar's most popular tourist destinations: Yangon, Inle Lake, Bagan and Ngapali Beach.

Spirit worship in Myanmar: THE NAT PANTHEON

Text by Ma Thanegi, Pix by Si Thu Lwin

Spirit worship is popular in Myanmar because Buddhism, the belief of the majority, is the path of taking complete responsibility for one's actions without any savior to offer succor or mercy. Since Buddhist belief already counts in celestial beings – or angels – also called Nat as creatures of the universe living in other realms, the spirits of animist worship are also acceptable creatures although they are more like ghosts.

They were once humans who died violently and, unable to forget their lamentable fates, are still caught in a limbo between life cycles. They serve the purpose of granting favours to their worshippers, who ask for help through mediums, with a promise of a ceremony for the Nat when the favour has been granted. Nat ceremonies must be held for at least three days and up to seven. At the beginning of the ceremony the Nat, beginning with the King of the Celestials, are invited by name one by one and at the end, each one is 'escorted' back to their realms with music.

These privately-sponsored ceremonies called Nat Pwe are usually held in a public place. If held in a private compound, the ceremony is often open to the public. The ceremonies are more like boisterous parties with loud music, food and drink for the Nat and guests, for it is all about making the Nat happy. The mediums sing and dance out the stories of each Nat that possesses them in turn and it is like a theatre/dance performance. Cash notes received during the ceremony are shared with the musicians. Candies and cakes are thrown into audience, mostly made up of women and children who love a good show. Most mediums are transvestites, as the work description fits their lifestyle, but Nat ceremonies are not gay festivals.

The pantheon of Spirits that are worshipped throughout the country are called the 37 Lords and Ladies (thon-ze'khunnit min), although there are many more regional Spirits.

The 37 Lords and Ladies of the Nat pantheon

- ▶ 1. Thagyar Min, King of the Celestials. His presence at a Nat ceremony is only to lend some dignity to the proceedings; he takes no part in the ceremony.

The Min Maha Giri family:

- ▶ 2. Min Maha Giri, Lord of the Great Mountain, guardian of the home and cities. He was a popular and handsome blacksmith who was burnt to death in the ancient city of Tagaung by a king who feared that the young man would become a contender to the throne.
- ▶ 3. Shwe N'bay, wife of the Lord of the Great Mountain, half-serpent, half human. She died of heartbreak after the execution of her husband.
- ▶ 4. Shin Pyu, their son, who died a violent death by order of the husband king of an aunt, Lady Three Times Beautiful.
- ▶ 5. Shin Nyo, their son, who died together with his brother. Both brothers were martial art practitioners and guardians of this art.
- ▶ 6. Shwe Myet Hna, Lady Golden Face, his sister, who died with him.
- ▶ 7. Thon Pan Hla, Lady Three Times Beautiful, his sister who died of heartbreak after being abandoned by her husband, another king. She is the guardian of beautiful women.
- ▶ 8. Ma Hne Lay, The three-year-old daughter of the Lady Three Times Beautiful, who died of heartbreak on her mother's death. She is the protector of children.

This family's main shrine is at the foot of Mt Popa in central Myanmar. The Lord of the Mountain, the Lady Golden Face, and the baby spirit are the most powerful. Their annual festival at Popa takes place in December. In homes, his shrine is a green coconut hung in a cane basket on a lower level than a Buddha shrine. Water, rice, flowers and fruit are offered at this shrine but never lit candles or incense because he died by fire.

The Popa Family

▶ 9. Popa Mai-daw, Mother Goddess of Popa, who died of heartbreak when her sons were executed. She is the protector of women and families. Her main shrine is on the crest of the mountain, where she once lived as a human. Her annual festivals are in December at Popa and in September/August, just after her sons' festival, at Amarapura near Mandalay.

▶ 10. Byatta, her husband, a hero with supernatural powers who served a king of Bagan and was executed for a minor offence. He was a shipwrecked Arab sailor so his family of Nat does not eat pork, nor do their followers.

▶ 11. Min Gyi, their elder son

▶ 12. Min Lay, their younger son.

The two brothers are probably the most powerful spirits in the pantheon, granting wealth to those they favour. They are also known as the Taung-pyone Brothers because the place where they died, Taung-pyone village, not far from Mandalay, has their main shrine. Their annual festival is at Taung-pyone in September/August and is the biggest Nat festival in Myanmar.

These privately-sponsored ceremonies called Nat Pwe are usually held in a public place.

▶ 13. Ma Swe Oo, a country girl killed by a tiger sent by the younger Taung-pyone brother for spurning his advances. She was a weaver and as a spirit she is the patroness of weavers.

▶ 14. Ko Yin Maung, her husband, a forester, who died of a broken heart. He is worshipped or at least respected by foresters and timber workers. Images of this couple are never kept near those of the Taung-pyone Brothers.

▶ 15. Myin Hpyu Shin, Rider of the White Horse, a poltergeist. Of obscure origins, he is symbolised by a white puppet horse. He provides protection against danger and enemies.

▶ 16. Pakhan U Min Kyaw, also known as Ko Gyi Kyaw and Min Kyawzwa, was killed by the spirits of two young men he murdered, Khun Cho and KhunThar. He is the guardian of drunkards and gamblers, and grants wealth to those he favours. His main shrine is in Pakhan, his hometown, also known as Pakhangyi, near Pakokku in Magway Region, where his festival is held every March.

▶ 17. U Nyo, his servant. His image is placed near the image of U Min Kyaw.

▶ 18. Nan K'rine Mai Daw, the Mother Goddess of Bago, is worshipped in southern Myanmar. She was a buffalo who raised an abandoned baby prince and was killed by him when he grew up and became king. She protects the family and home and grants wealth to those she favours.

The Koe Myo Shin Family

▶ 19. Koe Myo Shin, Lord of the Nine Towns, a prince who died in Shan State so his image is dressed in Shan costume.

▶ 20. Pale Yin, Lady Gentle Pearl, his sister, who also died in Shan State.

▶ 21. Khun Cho, adopted son of KoeMyo Shin

▶ 22. Khun Thar, adopted son of Pale Yin.

The two boys were killed by U Min Kyaw and as spirits they felled a tree on him to kill him. The boys were Shan princes and wrestlers and thus they are patron Nats of the sport.

If nine people are travelling together in Shan State, one will pick up a rock and say, "Mr Rock, come with us", to make a 10th member of the group so as not to offend the Lord of the Nine Towns. This family group protects against danger from enemies. They are enemies of U Min Kyaw so their images must be kept separate.

▶ 23. Ma Ngwe Taung, Lady Silver Mountain. She was seduced by U Min Kyaw when they were both humans and abandoned. She pined for him so much that her brother, who did not approve of U Min Kyaw, became angry and pushed her off a cliff, but as Nat they have little connection to each other. She helps women abandoned by husbands or lovers.

The Koe Thein Family

▶ 24. Koe Thein Nat, Lord of the Nine Hundred Thousand. His real name was Sao Naung, and he was a Shan prince who drowned himself after hearing that his two sisters had been sacrificed to consecrate the building of a dam.

▶ 25. Hsai Daw Thakin Ma, Mistress of the Royal Dam, his sister, real name Sao Aung, who died while pregnant when she was drowned as a sacrifice on the building of a dam.

▶ 26. Sao Nang, the other sister, a virgin, who also died by drowning. Sometimes only the brother's image is used, with three pairs of hands to represent all three siblings. Their main shrine is in Kyaukse, a town just south of Mandalay. The same rule about the number nine for the Koe Myo Shin family applies to this family. They are guardians of farmland.

The Four Mothers

▶ 27. A Shay Maidaw, the Eastern Mother.

▶ 28. A Nauk Maidaw, the Western Mother, also known as Ahmay Yay Yin, who is the most powerful of the four. She cures women with menstrual or menopause problems and is believed to be patron of witches.

▶ 29. Taung Maidaw, the Southern Mother.

▶ 30. Myauk Maidaw, the Northern Mother.

They are four elderly sister spirits who are worshipped together but the Western Mother is the most aggressive Nat among them. Their origins are not clear.

- ▶ 31. Ahmay Gyan, Mother Gyan is an elderly country woman killed by a soldier for swearing at him when he accidentally made her drop her pot of toddy wine. In Spirit life she continues to use foul language through the mediums possessed by her. She is consulted for stolen property, especially cattle.

Pyi Lai Pyin Brother and Sister

- ▶ 32. Saw HpaThar, a Karen man, who served at court and was killed by a king.
- ▶ 33. Saw Mya Thar, his sister, who died of heartbreak. They are worshipped in the town of Patheingyi and nearby regions in the Ayeyarwaddy delta. Very little is known of their story. As deities of the delta their images are not often present at ceremonies in upper and central Myanmar.
- ▶ 34. Yay Ngan Paing U Shin Gyi, Lord of the Sea. He too is a Spirit of the delta. He was a sailor who could play the harp well. As his ship passed an island in the delta, the sirens on it would not allow his ship to move. The crew cast lots to see on whose behalf they were being detained and his name came up all three times. He was drowned by the sailors and became the guardian of seafarers. He is usually worshipped and honoured separately in the evenings by his own medium known as a Nat Saya (Soothsayer) and not Nat Kadaw, and usually this spirit is not present at ceremonies attended by other spirits.

- ▶ 35. Pone Ma Kyi, Patron Nat of farmers. She is an ogress spirit and offerings are made to her before each new sowing season and at harvest time. She is usually not present at Nat ceremonies.
- ▶ 36. U Po Tu, a tea merchant, killed on his travels through the jungle by a tiger. He is the guardian of traders and their businesses.
- ▶ 37. Mya Nan Shin, Lady of the Emerald Palace. She is the guardian of the riverside Botahtaung Pagoda of Yangon, one of the creatures known as Oke Sar Saunt or Guardians of the Treasure. Treasures are enshrined in all pagodas, including the newest, and Oke Sar Saunt are the beautiful female Nat who guard them. They will only be released to be reborn in the cycle of life when the next Buddha appears. The thousand-year-old Botahtaung Pagoda was destroyed by an air raid in World War II. Salvaged relics were enshrined in replica built on the site.

BAGO: Just Go!

Text by Jessica Mudditt, Pix by Lwin Ko Talk

The former royal capital of Bago is said to have been founded by two Mon princesses in 573BCE, who reputedly fulfilled a prophecy made by the Lord Buddha 1,500 years earlier that his doctrine would thrive in the area – which, according to legend, he had also visited.

Though it's difficult to imagine now, the city was once a major seaport. However when the Bago River changed course, access to the ocean was lost. The British annexed Bago in 1852 and corrupted "Bago" to "Pegu" – a term that's not quite interchangeable but nonetheless still familiar today.

This bustling city of about 200,000 people attracts day trippers keen to soak up its mixture of old and new attractions: almost all of which are related to the worship of Buddhism. Bago has more Buddhist temples than any other similar sized town in southern Myanmar. The former capital of the Mon kingdom of Hanthawaddy (1369-1539) would undoubtedly entice travellers for longer visits if it was not so close to Yangon, which is only 80 kilometres (50 miles) away. Because of the number of attractions on Bago's decidedly jungle-esque outskirts, the most convenient way to get around is to hire a motorcycle taxi driver who will double as a guide. They can be hired as you disembark at the bus station. Although it depends on your negotiating skills, expect to pay about US$20 for a full day of sightseeing. Hiring bicycles is another alternative, but be warned: it's always hot in Bago.

► SUGGESTED DESTINATIONS

Highlights of Bago

The magnificent Shwethalyaung reclining Buddha image is 55 metres (180 feet) long and 16 metres (52 feet) high and is one of the world's largest Buddha images. After a Burmese king pillaged Bago in 1757, the Shwethalyaung image became so overgrown with vegetation that its whereabouts were unknown until they were discovered more than a century later. This thousand-year-old image has been restored with so much enthusiasm that its vintage could easily be confused with that of the Mya-Tha-Lyaung reclining Buddha image, which is also worth visiting in Bago, but was built a decade ago. Unlike many of the big Buddha images throughout Myanmar, a roof was not built to protect the Mya-Tha-Lyaung image from the elements. This creates an added bonus for photographers keen to capture its gigantic proportions silhouetted against the sky.

Bago's grand Shwemawdaw Pagoda, also known as the Golden God Temple, is one of the most sacred Buddhist sites in Myanmar. Its shimmering golden stupa, or spire, is the tallest in Myanmar at 114 metres (375 feet). It is 15 metres (49 feet) taller than the stupa at Yangon's famous Shwedagon Pagoda. The Shwemadaw, which is far less visited by tourists than the Shwedagon, has been rebuilt several times after being damaged by earthquakes. A 10-day festival is held each year at the Shwemawdaw during the full moon of the Myanmar lunar month of Tagu (March or April) and attracts thousands of devotees.

One of the most unusual – though some might say downright terrifying – sights at Bago may be seen at the Snake Monastery, which is home to a 5.2-metre (17-foot) Burmese python, which is said to be 125 years old and is believed to be the reincarnation of the abbot of a monastery at Hsipaw in Shan State. Burmese pythons are one of the world's largest snakes, but this one may be the biggest (someone really ought to contact The Guinness Book of World Records). She is fed more than five kilograms of meat a day and has her own swimming pool. This sacred snake attracts countless numbers of pilgrims, some of whom are so overcome with emotion that they reportedly burst into tears or wriggle around on the floor in a snake-like manner. As she is getting on in age,

Burmese pythons are one of the world's largest snakes, petting is no longer allowed, though she continues to be showered in kyat notes and her keeper is adamant that she is completely harmless.

Getting there and away

It takes an hour and a quarter to travel to Bago from the Aung Mingalar highway bus station in outer northern Yangon, not far from Yangon International Airport. Tickets cost K5,000 each way if you book at the bus company at Aung San Stadium in Yangon, or K3,000 at the bus station. The first bus leaves at 7.30am and there are frequent connections during the day. It's also possible to hire a taxi each way for about K10,000 if you bargain hard. A recommended English-speaking guide and motorcycle driver in Bago is Ko Phyo, who may be contacted at 09-3142-2463.

Experiencing the beauty of BAGAN

Text By Jessica Mudditt, Pix by Phoenyan

The ancient city of Bagan has a dizzying number of temples built between the 9th and 13th centuries, the era when the Kingdom of Pagan first began to unify the regions that comprise present day Myanmar.

Bagan is often compared to Cambodia's Angkor Wat, but attracts fewer visitors – making it a truly magical experience unlike anywhere else. While accommodation options in Old Bagan are particularly atmospheric, New Bagan is slightly more affordable. Most budget travellers choose to stay in the town of Nyaung U, which also has the greatest variety of restaurants but is further from the Bagan Archeological Zone, which has an entrance fee of US$15. To gain a thorough understanding of Bagan's rich history, a visit to the Archaeological Museum is recommended. Admission is US$5 (note: cameras and phones are not permitted).

Of the original 10,000 temples, pagodas and monasteries built in Bagan by the 13th century, more than 3,000 remain, though many are ruins. As visiting each one is a practical impossibility, aim to explore those listed below.

The Shwezigon Pagoda on the outskirts of Nyaung U is considered a prototype of Myanmar temples. Its gold-leaf gilded circular design is similar to that Yangon's Sule Pagoda. Pilgrims from throughout Myanmar travel to the Shwezigon for a festival during the month of Nadaw, in November-December. Nearby markets sell a large variety of traditional crafts such as lacquer ware.

The graceful 900-year-old Ananda Temple houses four enormous standing Buddha images. These gilded wooden images represent the historical Buddha (west side) and three preceding Buddhas, Kakusandha (north), Konagamana (east) and Kassapa (south). The Ananda's striking architectural fusion of Mon and Indian styles has led it to be dubbed the "Westminster Abbey of Burma." The temple was damaged by an earthquake in 1975 and restored with assistance from India.

The Gu Byauk Gyi Temple in the nearby village of Myinkaba has a spire resembling that of the Mahabodhi temple at the pilgrimage site of Bodhi Gaya, near the city of Gaya in India, where the Lord Buddha attained enlightenment under a Bodhi tree. The interior features beautiful murals and frescoes depicting "Jatakas", stories from the previous lives of the Lord Buddha. There are 28 murals devoted to his enlightenment.

The magnificent Gawdawpalin Temple is the second tallest in Bagan and its hollow gu (cave) style is designed for meditation, rituals and other forms of Buddhist worship. It also suffered damage during the 1975 earthquake and was subsequently restored.

The Thatbyinnyu Temple was built during the middle of the 12th century and is next to the Ananda Temple. Its silhouette is triangular, though not symmetrical. At 200 feet (62 metres) in height, it is the tallest temple at Bagan. Its second storey contains a seated Buddha image.

Visit the Shwesandaw Pagoda at sunrise or sunset, because the view from the top of its five terraces is unrivalled. This spectacular structure was built by King Anawrahta in 1057, and originally contained terracotta tiles depicting scenes from the Jatakas. Deep inside the pagoda are interred sacred hairs of the Lord Buddha.

The Shinbinthalyaung Temple is a long, rectangular structure containing the largest reclining Buddha image at Bagan. The 18-metre-long (59-feet-long) image is highly unusual because the

Climbing the stone stairway to the top of the terracotta coloured Shwe Gu Gyi Temple is often described by travellers as a highlight of their visit to Bagan

Buddha's head points southwards rather than northwards towards parinirvana, which according to the Buddhist faith is the "final" nirvana which occurs when a person dies and attains complete enlightenment. Some historians believe the exception was made in order for the Buddha image to face Shwesandaw Pagoda, but this is not confirmed.

Climbing the stone stairway to the top of the terracotta-coloured Shwe Gu Gyi Temple is often described by travellers as a highlight of their visit to Bagan, as its location provides a panoramic view of the surrounding temples and pagodas. Surrounding the central pillar are four Buddha images, while two stele contain poetic inscriptions in Pali. A few short lines of Sanskrit underneath reveal that the temple was built in exactly seven months and seven days.

The Dhammayan Gyi Temple is one of the largest in Bagan and resembles the Ananda Temple. It was built during the reign of King Narathu in the 12th century and many believe that the king's intention was to demonstrate atonement for murdering his father and eldest brother in order to ascend the throne. However during its construction, King Narathu was murdered – no one knows for sure by whom. Its interior has also been mysteriously bricked up, leaving just four porches and outer corridors accessible to visitors.

The Lawkananda Pagoda is beside the Ayeyarwaddy River and contains a replica of a Buddha tooth relic. The literal translation of "Lawkananda" is "joy of the world" and its humble donor's identity has never been discovered. Murals of sitting and standing Buddha images adorn the interior's walls.

The Sulamani Temple in the southwest village of Minnanthu is often featured in travel brochures. It was built of brick and stone by King Narapati in 1183 and its interior also features frescoes depicting aspects of Buddhist spirituality. It was also damaged in the 1975 earthquake and was rebuilt in 1994.

GETTING AROUND

■ The temple-studded plain at Bagan covers a vast area and the climate is hot year round: therefore walking is not an option. For those with cash to splash, a balloon ride at sunrise is a must. Balloons Over Bagan and Oriental Ballooning operate between October and March and prices range from US$280 to $325 a person.

■ A leisurely boat trip in the late afternoon along the Ayeyarwady River provides a chance to observe traditional fishing practices and a sunset you'll never forget. Day trips are also operated along the river by Traditional River Boats, Express Boats and Luxury River Cruises. Nothing beats the romance of travelling in a horse-drawn cart through this charming area. Short trips or guided tours can be arranged for K15,000 to K25,000 a day and last from sunrise to sunset.

■ A quirkier alternative is a bullock cart ride. Bookings need to be made in advance – enquire at your hotel.

■ Cycling is the cheapest form of transport at Bagan and has the double advantage of allowing meandering journeys along narrow paths. It costs US$5 a day to hire a bike. At K8,000, electric bikes are slightly more expensive, but hiring one will prevent over-exertion in the heat.

■ Air conditioned taxis are popular among those not used to the tropics and are good value at between $20 and $50 a day – but note that many of Bagan's paths are narrow and hopping out to navigate them by foot will be necessary.

■ Horse riding at Bagan can be arranged through U Paung Kyar Horse Riding, which is open from 7.30am to 4pm. An hour costs K20,000. For bookings, contact U Thein Tun on 6805761.

Note: Above prices are negotiable depending on season and distance. Banking information Master card and Visa ATM facilities are available in Nyaung U, near the central market and bus station.

Exploring a hidden place: PAKOKKU

Text By Jessica Mudditt, Pix by Lwin Ko Talk

For those wanting to get off the proverbial beaten track after spending a few days in the Bagan, spare some time to make the short trip to the small town of Pakokku. It's just an hour's drive away from Bagan, but aside from the odd abandoned temple decaying in Pakokku's tobacco fields, the two places have nothing in common (except, of course, for the pounding dry heat common to central Myanmar).

Pakokku is on the Ayeyarwaddy River in Magway Region and a recently built bridge across the river – which takes the title for being the country's longest – makes getting there a cinch. It's also possible to take a scenic ferry ride to or from Bagan's Nyaung U, or an onward bus to Monywa.

The land beside the Ayeyarwaddy River is exceptionally fertile: field upon field is used to cultivate tobacco, cotton, rice, chilli, peanuts and even sesame. Harvested tobacco is most often used to create traditional cigars, which are known as cheroots and emit a surprisingly pleasant aroma when lit. Visiting one of Pakokku's bustling cheroot workshops, which are largely staffed by women young and old, is a must (for health reasons, the same can't be said for smoking one). Tobacco is regarded as Pakokku's top commercial product, along with an infinitely more expensive commodity: oil. The Yenangyaung oil fields were built in the 19th century during British colonial rule and have been operating almost continuously ever since. I say "almost" because a Japanese bomb destroyed the facility's equipment during the Second World War, however it was up and running again almost immediately after the war's eventual end.

Pakokku is also well known for its markets selling thanakha, which is a distinctive yellowish paste made from ground bark. It's wildly popular among men and women alike, as even the least observant visitor to Myanmar will attest. Thanakha is considered a cosmetic as it highlights the cheekbones more boldly than any blush, and also serves a practical purpose: protecting skin against the sun. It is also worn at night because its ability to reduce excessive oil (that is, blemishes) produces wondrous results.

Agriculture aside, Pakokku produces beautiful rattan furniture and home wares, velvet slippers and traditional silks, with market prices being infinitely better value than those in Bagan.

Perhaps most importantly, Pakokku secured a place in Myanmar's recent history which is unlikely to ever be forgotten. The events that took place at Myo Ma Ahle Monastery in 2007 made international headlines. In protest against rising fuel prices, the monastery's monks staged a demonstration, which ended in a violent crackdown by authorities. Young monks retaliated by taking a number of government officials hostage, and when the deadline issued for an official apology from the government came and went, the number of protesting monks grew exponentially. Monks are accorded huge respect in Buddhist majority Myanmar and the affront to them led to the nationwide protests known as the Saffron Revolution. As the protests escalated the demands made by the monks expanded to include the release of all political prisoners, including global democracy icon Aung San Suu Kyi, then under house arrest. The movement was violently suppressed and democratic reforms did not begin until the transfer of power from the military to the government headed by President Thein Sein in 2011, but the courage of the Myanmar people didn't go unnoticed by the outside world. The reaction on social media sites led some pundits to claim that the Saffron Revolution gave birth to "open-sourced politics" in a wider sense. A visit to the Myo Ma Ahle Monastery is essential for anyone with a keen interest in Myanmar protest movements.

Pakokku's attractions are compact enough to be covered in half a day

For those in Pakokku during either late May or the end of the June, experiencing the month-long Thiho Shin Pagoda festival is likely to become the highlight of your visit to Myanmar. The pagoda is the most famous in Pakokku and was built 800 years ago by King Alaungsithu during the Bagan dynasty. Every year it comes to life with traditional forms of entertainment, such as the musical plays drawn from Buddhist scriptures known as zat-pwe and the nha-par-thwar, a dance and song performed as a duet.

Pakokku's attractions are compact enough to be covered in half a day, but those able to spend a weekend there will be amply rewarded – its townspeople are extremely friendly and hospitable. However accommodation options remain limited, both in terms of quantity and amenities. At the 100-year-old Mya Yatanar Inn, guests can savour Grandma Mya Mya's home-cooked meals, but less enjoyable is the fact that electricity isn't available throughout the day (at best). Meanwhile, the pricier rooms at The Pye No Guesthouse include most mod cons, but the cheaper ones have been described as "cell-like." Yet regardless of how much time a visitor is able or willing to spend in Pakokku, everyone is sure to leave with memories authentically Myanmar.

UNFORGETTABLE JOURNEYS: A ride on the Yangon Circle Line

Text by Jessica Mudditt, Pix by Lwin Ko Taik

Yangon is a city of contrasts and short-term visitors often come away with a somewhat lop-sided impression of what it has to offer. An excellent way of gaining a better understanding of the scale and diversity of this fascinating former capital is to jump onboard a train on Yangon Circle Line, which was built during the British colonial era.

Pix: Ko Talk

Pix: Ko Talk

Pix: Ko Talk

is truly a journey back in time – the diesel locomotives date to the 1960s and the tracks are even older.

The loop will take to you through many lesser-known areas as well as those that are of great importance for the city's six million inhabitants, and it includes pleasant rural scenery in the outer suburbs. The circle line starts from Yangon Central Railway Station and winds its way out to Mingaladon Railway Station (near Yangon International Airport), via Insein Township to the west and North Okkalapa Township to the east.

Be patient though, because the Yangon Circle Line train is no speedster, travelling at 17 kilometres an hour (10.5 miles an hour). It takes about three hours to complete the 45-kilometre (30-mile) loop, comprising 39 stations. This is no doubt a source of unending frustration for regular commuters, but for those wanting to spend a pleasant morning or afternoon aboard this open-air train, there's no better way of experiencing Yangon and its surroundings. If possible, take the train on a weekend and avoid peak hours, or you may find yourself without a seat and getting up close and personal to baskets of exotic-looking vegetables: many wholesalers use the train to transport their goods from home to market (including the big one near Bolahtaung Station). Until 2011, the cost of a ticket was just K10 (1 US cent) for locals and it continues to be a more affordable than buses.

The fare for foreigners is a bargain at US$1 and you need to present your passport to buy a ticket, which is valid for a day. It's possible to jump off at any station and take a stroll. Doing so at Insein (pronounced "insane") is worthwhile, because attractions near the station include a temple on Mindhamma Hill graced by a jade Buddha image and the Royal White Elephant Garden, which has two auspicious white elephants (which you may note are in fact a dusty shade of pink, but no matter). Be sure to check when the next train is due because with only 10 trains completing the circuit a day, services are infrequent – and often delayed. Travelling the full loop is recommended, or at least getting past the half-way point at Insein Station, where one of the unforgettable sights is a scrapheap of cars stacked so high that the rust-buckets almost seem to tower into the clouds.

'I understand what it's like to start from scratch' MONSOON: The dream that became a reality

Text by Manny Maung, Pix by Lwin Ko Talk

There were only a few good bars or restaurants in Yangon that catered for expatriates or tourists when Monsoon started nine years ago, said its managing partner and co-founder, Daw Phyu Phyu Tin.

At the time, she and her friends were in their thirties and looking for somewhere to share a few laughs over a good meal and a drink or two.

"I didn't want to have to go out to a loud club just because I wanted to go out with my friends," said Daw Phyu Phyu Tin, 41. "But there really were so few choices as to where to go."

Inspired by the idea of opening a restaurant, Daw Phyu Phyu Tin formed a partnership with her older sister, Daw Su Su Tin, who runs Exotissimo Travel Myanmar, and a friend, Ms Naya Ehrlich-Adam.

The three entrepreneurs pooled their savings and began looking for a building in a convenient downtown location to lease and refurbish. They found it at 87/88 Theinbyu Road in Botahtaung Township – a colonial-era building once owned by an Indian merchant. During World War II it was a shelter for women and children. Their Monsoon dream was becoming a reality.

During the refurbishment, the trio wanted to pay homage to the building's history and tried as much as possible to recreate its colonial elegance. Many will agree they have succeeded.

Fans suspended from high ceilings, white pillars and tasteful Myanmar décor provide a classic colonial ambience to the main dining room downstairs. The upstairs dining room is painted sky-blue in the colonial Indian style, as a nod to its original owner.

Monsoon, in its conceptual stages was easy enough to imagine, Daw Phyu Phyu Tin told My Magical Myanmar. Rather than only Myanmar fare, Monsoon would serve a range of cuisines from the countries of Southeast Asia to highlight something they have in common – the tropical monsoon weather.

As savvy businesswomen, they agreed to establish a safe business model – targeting Daw Su Su Tin's tour groups and introducing them to regional cuisine that featured fresh, local produce and catered more for a Western palate, using as little oil as possible and spurning MSG.

With Daw Phyu Phyu Tin heavily pregnant with her second child and renovations running behind schedule, there were some anxious moments ahead of Monsoon's opening in March 2005.

The challenges they faced strengthened their bond of friendship.

"We cried together, we fought with each other and we laughed together!" said Daw Phyu Phyu Tin, whose second child, a daughter, was two months old when the restaurant opened.

"The first time we catered for a tour group, the group was from Exotissimo and Naya's husband was also there so there was a lot of pressure," Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

"The electricity failed and the generator wasn't working. Naya was in tears and we had to apologise to the tour group."

The first night the restaurant opened to individual bookings was a happier occasion.

"We didn't know who would come but in the end our first individual customers were from the British Council," Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

"It was one of the customer's birthdays and we were so happy to just have customers that we started handing out free birthday shots, then joining in and having shots as well," she said. "We were so happy – and so relieved."

Monsoon has become a favourite with tour groups, serving a range of dishes from Myanmar, Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam and Thailand. Breakfast is also on the menu, as is a small selection of Western mains.

An increasing number of individual travellers dine at the restaurant and it is also popular with expatriates and wealthy Myanmar.

The most popular dishes are classic Myanmar favourites – letpet thoke (pickled tea leaf salad), chicken and potato curry, grilled butterfish and chicken and gourd curry.

There is an extensive drinks list that separates “healthy” drinks, such as fresh fruit juices, from the “less healthy”. The cocktails are impressive yet simple and a particular standout is the refreshing and seasonal Monsoon mango and lime daiquiri. Strawberries are substituted for mangoes in the dry season.

Admittedly, the menu is a bit daunting with its range of options, but the attentive, helpful staff are willing to explain the dishes at length, demonstrating utmost patience as diners ponder which regional cuisine to savour.

“Keeping good staff is a key issue,” Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

“We try to look after them like they are our own family and we still have five staff members with us who were here when we opened.”

Managing staff, logistics and orders are constant worries, Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

“Last year was especially hard,” she said. “Everything changed – the rent doubled, the utilities went up. But if it meant we were struggling, that meant our staff were probably struggling too.”

Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said rather than tightening the purse strings, she doubled the staff’s salaries.

Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said her compassionate philosophy stemmed from her faith in Buddhism, which makes her feel happier when helping others.

It isn’t easy running a business as a working mother of two but Daw Phyu Phyu Tin is involved in five other projects,

// I’m proud to say there is no McDonald’s or KFC in Myanmar” including the social enterprise Yangon Bakehouse, which she co-founded, and Monument Books, of which she is an executive director.

She also helped the not-for-profit crafts store, Pomelo, to start up, offering a much-reduced rent on the floor it occupies above the restaurant and providing extra staff at no cost.

“I understand what it’s like to start from scratch; the start is so important, it really determines whether you will survive as a business or not,” Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

Despite a busy schedule, she is trying to spend more time with her daughters and perhaps allow herself a holiday this year.

Meanwhile, Monsoon’s reputation has continued to grow.

It celebrates having one of the few female Myanmar head chefs in town – possibly the only one – and the business is overwhelmed by an increase in the number of tour groups wanting to dine there.

“I’m proud to say there is no McDonald’s or KFC in Myanmar,” Daw Phyu Phyu Tin said.

“It’s important to buy local produce and stimulate that growth; it’s important to help local farmers and businesses.”

For now, the seemingly indefatigable Daw Phyu Phyu Tin says she is involved in enough projects – but perhaps if there is an interesting offer comes her way, she will find it too enticing to ignore.

If an award existed for the "City with the Most Improved Nightlife," Yangon would be highly likely to clinch the trophy. In less than a year, Yangon has transformed itself from KTV capital to eclectic party town, with an ever increasing number of options for night time revelers. So why not swap a sedate beer station for one of these exciting options next time you're venturing out?

Off the Beaten Track

A café/Bar in Downtown Yangon specifically created for independent travelers to get updated information on tourism "off the beaten track" and act as a meeting and exchange point for fellow journeyers

19th Street

19th Street

Although Yangon offers the option of a few truly swanky bars, anyone seeking a relaxed, open air drink and barbecue combo should head for Chinatown's 19th Street.

Also known as "Beer Street" by locals and expats, this popular al fresco dining destination.

19th Street (between Maha Bandoola and Anawratha streets)

The Water Library (Yangon)

With two hugely popular branches in Thailand, this high-end establishment is truly impressive – but expect to pay premium prices. Although there are apparently some issues with finding and keeping the right chef, The Water Library arguably has the widest selection of spirits and liquors in the city. And the bar staff really know how to toss a cocktail mixer.

Escape Gastro Bar

Despite being in a quiet residential neighborhood far north of the downtown area, Escape Gastro Bar is a favorite for Yangon's party people. Arrive early and enjoy a Thai fusion meal, or skip that and start with one of the 20 or so cheekily named shots presented to you on a laminated drinks menu, such as Bong Water or Motherfuc*ker. Gastro also serves whole watermelons filled with liquor. Yum.

The Strand Bar

Although it seems implausible now, the corner of The Strand hotel occupied by its bar was once used to stable Japanese officers' horses during World War II. It has long been one of Yangon's favourite venues for a lively expat and Myanmar crowd on Friday evenings, when happy hour lasts all night long.

The Strand Bar, 92 Strand Road,

Captain's Bar, Savoy Hotel

Captain's Bar in the Savoy Hotel attracts a loyal crowd of expatriate and Myanmar regulars and can be quite lively, especially during the tourist high season. However its popularity among the 20- and 30-something crowd is virtually non-existent these days. Perhaps it's time for the nautical theme to be overhauled?

Savoy Hotel, corner of Dhammazed and Inya roads.

Union Bar and Grill

When "Union" opened on April 1, 2013, it became the first establishment to seriously rival 50th Street Café Restaurant and Bar. The Union Bar and Grill is a chic nightclub with a fast wifi connection that regularly throws parties (such as for Halloween) and consistently serves great food. It offers two-for-one deals, such as its menacing margaritas or tasty pizzas. While other venues may come and go, Union already feels like a permanent addition to the city. And guess what? A second Union is opening soon!

42 Strand Road, Botahtaung

Mojo Bar

Across the road from the Savoy Hotel is the recently renovated Mojo Bar, which features exposed brick walls, long timber tables with candelabras and an industrial look. It has an upstairs area for parties, and the music in the downstairs bar is sure to get you inching for a dance (for which you will need to visit a club, listed at the end). Recommended: an electric blue Smurf Kiss shot.

50th Street Café Restaurant and Bar

If you enjoy drinking beer while watching sports such as rugby, cricket or Formula 1, then this long-established restaurant and bar is your home-away-from-home. It has big screen TVs and a sports-mad manager, as well as pool tables and a stunning interior. Well-known local bands such as Side Effect sometimes play upstairs and the acoustics are great. The meal portions could be more generous.

Gekko Bar

Yangon's first true open kitchen with a charcoal fired Yakitori/Robotayaki grill and cosy cocktail lounge in down-town Yangon. It is set over two floors with a mezzanine lounge and two private rooms, seating up to 12 people. The menu is focused around charcoal fired Yakitori but includes Korean and Vietnamese dishes. The Japanese inspired cocktail menu is courtesy of Singapore's famously discreet 28 Hong Kong Street.

The oppressively hot staircase from the top floor of Alfa Hotel opens to a bar with stunning potential. Like Vista Bar at Shwegondine intersection, Sapphire Bar and Lounge has magnificent views of Shwedagon Pagoda and generous outdoor seating. With fans and a wider variety of food available after 9pm (when the menu is limited to noodles), this could become one of Yangon's most popular night spots.

In Myanmar language Ohn No (Coconut Milk) Khao Swae (Noodles)

Nice thin yellow egg noodles or wheat noodles are prepared with the chicken coconut soup. It is served with crispy noodles, slices of fried fish cakes, fresh sliced onions and a piece of lime. It's one of the most popular noodles dishes in Myanmar and is unique in South East Asia. It is similar to the Chiang Mai version of Ohn No Khao Swae or Laksa Lemak, but does not have as much coconut milk. Ohn No Khao Swae is made with a chickpea mixture that gives the soup its delicate flavours. In this recipe I use only a small amount of coconut milk. The secret of my chicken stock, rich in flavours, is boiling the chicken feet longer in a soup. After the bones have fallen off the result is a jelly-like stock. Here are the instructions to make this delicious Myanmar favourite. For convenience the chicken and the chicken curry (next recipe) can be made at any time and frozen.

16-18 servings

For stock to make soup

Ingredients

- 2 whole Chicken bones
- 4 Chicken wings
- 8 Chicken feet
- 3 cloves of garlic (peeled and crushed)
- 1 piece of half of thumb sized ginger (peeled and crushed/ broze) (if yields nearly 4 ½ liter of stock)

Preparation

- Add the chicken bones, chicken wings and chicken feet with 5L of water into a stock pot. Then add ginger and garlic as well. Bring to boil at high heat. When it is bubbling, turn the heat down and gently boil for 45 minutes. Discard all the dark marrow paste while making the stock.
- When it is ready, drain the stock and discard the bones. Let them cool. Chicken wings can be used in the curry or snacks.
- Chicken feet can be used in the soup or discard them. They make a nice jelly stock and the flavours are strong.
- It should yield at least 4L of stock.
- Stock can be prepared one day in advance and frozen until needed.

For chicken curry

- 5 onions (thinly diced)
- 2 cloves of garlic (crushed)
- 500 g of chicken breast (cut into 1-2 cm cube)

- ¼ teaspoon of turmeric powder
- 1 teaspoon of sweet paprika
- 1 teaspoon of chili powder
- 1 tablespoon of fish sauce
- 1 cm cube of ginger (grated)
- 1/3 cup of cooking oil

Preparation

- Cut the chicken into cubes and marinate with turmeric powder and fish sauce in a glass bowl for half an hour.
- Dice the onions. Peel and grate the ginger. Peel and crushed the garlic.
- Add the oil into the saucepan and make it hot with medium heat. Then fry the onions till they become a golden colour. Add the garlic, ginger, sweet paprika and chili powder and fry for few seconds. Then add the marinated chicken to the sauce pan and ensure the pieces are well coated with the onion mixture. After the chicken is coated and sealed, add 1/4 cup of water, put the lid on the saucepan and bring to the boil. When it boils, turn the heat down and simmer for half an hour. Stir the chicken and gravy from time to time. After the water has evaporated and the chicken is cooked through, turn up the heat and make the gravy paste sizzle.
- Set aside half of the chicken curry for garnishing and save the other half for the soup.

Pix by Phoenyan

Preparation

- Mix the chickpea powder with 1 cup of water until all the chickpea powder dissolves. Make sure there are no lumps.
- Peel the little shallots and soak them in water for half an hour. Then drain.
- Add the chicken stock into a stock pot. Bring to medium heat. Pour the chickpea mixture into the stock and stir constantly. Bring to the boil after they are well mixed. Then add the chicken curry and coconut milk into the soup respectively. Then turn the heat down to simmer and add the shallots and fish sauce. Cover the lid. Simmer for at least 20 minutes. The longer it is simmered, the better will be the taste and the richer the flavours.
- Add sugar and salt/ fish sauce (extra) for taste.

For garnishing

- 5 boiled eggs
- 4 onions (thinly slice and soak in water for few minutes. Then squeeze them to let the water run out and pat dry before serving)
- Crispy noodles (Deep fry a couple of handful egg noodles in a wok with 1 cup of cooking vegetable oil. They should be crispy and drain the excess oil on the kitchen paper.)
- Chili flakes
- 4 limes cut into wedges.
- Fish sauce

For noodles

- 8-10 servings of egg noodles or cold wheat noodles Or 2 kg of noodles

Preparing the noodles

- Place a handful of egg noodles or wheat noodles in a bowl, add a spoonful of chicken curry on top and ladle the soup over the noodles. Serve with fresh sliced onions, lime wedges, chili flakes, extra fish sauce (optional), sliced fish cakes, slices of boiled eggs and fried crispy noodles.
- Chickpea powder should be roasted. Otherwise, make the chickpea soup first. Add 3 ½ cups of water into 8 tablespoons of chickpea powder. Then stir the powder into the water until it dissolves and there are no lumps. When the mixture is ready, put on low heat and boil gently. Keep stirring until there's a nice aroma from the chickpeas. Cool and set aside.

Chicken curry with coconut soup

Ingredients

- 4L of chicken stock
- 10 tablespoon of roasted chickpea powder (2 cups of water)
- 1 ½ cup of coconut milk
- 2 tablespoons of sugar
- ¼ cup of fish sauce
- 20 shallots
(It yields nearly 5L of soup)

Yangon's ARTISTIC SOUL

By Jessica Mudditt

Not so long ago, Myanmar's artists were largely confined to depicting monks, pagodas and pleasant rural scenes. However after the end of a half century of military rule in 2011 and the lifting of strict censorship restrictions the following year, Yangon's art scene has blossomed into one of Southeast Asia's most distinctive – and prices overall remain highly competitive, at least for the time being. My Magical Myanmar showcases 10 of the commercial capital's most dynamic galleries.

1. River Gallery and River II

The River Gallery at The Strand Hotel is arguably Yangon's most famous contemporary art gallery. After building on its success over nearly a decade, River II opened in 2013 – the two are located in close proximity. New Zealander Gill Pattison curates both and is well known for having a keen eye for stunning contemporary paintings. The River Galleries partner with overseas galleries for group and solo exhibitions and also features performance art, sculpture and installations.

2. Pansodan Art Gallery and Pansodan Scene

Pansodan Art Gallery has been an established fixture on Yangon's arts and social scenes for several years. The century-old building was converted into a gallery by Aung Soe Min and Nance Cunningham in 2008, and its memorable Tuesday night gatherings – often featuring acoustic guitar and a great deal of beer – are open to all. Pansodan Scene recently opened its doors to the public and due to having a larger space, is able to host larger-scale public events.

3. TSI Yangon

Opened in April this year, TSI Yangon immediately became one of the most cutting edge galleries in town. Its "pop-up" concept is the first of its kind to appear in Myanmar and features a running rotation of exhibitions in its airport hangar-style gallery space, as well as showcasing different retailers and menus in adjacent areas. TSI Yangon's motto is "All things Myanmar, but with a twist." Contemporary art mediums include paintings, design, performance, photography and traditional craftsmanship.

4. Pomelo

Fair trade Pomelo sells gorgeous handicrafts made by local artisans using local materials and every sale helps to boost their social and economic situation. Some of the artisans are HIV sufferers, street youths, the mentally or physically disabled, as well as small family businesses striving to combat poverty. Many of Pomelo's products, which include tote bags, scarves, colourful paper mache creatures large and small and wall posters, possess a distinctive contemporary flair. Prices are extremely reasonable, making it a fantastic place to buy souvenirs.

📍 89 Thein Pyu Road (next door to Monsoon Restaurant)

🕒 Open daily from 10am to 9pm

5. The Lokanat Gallery of Art

This is the longest running gallery in Yangon, having opened more than 40 years ago in 1971. Lokanat was also the first gallery to be granted permission to hold performance and installation based art. Its two halls showcase contemporary and classical artwork by some of Myanmar's most established talents, and paintings may be bought by installment – a rule revived from the early days.

6. Inya Art Gallery

Abstract artist Aung Myint first opened Inya Gallery, named after Yangon's famous lake, in his garage in 1989. Since then his work has been featured in exhibitions throughout Asia and in the West. Inya Art Gallery is the only gallery in Yangon which is owned and run by an artist. His work is distinctively bold in colour and Aung Myint has said his subject matter reflects his optimistic nature.

The Legend of The Irrawaddy Flotilla Company

By Rupert-Angus Mann

The grand former headquarters of the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company loom over the southern end of Pansodan Street in downtown Yangon. Built in 1933, the building dominates the tiny street vendors who sell sunglasses and snacks at the base of its enormous façade. Six sets of gigantic twin fluted columns sit atop five sweeping archways and a cantilevered porte-cochere protects those who enter the building from Yangon's heavy monsoon rains.

The Irrawaddy Flotilla Company and its grand fleet of ships is a legendary part of Burmese history. At the height of its fame just before WWII, it ran 600 steamers along the length of the mighty river carrying everything from people to gold. By then it was moving 8 million passengers and 250,000 tons of cargo each year.

The IFC was formed in 1865 by Todd, Findlay and Co. who had their headquarters in Glasgow. Most of the colonials who lived and worked in Burma were Scottish and to this day there is a striking architectural and historical connection between Glasgow and Yangon.

In those early days, the IFC had only four steamers and three barges to its name but was in the right place at just the right time. By 1870, Burma had become one of the richest colonies in the British Empire. Due to this rapid expansion of commerce, by 1920 the IFC was running "the largest fleet of inland steamers operating in the world" or so the advertising claimed.

As the colony grew wealthy so did the IFC, hand in hand they became powerful and extremely rich. In 1927, the general manager of the company built himself a grand residence just north of downtown Yangon. He also built himself three others and today the original is the residence of the British ambassador.

With the coming of WWII, the fortunes of the company waned. The region was thrown into disarray as the unstoppable Japanese army cut a path of destruction through Southeast Asia. The British Army requisitioned the Irrawaddy fleet to carry men and supplies. In 1942, as the Japanese approached Yangon and Mandalay, the fleet was sunk in the ancient rivers which had for so long been the company's lifeblood. Hundreds of steamers today sit at the bottom of the Irrawaddy River, the only remnants of one of the world's greatest shipping fleets.

After Burma won independence in 1948, the new government took control of the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company and renamed it the Inland Water Transport Board. The Board continues to oversee inland river transport in Myanmar and its staff work from the same teak desks and walk the same marble floors as did the staff of the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company. Above the doorways you can still see the emblazoned words "Irrawaddy Chambers", echoes of a famous past and a Burmese legend.

Gems

Pix: Gemrockauctions

Mogok Rubies

Mogok rubies have an inner florescence not found anywhere else in the world. They are found in sizes and quality that no other ruby mines can match. In the 15th century an Italian merchant named Ludovico Varthema reported that he saw the Burmese monarch wearing "more rubies on him than the value of a very large city." One Mogok mine produced the 'Nawata' ruby, a near-flawless gem of crimson rose colour, which weighed 496.5 carats after cutting. The same mine produced two bigger rubies in each of the next two years. The world's biggest ruby, weighing 21,450 carats, was also found at Mogok.

Mogok Sapphires

Although fewer sapphires than rubies are found at Mogok, they are of high quality and are highly sought after. Perfect star sapphires are rare and fetch the highest prices in the gem trade. The Gem Museum at Nay Pyi Taw displays a 2.13 metre (7 feet) high boulder, which is the biggest sapphire in the world although not of gem quality.

Imperial Jade

Myanmar is the only country in the world producing high-quality Imperial Jade in large quantities, from mines at Hpakant in northern Kachin State. The world's largest known piece of Imperial Jade was found on January 1, 2001. It is 21 metres (70 feet) long, 11 metres (36 feet) high and 4.5 metres (15ft) thick.

Myanmar Pearls

The Myeik Archipelago has long been famous for producing natural pearls of immense sizes. A few years ago, the world's biggest natural pearl, weighing 845 carats, was found in the region. The cultured pearl industry in Myanmar began in the late 1950s under Japanese supervision and the quality is excellent. The outstanding characteristic of Myanmar cultured pearls is an iridescent lustre of many colours, known in the industry as 'orient' or 'rainbow iridescent'.

Planning

CLIMATE

Myanmar has three seasons a year. The cool season, from mid-October to mid-February, is the best time to visit because of milder temperatures, which drop to near freezing in the highlands in December and January. Summer is from mid-February to mid-May, when maximum temperatures in many parts of the country often exceed 40 degrees Celsius. Torrential downpours are common during the rainy season, from mid-May to mid-October. The rainy season is a good time to visit Mandalay, Bagan and other destinations in central Myanmar as they do not receive as much rain as Yangon and other parts of the country.

CLOTHING

Cool, comfortable cotton is the most suitable fabric for Myanmar's warm, humid climate. Locally-made cotton is available at many tourist destinations. Travellers heading to high altitude destinations such as Inlay Lake and the Kyaik-hli-yo 'Golden Rock' Pagoda are advised to take a sweater or jacket as it can be chilly at night.

ELECTRICITY

The voltage used throughout Myanmar is 220 volts, 50 hertz AC.

DOCUMENTATION

All visitors to Myanmar are required to carry a valid passport and a Myanmar visa. Passports must be valid for six months beyond the end of the intended visit. Visa applications may be made at any Myanmar embassy or consulate. Tourist visas valid for three months are available on application to independent or group tour travellers. Single-entry tourist visas are available for 28 days and may be extended in Myanmar. Visas on arrival are issued to passengers on cruise liners or chartered flights, package tour groups from countries with no Myanmar diplomatic mission or travellers arriving from Cambodia on Myanmar Airways International flights. Multiple entry visas valid for up to one year are available to foreigners working for companies with long-established operations in Myanmar. Non-extendable business visas for 10 weeks are available on arrival for visitors with a letter of invitation from a company based in Myanmar. Children aged over seven are required to apply for separate visas even if they are travelling on a parents' passport. The penalty fees for over staying a visa is depend on the type of visa.

Types of Visa, Fees and Duration:

Type of visa	Fees	Duration
Business Visa	US$ 50	70 days
Entry Visa (Meeting/Workshops/Events)	US$ 40	28 days
Transit Visa	US$ 20	24 Hours

More information is available at: www.mip.gov.mm, www.myanmarvisa.gov.mm

Please contact a Myanmar embassy or consulate for more information on visa applications.

IMMIGRATION AND CUSTOMS

A passport with a valid visa and a completed disembarkation card must be presented to the immigration desks at international airports. Foreign currency currencies (above USD 10000), jewellery, cameras and electronic goods must be declared to the customs at the Airport. Exports of antiques and archaeologically valuable items are prohibited.

The duty free allowance for each visitor is two bottles of liquor, two cartons of cigarettes or 100 cigars, 1.5lbs of tobacco and a pint of perfume or eau de cologne.

Departure

The $10 departure tax at airports is included in the cost of the ticket. A passport and completed embarkation card must be presented at the immigration desks. Export permit vouchers must be shown at Customs for any gems or jewellery bought in Myanmar. The export of antiques and archaeologically valuable items is strictly prohibited.

Border Crossings Open

The Ministry of Immigration and Population announced in late August that four checkpoints on the border with Thailand have been opened as entry and exit points for foreign tourists. The checkpoints are: Tachilek-Mae Sai, Myawaddy-Mae Sot, Kawthoung-Ranong and Hlee Khee-Phunaron. It is possible to enter Myanmar at Muse on the border with China but special permission is needed.

Restricted Areas

Special permission is needed to travel to most border areas, though visit restrictions have been lifted in some locations. More information is available at www.myanmar-tourism.org or call on +95 67 406129.
