a The discrepancies between this table and a similar table at the Ninth Census as to areas and the number of persons to a square mile are due to the fact that recomputed areas of the states and of the United States have been used at the Tenth Census.

b The area of Alaska is intentionally omitted.

c In computing the number of persons to a square mile in the United States the area of the Indian territory is not considered.

FOREIGN PARENTAGE.

REMARKS ON THE STATISTICS OF FOREIGN PARENTAGE.

TABLE XXVI.—PARENTAGE OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF PERSONS IN THE UNITED STATES HAVING ONE OR BOTH PARENTS FOREIGN-BORN; ALSO NUMBER OF FOREIGN-BORN PERSONS HAVING BOTH PARENTS NATIVE BORN, WITH SUMMARIES FOR 35 STATES AND TERRITORIES AND THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: 1880.

TABLE XXVII.—PARENTAGE OF PERSONS RESIDING IN CERTAIN SPECIFIED STATES AND TERRITORIES HAVING ONE OR BOTH PARENTS FOREIGN-BORN, WITH THE NUMBER OF PERSONS FOREIGN-BORN HAVING NATIVE PARENTS: 1880.

REMARKS ON THE STATISTICS OF FOREIGN PARENTAGE.

Since 1850 the number of persons of foreign birth has been ascertained at each census of the United States.

In 1870 the number of persons, whether themselves born abroad or in the United States, one or both of whose parents were foreigners, was sought to be ascertained. The results showed that, while there were in that year 5,567,229 persons resident in the United States who were born in other countries, there were 10,521,233 residents who had a foreign father, 10,105,627 who had a foreign mother, 9,734,845 who had both parents foreign, and 10,892,015 who had one or both parents foreign. It will, of course, be understood that the last four sums are not to be added together for any statistical purpose. For example, the third sum, 9,734,845, is repeated four times, constituting a part of each of the other three sums given. The outside limit of foreign parentage is the last sum, 10,892,015, which comprises all persons either of whose parents were of foreign birth, and this number, it will be observed, includes all, or very nearly all, the 5,567,229 persons who were themselves born in other countries. If we say all, then there were 5,324,786 persons resident in the United States in 1870, and themselves born in the United States, who had one or both parents foreign.

The statistics of foreign parentage for 1870, however, gave no clue to the contribution made to this total by the several foreign countries appearing in the tables of foreign birth; i. e., there was nothing to show how many persons had German fathers or German mothers, how many Irish fathers or Irish mothers, etc.

In compiling the census of 1880 a very elaborate tabulation was undertaken, in order to secure the ratios of contribution to the population foreign in the second degree made by each principal foreign country. For this purpose the populations of 28 states, 7 territories, and the District of Columbia were tallied according to a highly complicated form, in order to secure the ratios desired. The results appear in the following table, which embraces an aggregate population of 26,354,124, and a total foreign population of 2,673,217, distributed among the several principal foreign nationalities as follows: Irish, 686,322; Germans, 661,369; British, 302,484; Scandinavians, 218,165; British Americans, 340,656; and persons born in other countries, 464,221.

The main facts are, that in the body of population embraced in this table, comprising, as it does, 26,354,124 of the 50,155,783 inhabitants of the United States, there were 5,529,331 persons who had a foreign father, 5,223,497 who had a foreign mother, 4,994,017 who had both parents foreign, and 5,758,811 who had one or both parents foreign. There also appear 13,307 persons of foreign birth, residents of the United States, who had parents both native born.

It appears that for every 1,000 persons born in Ireland there were 2,442 who had an Irish father and 2,387 who had an Irish mother; for every 1,000 persons born in Germany there were 2,483 who had a German father and 2,306 who had a German mother; for every 1,000 persons born in Great Britain there were 2,223 who had a British father and 1,941 who had a British mother; for every 1,000 persons born in Scandinavia there were 1,690 who had a Scandinavian father and 1,671 who had a Scandinavian mother; for every 1,000 persons born in British America there were 1,310 who had a British American father and 1,292 who had a British American mother; and for every 1,000 persons born in all other foreign countries there were 1,559 who had a father and 1,439 who had a mother born in countries other than those designated.

The application of these ratios to the total number of persons residing within the United States who were born in each of the specified foreign countries would yield the following results:

Persons having Irish fathers	4,529,523	Persons having Irish mothers	4,448,421
Persons having German fathers	4,863,842	Persons having German mothers	4,557,630
Persons having British fathers	2,030,808	Persons having British mothers	1,790,200
Persons having Scandinavian fathers	635,405	Persons having Scandinavian mothers	631,900
Persons having British American fathers	939,247	Persons having British American mothers	931,408
Persons having fathers born in countries other than those specified ..	1,921,485	Persons having mothers born in countries other than those specified ..	1,226,113
Persons having native fathers and foreign mothers	573,434	Persons having native mothers and foreign fathers	1,337,604
Foreign persons having both parents native	33,252	Foreign persons having both parents native	33,252
Total	14,955,996	Total	14,955,996

In addition to the states and territories embraced in this compilation, the statistics of foreign parentage for the city of New York were also obtained, with the following results:

Examination of this and the tables following (pages 678-692) shows several facts of interest.

First. The predominance, in every instance but Arizona—in most cases the decided predominance—of the number of persons having native mothers but foreign fathers over the number of those having native fathers but foreign mothers. It is, of course, evident that this is due to the fact that our immigration is predominantly of males, much larger numbers of unmarried men than of unmarried women coming to seek their fortunes among us.

Secondly. We note that the tendency to secure a continually higher proportion of persons having foreign parents to the number of persons themselves of foreign birth, which would be reasonably anticipated, as the effect of a birth-rate rising as we go westward is offset, more or less completely, by the shorter term of residence of the foreigners found in the newer states. Thus, the birth-rate of Minnesota is far above that of Massachusetts, and on this account it might be anticipated that 1,000 persons living in Minnesota would be represented in the census by a much larger number of children having parents of foreign birth than the same number of foreigners in Massachusetts. And such would be the case after an equal term of residence in the two states; but the average term of residence within the United States of a given body of foreigners in Minnesota might be only five years, while the average term of a corresponding body in Massachusetts might be ten years, or even fifteen, the foreign citizenship of Massachusetts belonging to a much earlier period of immigration. The higher apparent fecundity of one foreign element of the population than of another may, in some instances, be explained in the same way. Thus we have said that for every 1,000 persons born in Germany and living in the United States there were 2,483 of our people who had a German father and 2,306 who had a German mother, while for every 1,000 persons born in Scandinavia and living in the United States there were but 1,690 who had a Scandinavian father and but 1,671 who had a Scandinavian mother. This does not, however, of itself alone, establish a lower degree of fecundity among the Scandinavians than among the Germans; it must be taken into account that the bulk of the Scandinavian immigration is much the more recent.

Thirdly. We note very different aptitudes in the several foreign elements of our population for intermarriage with the native population. It is also to be noted that the tendency to intermarriage is sometimes of widely varying force as we pass from one section of the country to another. Generally speaking, there is a freer intermarriage of the foreign with the native population as we pass from east to west, and as we pass from north to south. Thus, the Irish intermarry but little with natives in the northeast. In Massachusetts, while there are 247,822 persons born on our own soil who have both an Irish father and an Irish mother, there are only 14,978 who, having an Irish father, have an American mother. In Rhode Island the respective numbers are 36,916 and 2,769; in New Hampshire, 13,600 and 883; in Vermont, 15,874 and 2,443; in Connecticut, 82,952 and 4,919. But when we pass to the south we find very different proportions obtaining. The Irish there resident are few, but those who are found there intermarry freely with the native population. Thus, in Alabama, while there are 3,271 persons having both an Irish father and an Irish mother, there are 2,498 who, having an Irish father, have an American mother. In Texas the respective numbers are 5,992 and 4,529; in Mississippi, 2,542 and 2,221; in Tennessee, 6,993 and 3,449; in Maryland, 25,412 and 6,929. Whether this greater freedom of intermarriage be due to the fact that in the south the Irish are found scattered widely among the population, so that they cannot form communities by themselves, finding their own society within themselves, but are forced by their situation into fuller individual contact with the natives, can only be conjectured.

In much the same way as we pass westward, though the Irish here found are no longer few, as at the south, we find evidences of a much freer intermarriage. Thus, in Missouri, while there are 56,546 persons born on our soil who have both an Irish father and an Irish mother, there are 14,606 who have an Irish father and an American mother. In West Virginia the respective numbers are 9,474 and 4,320; in California, 58,315 and 7,926; in Minnesota, 40,459 and 6,231; in Wisconsin, 68,681 and 10,794; in Nebraska, 12,680 and 3,270; in Oregon, 2,762 and 1,140.

The difference between the several foreign elements as to freedom of intermarriage with natives is also very marked. We have given many figures relating to the Irish in this respect. There is but one other important element which manifests an equally strong indisposition to intermarriage, viz, the Scandinavian. This element appears in an important degree in but few of the states and territories embraced in the following tables, but in these the effects of intermarriage are slight. Thus, in Wisconsin, while there are 42,728 persons born on our soil having both a Scandinavian father and a Scandinavian mother, there are but 2,083 persons having a Scandinavian father and an American mother. In Dakota the respective numbers are 10,071 and 418; in Minnesota, 69,492 and 1,906.

This indisposition of the Scandinavian element to intermarry with natives may be attributed to several causes: 1. The strangeness of the language. 2. The newness of the immigration, this being the last element to acquire importance upon our lists of foreign arrivals. 3. The fact of settlement largely in colonies or compact bodies of population of their own race only. It will be noted that in some of the states and territories where the Scandinavians are few and where it is notorious that they are thoroughly mingled with the general population, the proportion of intermarriages is not a low one.

The Germans furnish an interesting study in the respect under consideration. Marrying predominantly, as is natural, among their own people, there is yet a very high degree of freedom everywhere observable in yielding to considerations of personal adaptiveness, of affection, of pecuniary interest or of propinquity, in mating for life, in spite of differences of speech. Thus, taking all the instances in our tables where the number of Germans is considerable, we have the proportion of those born on our soil of German fathers and mothers to those born of a German father and American mother as follows:

Minnesota, 78,255 and 8,118; Wisconsin, 226,325 and 19,068; Texas, 40,650 and 8,446; West Virginia, 10,176 and 3,850; Connecticut, 14,043 and 2,173; Kentucky, 45,126 and 9,924; California, 33,393 and 7,343; Nebraska, 27,849 and 5,072; Louisiana, 23,066 and 5,577.

It will be seen that, in several of the foregoing instances, there is one person born on our soil of a German father and an American mother to about five persons born on our soil having both a German father and a German mother.

Two other of the foreign elements embraced in these tables exhibit a very high degree of affinity for women native to this country. The number of natives of the British isles who seek wives as well as homes in the United States is shown to be very large by the following comparison:

Contrast in this table the parsimony with which marriages take place between native women and British American men, where the latter are present as factory hands, e. g., in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire, with the liberality with which such marriages are contracted where the British Americans are engaged in lumbering or in agriculture.

We have thus far spoken almost exclusively of the marriage of men of foreign birth with women native to the United States. The following tables show for each of certain states, and also for the city of New York, the number of persons having mothers born in the United States, in Ireland, in Germany, etc., to each 10,000 persons having fathers born in the countries specified.

FOREIGN PARENTAGE.

TABLE XXVII.—PARENTAGE OF PERSONS RESIDING IN CERTAIN SPECIFIED STATES AND TERRITORIES HAVING ONE OR BOTH PARENTS FOREIGN-BORN, WITH THE NUMBER OF PERSONS FOREIGN-BORN HAVING NATIVE PARENTS: 1880.

The following note will assist in a reading of the tables of foreign parentage:

The first or upper portions of these tables relate to the parentage of persons residing in the state who were born in the United States and had one or both parents of foreign birth. The lower portions relate, in like manner, to the parent nativity of persons who were themselves foreign-born.

To find the number of native-born persons having fathers of a given nationality designated in this table, look for that nationality in the upper list of countries which appear in the second column, headed "Having fathers born in—", and on the corresponding line of the column, on the extreme right, headed "Total persons", will be found the desired number.

The natiivities of the mothers of the persons thus represented are indicated on the corresponding lines in the several subdivisions of the column headed "Having mothers born in—".

Thus, for example, the number of persons residing in Alabama on the 1st day of June, 1880, whose fathers were born in Ireland, was 5,973. Of these, 2,498 had native-born mothers; 3,271 had mothers born in Ireland; 52 had mothers born in the German Empire; 113 had mothers born in Great Britain; none had mothers born in Scandinavia; 14 had mothers born in British America; and 25 had mothers born in other countries.

In like manner, by referring to the lower set of figures in the same table, can be found the parent nativity of the persons residing in the state of Alabama who were themselves born in a foreign country. Included among these are 53 persons who, though of foreign birth, were born of native parents.

For the purposes of these tables, the term Scandinavia is used to include Sweden and Norway only.
