With instability in parts of the Middle East and terrorist strikes targeting Europe, the level of action by allied air arms intensified throughout 2015

A YEAR OF CONFLICT

With multiple nations involved in combat action over Iraq and Syria, equipment decisions and procurement plans are of great significance. We detail the global fleet ith conflicts raging in several nations — notably Iraq, Syria and Yemen — and with terrorist activity having targeted Western civilians in Egypt, France and Tunisia, 2015 has been marked by crises and instability.

Moscow increased the pressure within Syria by deploying a significant contingent of combat aircraft and helicopters, before mounting a major offensive involving not just these, but also long-range cruise missiles fired from the Caspian Sea and by its strategic bomber fleet. Its intervention complicated the make-up of an air campaign being staged by the USA and multiple other nations against Islamic State militants, and raised the spectre of a clash between deployed forces.

These tensions reached a new high in late November, following the downing of a Russian Sukhoi Su-24 strike aircraft by a Turkish air force-operated Lockheed Martin F-16 in what has for several years been the rarest of events: an air-to-air engagement. With Moscow subsequently deploying S-400 surface-to-air missiles and arming combat air-craft with air-to-air missiles, pessimists will fear such an incident could be repeated, in a theatre which is already on edge due to the numerous players and their contrasting objectives for the regime in Damascus.

Already the subject of criticism for its annexation of Crimea from Ukraine and continuing to probe NATO's air defences in the Baltic States, Russia's intentions remain hard to read. Coalition assets are busy responding to Moscow's aircraft from Baltic Air Policing bases in Estonia and Lithuania, supported by quick reaction fighters in other locations, including Norway, Poland and Sweden.

Elsewhere during the activity against Islamic State and other terrorist groups, regional air forces – including those of Bahrain, Jordan, Morocco, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates – have participated in combat, and in some cases lost aircraft.

JOINT EXERCISES

With an operational focus at the forefront for many air arms, the need to participate in major exercises has also assumed greater importance. Notable examples during 2015 included NATO's massive Trident Juncture manoeuvres — involving more than 36,000 personnel from 30 nations—and an Israeli air force-hosted Blue Flag event. The latter attracted the involvement of aircraft from allies including Greece, Poland and the USA.

Continued instability in parts of the Middle East is sure to see the existing level of action maintained, and in all likelihood intensified, over the coming year. As evidenced by the late October bombing of a MetroJet Airbus A321 after departure from Sharm el-Sheikh in Egypt, the threats posed to aviation by unrest are very real for airlines also. A total of 224 passengers and crew died as a result of the attack on the Russian-operated aircraft.

For the first time, our annual overview of the global military aircraft inventory has been compiled using just part of the information contained within Flightglobal's Fleets Analyzer database. Recently launched, this holds premium-quality data on more than 345,000 aircraft, also including airliners, rotorcraft and business jets.

Our data shows that only the North America region experienced a within-year total fleet reduction

We record just over 52,100 military aircraft in active service around the globe, with our listing showing the fleets held by air arms in some 160 nations. This year's fleet total represents an increase of just 0.8% from the figures contained in our directory for 2015.

Of the in-service equipment, the USA's armed forces account for the largest share, with just over 26% of the total active inventory; slightly more than 13,700 aircraft. The bulk of a vear-on-year reduction of just over 200 aircraft recorded for Washington's military can be attributed to the retirement of 130 Bell Helicopter OH-58 Kiowa Warrior armed scouts and some of its Bell 206-based TH-67A Creek trainers, at the start of a major aviation restructuring. More cuts will follow next year, but Congressional action has so far saved the US Air Force from long-threatened reductions to its Fairchild-Republic A-10 ground-attack fleet.

Our data shows that only the North America region experienced a within-year total fleet reduction, while the numbers stayed flat in Europe and Latin America. The biggest increases - of 3% each - were in the Middle East and Russia and Commonwealth of Independent States groupings, while Asia-Pacific and Africa saw rises of 2%.

SPECIAL-MISSION GROWTH

Fleets Analyzer's improved data about types assigned for a variety of special-mission applications, meanwhile, sees the total number of such aircraft included rise from 1,866 last time to 2,047, or by 9.7%.

In addition to the active fleet, another 4,500 aircraft are recorded as being the subject of firm orders, while more than 8,250 more are the subject of pending deals, letters of intent or national procurement plans.

Ukraine is experiencing continued unrest

Among the most significant fleet developments of 2015, Lockheed's F-35 can now be listed as an operational type, with the short take-off and vertical landing B-model variant having achieved initial operational capability (IOC) status with lead user the US Marine

Our data shows 26 combat-rated examples as being in the service's inventory, supported by another 11 aircraft which are allocated as training assets.

The USAF should follow suit in declaring IOC readiness towards the end of 2016, with the conventional take-off and landing F-35A. Its first "combat-coded" pair of Lightning IIs were received earlier this year in advance of the development.

Other boosts for the F-35 programme have included full commitments from Norway and the UK - respectively for 48 and 138 frontline examples - and production examples are under contract for these nations, plus Israel, Italy, Japan and the three US services. However, the election of a new government in Canada has cast doubt on Ottawa's long-held commitment to the type, and Lockheed's rivals are also sniffing opportunities to potentially edge the F-35 out of the picture in nations like Belgium.

Against this backdrop, Lockheed and the US programme office can be expected to mount a major campaign to showcase the F-35 during 2016, with an appearance at the Roval International Air Tattoo Farnborough air show all but certain.

While the F-35 continues to make progress towards operational utility, 2015 was a remarkable year for one of the fighter sector's more proven products. After years of campaign disappointments, Dassault in February secured its first export order for the Rafale then two months later its second. A first batch of three, twin-seat examples has been supplied to Egypt, under the nation's 24-unit deal, while Qatar is to acquire 36.

FRENCH SUCCESS

India also has established a pending requirement for 36 of the type, having dramatically downgraded the fleet expectations of its medium multirole combat aircraft requirement. But no contract has yet been signed.

The Eurofighter consortium appears poised for success with its third Middle Eastern customer, with Kuwait announcing a pending deal for 28 Typhoons - the final details for which are being worked out with the Italian government. Success could mean the end of Boeing's hopes of selling its productionthreatened F/A-18E/F Super Hornet to the Kuwait air force, although the company believes a deal could be done regardless of a selection of the European type. The manufacturer is counting on additional orders from the US Navy and potentially other export buyers to extend production of the carrier-optimised type beyond late this decade.

Saab's Gripen has also enjoyed success, with Brazil having finalised a contract for its first 28 NG-model examples, and the first Embraer engineers are in Sweden to develop their skills on the single-engined type. The coming year will see a first flight of the lead example of three prototypes of the E-model version being produced first for Sweden, with final assembly starting recently.

At the heavier end of the spectrum, Northrop Grumman won selection to build the USAF's planned fleet of 100 long-range strike bombers, although the award remains the subject of a challenge from a rejected Boeing and Lockheed team. If confirmed, the proposed $80 billion deal will safeguard Northrop's legacy as a bomber manufacturer, and eventually deliver replacements for the service's veteran Boeing B-52Hs - 77 of which remain in use today - and younger B-1Bs.

The airlift sector has seen the C-17 strategic airlifter exit production, after final unit sales to nations including Australia, Canada and Qatar. With the US type no longer on offer, Airbus Defence & Space has yet to capitalise on export opportunities with its A400M. The European manufacturer is struggling to deliver its promised tactical capabilities, and a fatal accident in May 2015 led to a brief suspension of flights. But operational experience is growing, with five nations now operating the type and Spain to receive its first example during 2016.

AIRLIFT RIVALRY

Discussions over a contract revision covering future delivery rates and the introduction of new capabilities must reach a satisfactory outcome if other nations are to follow the seven launch nations and Malaysia in acquiring the model. Strong competition will be seen in the shape of Lockheed's smaller C-130J, with Atlas operator France having requested the potential purchase of two of the latter transports and two tankers recently.

Embraer's KG-390 took to the air in February, but did not fly again until late October, partly due to a funding crisis in the Brazilian defence ministry. Strong progress is needed if the transport and tanker is to enter service as planned during 2018. Despite the challenges facing the company, Antonov's An-178 also made its debut during 2015, and was present at the Paris and Dubai air shows.

For the first time in several years, the spoils were shared in the tanker sector, with Airbus Defence & Space taking a four-aircraft contract in South Korea with the A330 MRTT and Boeing getting a first international order for its 767-derived KC-46A, with Japan to take three. This rivalry will intensify in 2016, as Boeing anticipates the receipt of a low-rate initial production decision from the USAF.

Greek F-16s participated in multinational exercises with NATO allies and also in Israel

Notable retirements in 2015 included the bulk of the UK's search-and-rescue-tasked Westland Sea Kings, whose services are being assumed by civilian aircraft via the Long SAR programme, and the last of Argentina's Dassault Mirage III and Mirage 5 fighters. The latter's air force must adapt to degraded capability, as an expected deal to acquire upgraded Kfir fighters from Israel Aerospace Industries failed to reach the contract stage.

Excluded from our listing are 770 military fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters recorded as dedicated to VIP transport, and 550 for research and development and experimental activities.

Other exclusions include more than 5,200 aircraft in storage – also counting those involved in or awaiting upgrade – and pistonengined types, on which our database does not hold information.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Flight International's annual World Air Forces directory uses information compiled for Flightglobal's Fleets Analyzer database by Mark Kwiatkowski, Sandra Lewis-Rice, John Maloney and Marc-Antony Payne, and abridged by editor Craig Hoyle for our listings format. Available to subscribers, our database provides users with detailed fleet and orders information, in the majority of cases down to serial-number level. Fleet analysis is provided by Antoine Fafard, from Flightglobal Insight. This produces a wide range of free sponsored reports, covering military, air transport and business aviation topics, through to more specialist studies on the maintenance or aircraft finance sectors. For additional information, or to download other special reports, visit flightglobal.com/insight

Fleet information is divided into these categories: Active: Aircraft in day-to-day use. For some Soviet-era types where only summary information is available, this also includes some non-operational platforms.

Ordered: Aircraft on firm order. Others which are pending purchase approval or contract signature are marked with an asterisk. This category includes current planned order totals, which may be subject to future revision.
