[1] In an effort to test the potential impact of descriptive terminology on question 26 pertaining to the New York Dream Act – 'undocumented immigrants' or 'illegal aliens' – we asked approximately half the sample the question with one term and the other half the identical question with the other term. Given that the margin of error for these reduced samples is +/- 5.0, there is no statistically significant difference between the topline frequencies for these two modes of asking support for or opposition to the New York Dream Act.

[2] Field dates took place over the beginning of the Passover holiday. Given that timing, and our efforts to respect the holiday, it is not surprising that the portion of the sample identifying as Jewish was less than usual and not validly representative. As such, we do not report Jewish voters in the cross tabulations since the margin of error would be quite high.
