GREETINGS FROM THE McDONALD'S CORPORATION

Jeff Stratton
President
McDonald's USA, LLC

April 2, 2014

Welcome to the 2014 McDonald's All American Games! The McDonald's All American Games, which benefit Ronald McDonald House Charities (RHMC), were first played in 1978. Since then, many well-known and record-breaking basketball stars have showcased their talents here, including LeBron James, Kevin Garnett, Michael Jordan, Shaquille O'Neal, and Candace Parker.

More than 1,000 players from 44 states and the District of Columbia were nominated for the 37th Annual McDonald's All American Games. Tonight's players have exhibited true sports excellence and proven themselves winners on the court, in the classroom and in their communities.

We're delighted to celebrate their success. But we're also here to salute this event's unsung winners: the children and families who benefit from the more than $10 million the Games have raised for RMHC chapters across the country.

One more important group deserves recognition, too: our many local franchisees, regional and corporate staff, countless volunteers, and the great City of Chicago. Your tireless dedication has helped make the McDonald's All American Games the premier high school sporting event in the world.

Enjoy your night and on with the Games!

Good evening Chicago!

Tonight we are proud to showcase the 37th Annual McDonald's All American Games at the United Center! This is the fourth consecutive year in Chicago and we are grateful to the city, the fans in attendance, and the media for their continued support of the nation's premier high school all-star game.

We also want to thank McDonald's Operators of Chicagoland and Northwest Indiana, our great sponsors, and our friends at Ronald McDonald House Charities (RMHC).

And we offer heartfelt appreciation to the McDonald's All American Selection Committee, led by Hall-of-Fame Coach Morgan Wootten, for putting another outstanding team on the floor.

On behalf of my Steering Committee, who make the Games go, congratulations to the 48 players who, after tonight, will join the exclusive club of McDonald's All American alumni.

Enjoy tonight's action and be sure to follow the McDonald's All American Games on Twitter @McDAAG!

Sincerely,

GREETINGS FROM THE CITY OF CHICAGO

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
CITY OF CHICAGO

RAHM EMANUEL
MAYOR

April 2, 2014

Dear Friends:

As Mayor and on behalf of the City of Chicago, it is my pleasure to welcome everyone gathered for the 2014 McDonald's All American Games.

Boasting a distinguished history that dates back almost 40 years, the McDonald's All American Basketball Team selects and showcases the top high school senior basketball players in the nation. Participation in sports and athletic activities promote healthy lifestyles and academic excellence among students by providing them with educational, social, and physical enrichment. Additionally, it integrates the principles of leadership, teamwork, respect, and commitment. When we empower young people to strive for a brighter future, we strengthen our communities for generations to come.

These games represent a time when we can all witness the sportsmanship and skill demonstrated by these student-athletes. Our city has a rich history and deep love for the sport of basketball. I commend the players for their dedication to sports and encourage them to continue learning and taking part in activities that equip them with the necessary skills to succeed.

I hope that those visiting our great city take time to experience some of the special places in Chicago. Our historic neighborhoods, iconic skyline, and incredible lakefront invite you to explore all Chicago has to offer. I hope you have a chance to sample our distinguished restaurants, tour our great universities, and visit our world-class museums during your stay.

On behalf of the people of Chicago, please accept my best wishes to every participant for a spirited and successful competition.

Sincerely,

Mayor

Rahm Emanuel

DRIBBLING AND DRIVING WITH LUIS

Bounce.

 Between the legs. (Nice.)
 Bounce.
 Bounce.
 Shot ... fade away ... swish.

Luis knows how to make an entrance; how to dribble with style down the hallways of the Ronald McDonald House of Southern New Jersey; how to attract a crowd.

Luis is one of the all-stars at the House that he calls home when he and his family are visiting Shriner's Hospital for Children to receive treatments and therapy for his leg, which he lost at the age of two as a result of a rare bone condition.

Luis, an energetic 9-year-old, and his parents, Joana and Angel, continue to find hope, healing, and an encouraging team of staff, volunteers and other guest families who have provided endless support to keep Luis fighting...and dribbling.

"We arrived with anguish and fear, but there was always someone waiting to say 'hello or have a good day,' someone to help us take the pain away. The House made living possible during a very tumultuous time. They had everything we needed – comfortable rooms, delicious food and caring staff and volunteers. It didn't matter where we came from, what language we spoke or that we couldn't afford to pay; we were welcomed with open hearts. Above all else, Luis realized his dream."

He dreams that someday he will be on court, playing in front of thousands, nailing that three-pointer at the buzzer, hearing his name being chanted by the crowd just like the McDonald's All American basketball players. And, thanks to the caring support

Nine-year-old Luis and his parents, Joana and Angel, stay at the Ronald McDonald House of Southern New Jersey when Luis gets treatments and therapy for his leg. With support from the staff and volunteers, it is there that Luis realized his dream to play basketball in front of thousands – like the 2014 McDonald's All Americans.

THE TEAM BEHIND THE TEAM

Coaching legend John Wooden (1910-2010) served as Chairman of the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Games from 1978 until his death in 2010. Legendary coach Morgan Wootten, a long-time friend of Wooden, chairs the Selection Committee. Coach Wooden, the UCLA coaching legend, guided the Bruins for 27 spectacular years, a period unparalleled in college basketball history. He retired from coaching after leading the Bruins to their 10th NCAA championship in 1975. Coach Wooden previously served as the Advisory Committee Chairman for the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Games since 1977. Known as the "Wizard of Westwood," Wooden holds a lifetime winning percentage of .815, in addition to records for most consecutive men's victories (88); most NCAA championships (10); most consecutive NCAA championships (7); most consecutive NCAA tournament victories (38); and most undefeated PAC-8 conference championships (8). No other PAC-8 (now PAC-12) team has ever gone undefeated in conference play. In 1932, while at Purdue University, he was named College Basketball Player of the Year and received the Big Ten Medal for Proficiency in Scholarship and Athletics. He later had successful coaching stints at South Bend Central High School and Indiana State University before departing for UCLA. Two awards have been established in Coach Wooden's honor: the John Wooden Award for the outstanding collegiate basketball star, given by the Los Angeles Athletic Club; and the John R. Wooden Award presented to the outstanding player of the McDonald's All American Game.

Since 1977, Morgan Wootten has served as Selection Committee Chairman for the McDonald's All American Games. In his 46-year coaching career, Coach Wootten earned recognition as one of America's winningest coaches at any level - including high school, college or professional - with a total of 1,274 wins. He led his DeMatha High School team to five National Championships, the No. 1 ranking in the Washington, DC area 22 times and has won 33 Washington Catholic League Championships. DeMatha won 20 games or more in 44 consecutive seasons under Wootten. He surpassed the 1,000 victory mark in 1993 and it was his 1965 DeMatha team that broke the 71-game winning streak of Lew Alcindor's (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's) Power Memorial team. In October of 2000, Wootten received the most prestigious basketball honor for all of his accomplishments, being elected into the James Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame. The Morgan Wootten Award, created in 1997, recognizes the nation's top high school basketball seniors who demonstrate outstanding character, exhibit leadership, and embody the values of being a student-athlete in both his and her school work and community affairs.

John Wooden (far left) and Morgan Wootten headed the All American Selection Committee together for 33 years. Wootten continues to lead the Selection Committee today.

THE STARS OF TOMORROW SHINE TODAY IN CHICAGO

Today at the United Center in Chicago, IL, the future of college and professional basketball will be on display helping to raise money for Ronald McDonald House Charities® (RMHC®). The 37th annual McDonald's All American® Boys Game and 13th annual Girls Game will showcase the next generation of basketball superstars.

This year's elite group of 48 promises to carry on the tradition that the very first McDonald's All American Boys Team established more than 35 years ago and that the first Girls Team began in 2002. The McDonald's All American High School Basketball Teams have annually included the country's best high school senior basketball players.

This elite group of McDonald's All American alumni includes Magic Johnson, Michael Jordan, Kevin Garnett, LeBron James, Carmelo Anthony, Kobe Bryant, Derrick Rose, Kevin Durant, Maya Moore and Candace Parker. Odds are good that future NCAA, NBA and WNBA superstars are playing in tonight's Games, as well.

THE BEST OF THE BEST

Since 1977, the top boys high school basketball seniors nationwide have been selected to the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Team. One year after the first Boys Team was named; the McDonald's All American Game was launched. Ever since that first McDonald's All American Game was played in Philadelphia in 1978, the event has provided the only true national showcase for the best young male basketball players in the land. And, with the addition of the Girls Game in 2002, the same holds true for females.

Over 1,100 high school athletes have been named to the McDonald's All American Teams. From the alumni, more than 96 percent have played college basketball for Division I programs. In fact, at least one McDonald's All American contributed to an NCAA Championship in 34 of the past 35 years. In all, 104 different alumni have contributed to a NCAA title, and 64 alumni have played on NBA championship teams. In the past six summer Olympic Games, a total of 30 former

THE SELECTION PROCESS

Approximately 1,000 top high school boys and girls basketball players from across the country are nominated to the McDonald's All American Teams. A committee of prominent boys and girls basketball experts select the final team members. Legendary UCLA coach John Wooden was involved in the Games since its inception and served as chairman of the McDonald's All American Games and as an advisor to the selection committee. Retired DeMatha High School Basketball Coach Morgan Wootten serves as chairman of the selection committee.

THE GAMES

Players selected to the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Teams are invited to play in the McDonald's All American Games, which brings them together to compete against one another in an East vs. West contest.

THE CHARITY

Each year, proceeds from the McDonald's All American Games benefit Ronald McDonald House Charities and other children's organizations, with funds raised to date totaling millions of dollars. The beneficiary of the 2014 All American Games is Ronald McDonald House Charities of Chicagoland and Northwest Indiana. Previous McDonald's All American Games have raised money for local RMHC Chapters and the Ronald McDonald House®, Ronald McDonald Family Room® and Ronald McDonald Care Mobile® programs, sickle cell anemia research, establishment of the Ronald McDonald Childhood Cancer Research Clinic at Atlanta's Emory University, the Child Life Program at UCLA's Medical Center - Children's Center and the United Negro College Fund.

Success is never final,
failure is never fatal.
It's courage that counts.

CHICAGO: SECOND CITY TO NONE

APRIL 2, 2014

BY CHRISTOPHER LAWLOR

CHICAGO – Forever tagged the “Second City,” Chicago’s historic namesake has never applied to basketball or its players who bring toughness, characterized by a strong, firm approach that oozes with resolve.

This town has a basketball legacy that starts on the asphalt playgrounds, extends to hardwood of the Catholic and Public school leagues, drives under the El to DePaul’s campus and swoops up to Chicago’s beloved Madhouse on Madison. Its fan base is passionate and, well, fanatical. There’s no better place to stage America’s most famous high school event than in a city that values perfect form on a jump-shot, an emphatic dunk and properly executed backdoor cut.

Basketball rules the Chicagoland area sports scene and there’s history aplenty to back it up. Listen to 2013 boys’ basketball national player of the year and he’ll divulge what separates a Chicago hoopster from the rest.

“You better be tough or your opponent will take advantage of you and overpower you,” said 2013 McDonald’s All American Jabari Parker of Simeon Career Academy, who played for Duke University this year.

Mike Flaherty of Mount Carmel, who coached the 2013 Boys’ West squad, agrees.

“Players bring a toughness that no matter the differential in talent level the competitiveness permeates. Our teams may not have the same talent but we won’t back down and (we) play with a level of efficiency, limiting our turnovers and playing smart.”

Chicago’s basketball legacy features iconic names—Jordan, Mikan, Candace, Isiah, KG, Aguirre—and history—six NBA World Championships during the 1990s, several state high school champions, and an NCAA champion in 1963. It endured heartache in 1984 when prodigy Ben Wilson (of Simeon) was taken from us too early. It values a man with a moral compass, George Ireland, who helped change the game forever, advancing integration.

The most recent chapter is authored by talented high school seniors who are McDonald’s All Americans. In 2011, the nation’s premier high school sporting event returned to Illinois after nearly three decades hopscotching around the nation. A record standing-room-only crowd of 20,018 attended the Games. In 2012 and 2013 the turnstiles clicked 16,308 and 15,818 patrons respectively at the United Center. In the four Chicago appearances, the McDonald’s All American Games have averaged nearly 17,000 fans—by far the most of any host city.

Of the 79 Illinois McDonald’s All American player selections – third most of all time – 61 are from Chicagoland schools, including 14 of the 15 girls selections.

Dorothy Gaters of Marshall, who coached the Girls West squad in 2011 and is Illinois’ all-time winningest coach with nearly 950 victories and a record eight state titles, said an urban setting is an incubator for basketball talent.

“All you need are a ball and a rim and kids can have hours and hours of fun,” she said.

Antoine Walker of Mt. Carmel High School scored 20 points during the 1994 McDonald’s All American Game at St. John’s Alumni Hall in New York.

The 2011 McDonald's All American Boys Team visits the statue of 1981 McDonald's All American Michael Jordan located outside the United Center.

For the fourth consecutive year, Golden Arch Madness is back in the city where basketball greatness will be on display compliments of 48 of the nation's best. In fact, McDonald's announced in 2012 that the Games would be played at the United Center through 2015.

"If it's springtime, then the 48 best high school basketball players are in Chicago for the McDonald's All American Games," said Douglas Freeland, director of the McDonald's All American Games. "So whether you're rooting for your hometown hero, college recruit or taking in the experience with your family, this annual basketball rite of passage is a can't miss event."

Chicago's influence was evident when four of the 35 Greatest McDonald's All Americans named were local legends. Selected in 2012 in celebration of the 35th Anniversary, Chicago was represented by Isiah Thomas (1979), Glenn "Doc" Rivers (1980), Kevin Garnett (1995) and Derrick Rose (2007).

And that trend of high-profile players continued in January when the 2014 rosters were released. Three of the nation's bluest of blue chip players hail from the Chicagoland area, including two boys who reside within Chicago city limits. Another, Kevon Looney of Hamilton in Milwaukee, Wis., is just a long three-pointer up Interstate 94.

Though there are no girls from Illinois selected this year, Chicagoans Jahliil Okafor of Whitney Young, Cliff Alexander of Curie and Tyler Ulis of Marian Catholic in Chicago Heights will evoke the ooh's and ah's from the United Center faithful on April 2.

Okafor and Ulis will represent the West squad. It's a dream tandem, representing the cerebral Ulis orchestrating the offense as a "pass first" point guard and the 6-10, 265-pound mighty Okafor will own the lane as the nation's top-rated prospect.

"I've only played with Jahliil once and that was in a scrimmage. So I'm really going to savor this opportunity to play with him," said Ulis, a 5-9 whippet who signed with Kentucky. "Even better is that the game is back in Chicago, allowing my family, friends, coaches and teammates a chance to see the game live."

Okafor is one of the most promising recruits in recent years. The Duke-bound true center combines strength, skill, innate moves, soft hands and an interior presence to fuel his team. Playing in the McDonald's All American Game fulfills a dream.

"Being selected to this game means so much to me," he acknowledged. "And getting a chance to finally play at the United Center just makes this game more important and special. Now that I'm in the game, I want to win it. That's me just being competitive."

The beneficiary of Ulis and Okafor is West head coach Frank Allocco of De La Salle in Concord, Calif. Allocco, who played basketball and football at the University of Notre Dame (Class of 1976), has coached several national all-star games, but the McDonald's All American Games is at a different level.

"The game speaks for itself," he said. "It's an unbelievable honor to coach these amazing athletes. Trust me, I've done my homework on the West players and we'll be ready to play. In the end, though, it's about the kids having fun and showcasing their talent. I'm just here to manage it."

If the East expects to win, Alexander and Looney will factor in prominently.

Alexander, a 6-9 physical post, played on the summer circuit with the Mac Irvin Fire and signed with the Kansas Jayhawks. He is a double-double player: A dependable scorer and ferocious rebounder. In the up-and-down style that most McDonald's All American Games feature, Alexander's endless motor, transition dunks and length will please the locals.

"Even though our high schools have an intense rivalry, we're friends," Okafor said of Alexander. "We've played against each other and were teammates this summer. Having a big like Cliff in the same city and league [Chicago Public League] makes both of us better. We pushed each other, and not too many cities can say they have two quality posts."

The affable Looney, who is headed to UCLA, relishes the opportunity to play with Alexander and brings versatility to the East team.

"I'll play inside or outside, rebound or shoot threes; whatever it takes to win," Looney said. "I've watched the McDonald's All American Game on TV for years, and getting here was a goal of mine. Getting a chance to play with all the players you grew up with at camp and tournaments is the culmination of a high school career."

Though the McDonald's All Americans have an appetite for success, here's food for thought from one of the greats.

Jay Williams, a McDonald's All American, national champion at Duke and first round pick of the Bulls in 2002, felt his McDonald's All American experience was a "confidence boost," but cautioned:

"When I played against the so-called top point guards in the country, I knew I belonged here. Then you see 6-11 Jonathan Bender dribbling with guard skills and hitting three-pointers and suddenly it made me think, 'I have to get better,'" he said. "A McDonald's All American has the talent but how hard are you willing to work to set yourself apart? That's probably the most important thing a player here can ask himself or herself after you leave the games."

Anthony Davis (right, 32) of Perspectives Charter High School competes for the opening tip in the 2011 McDonald's All American Games at the United Center.

McDONALD'S® MOMENTS

GREAT MOMENTS FROM THE GAMES

You never know when the next great McDonald's moment will occur.

From MVPs to memorable dunks, Chicagoland players have figured prominently in McDonald's All American Games since the beginning. Here are five magical moments that area hoop aficionados can appreciate.

- In the early 1980s, two players with local ties were named game MVPs. In 1980, the game was staged at the Oakland Coliseum. 8,429 witnessed two Chicagoland products, Russell Cross of Manley Career Academy and Glenn "Doc" Rivers bring their A-games. Both players dropped in 20 points apiece as the West won, 135-111. The 6-10 Cross, who later earned All-Big Ten honors for the Purdue Boilermakers, bagged the MVP award. Rivers would go on to star at Marquette and in the NBA coached the Boston Celtics to an NBA Championship in 2008. Rivers had six McDonald's All Americans on his Celtics roster that year.

(L-R) Chairman Morgan Wootten recognizes Austin Rivers and Elizabeth Williams on winning the 2011 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year Award alongside 1980 McDonald's All American and former Proviso East star, Doc Rivers, and Director of the McDonald's All American Games, Douglas Freeland.

- The Game made its first appearance in Illinois in 1982, a mere jump shot from the corporate headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill. No surprise it attracted a then-record 15,836 fans to the Rosemont Horizon (now Allstate Arena) as a hometown hero put an exclamation point on his schoolboy career. Efreem Winters, who played for legendary coach Landon "Sonny" Cox at King College Prep on the South Side, scored 19 points to land MVP honors. Even more gratifying was that the future Illini helped the West capture a 103-84 win against an East team, featuring future pros Billy Thompson, Johnny Dawkins and Brad Daugherty. The late Wayman Tisdale was the signature player on the West but the 6-10 Winters was the star of stars that night.

- Kevin Garnett was a hoop legend at Farragut Academy. He also turned in an MVP performance at the 1995 Game at the Kiel Center in St. Louis. KG dazzled the crowd with a double-double, 18 points and 11 rebounds. Two months later he bypassed college and was a lottery pick of the Timberwolves.

- In Oklahoma City, the 2004 game was made almost secondary when a precocious female dared to take on her male counterparts in the POWERADE Jam Fest. The willowy, 6-4 Candace Parker of Naperville Central wowed a packed gymnasium at Midwest City High School, winning the contest while adding her name to list of winners, which includes high-fliers LeBron James, Carmelo Anthony and Vince Carter.

- The 1979 game was truly a classic. Perhaps the greatest collection of talent, which included: Sam Bowie, Ralph Sampson, future Bulls sharpshooter John Paxson, Byron Scott and Dominique Wilkins. Chicago featured Teddy Grubbs from King; Isiah Thomas from St. Joseph's in Westchester; and Raymond McCoy from Bloom in Chicago Heights. Both guards were touted as top-rated point guards. In those days, the citywide debate centered on who was the superior playmaker. West-Siders backed Thomas, while McCoy was the pride of the South Side.

DA BULLS

GREAT MOMENTS FROM THE GAMES

"Chicago is one of the best cities in the country for basketball ... no, one of the best in the world," Williams said. "When you step on the floor of the United Center as a player you realize it's a special place. The fans are loyal."

The Bulls joined the NBA for the start of the 1966-67 season and though they had marginal success, reaching the Western Conference finals in 1975, things changed forever in 1984.

"With the third pick of the 1984 NBA, the Chicago Bulls select Michael Jordan from the University of North Carolina," the commissioner proclaimed.

Seven years later Jordan and the Bulls captured their first of six titles. Jordan teamed with Scottie Pippen and Coach Phil Jackson, forming the core, which dominated the league while elevating Chicago globally.

The champion Bulls called the Chicago Stadium home for the first trifecta of championships (1991-93) but in 1994 the scene shifted to the United Center or "The House that Michael Built."

Jordan's second stint with the Bulls (1996-98) authored a second three-peat of the decade, defeating the Super Sonics and Jazz (twice) for an even half-dozen Larry O'Brien NBA Championship Trophies.

The following McDonald's All Americans contributed to the Bulls' six NBA Championships

'90-'91 Michael Jordan ('81); John Paxson ('79)

'91-'92 Michael Jordan ('81); John Paxson ('79); Scott Williams ('86)

'92-'93 Michael Jordan ('81); John Paxson ('79); Scott Williams ('86)

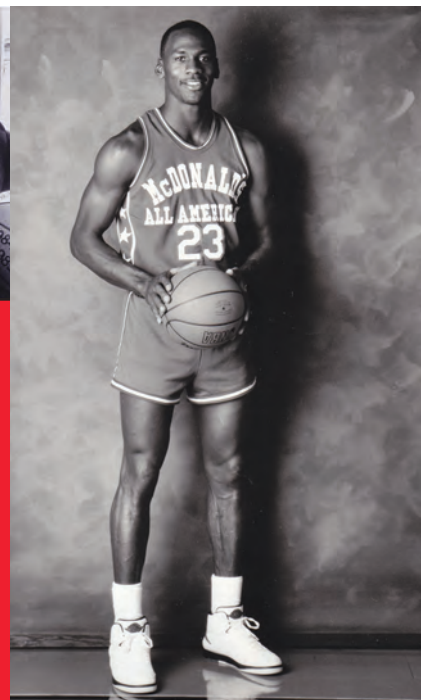

'95-'96 Michael Jordan ('81); Bill Wennington ('81)

'96-'97 Michael Jordan ('81); Bill Wennington ('81); Brian Williams ('87)

97-'98 Michael Jordan ('81); Bill Wennington ('81); Keith Booth ('93)

1981 McDonald's All American and six-time NBA Champion, Michael Jordan, poses with former President and CEO of the Basketball Hall of Fame, Jim O'Brien. Jordan scored a then Games-record 30 points in a 96-95 East victory at the 1981 Game in Wichita.

Bob Geoghan, the founder of the McDonald's All American Games, recalled Jordan as a skinny senior in 1981 when he arrived to Wichita, Kan., site of the Game.

"Michael wasn't even considered the best player there. He was overshadowed by three centers – Patrick Ewing, Stuart Gray and Greg Dreiling. Michael scores 30 points in the game and wasn't even named the MVP. He didn't have that superstar tag coming into the game and who knew what he'd eventually do. The rest is history; he became a global icon."

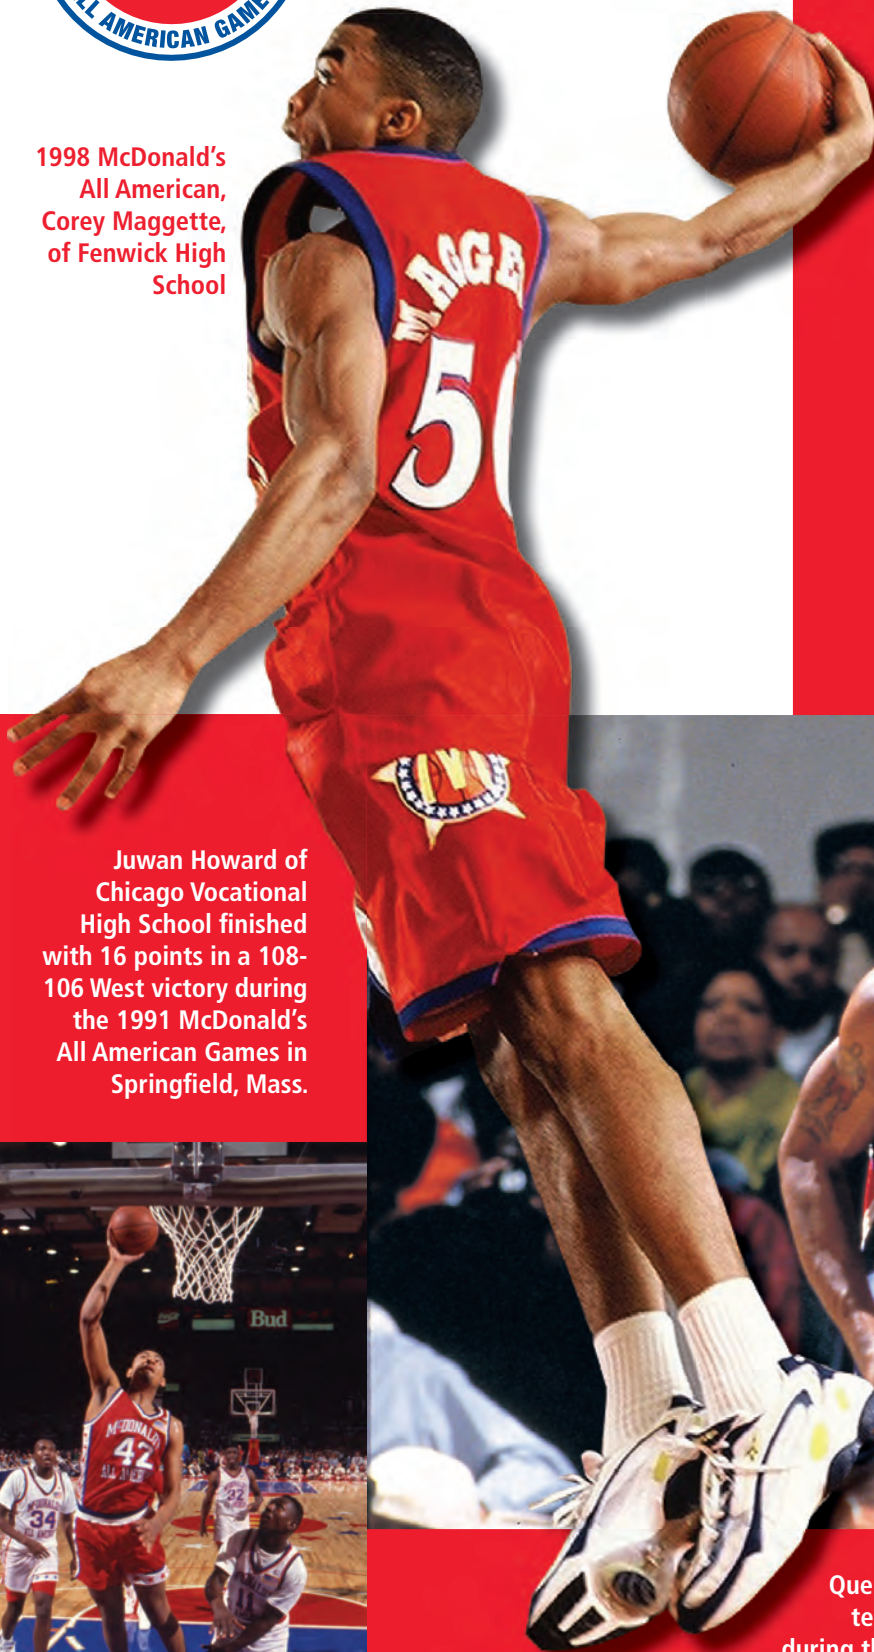

The Bulls aren't the only NBA team or the first from Chicago. The Washington Wizards were originally the Chicago Packers for the 1961-62 season —calling home the International Amphitheatre on South Halsted Street— before changing their name to the Zephyrs and moving to the Chicago Coliseum. The franchise went 43-117 in their two seasons before bolting prior to the 1963-64 season and becoming the Baltimore Bullets. In Chicago, Don Nelson, Walt Bellamy and Terry Dischinger were notable players.

The women's game also has its place in the basketball annals. The Chicago Hustle played the Milwaukee Does in the first women's professional basketball game in the United States on December 9, 1978. Current DePaul coach Doug Bruno, an excitable 27-year-old, coached the Hustle to a 92-87 win in the inaugural game of the Women's Professional Basketball League. Bruno's squad tied for the Midwest Division crown in his first year but he departed for college a year later. The WPBL lasted only three seasons.

In 2011, DePaul's McGrath-Phillips Arena court was renamed Doug Bruno Court, honoring a pioneer in women's athletics. Bruno, a DePaul alumnus (Class of 1973) and student-athlete under Ray Meyer, is approaching 600 career victories.

COLLEGIATE LOOK

Since its inception, the McDonald's Games have sent alums to Chicago area colleges. There is history with DePaul and Northwestern, including a tie-in to last year's girls' game.

In Evanston, Nia Coffey, a sleek forward from Hopkins High School in Minnetonka, Minn., became the third female to sign with Northwestern. Previously Amy Jaeschke of New Trier (2007) and Morgan Jones of Lake Mary, Fla. (2011), played in the game. Walker Lambiotte (1985) and Michael Thompson of Providence Catholic in New Lenox (2002) represented the men's program.

DePaul, considered Chicago's main contribution to NCAA basketball—two Final Four appearances, NIT title in 1945, Ray Meyer, George Mikan and nearly 1,400 wins—features eight McDonald's All Americans in its rich lineage. Seven were from the city, including Mark Aguirre from Westinghouse High (1978), and most recently Andre Brown from Leo (2000), who later played in the NBA with the Heat.

Juwan Howard of Chicago Vocational High School finished with 16 points in a 108-106 West victory during the 1991 McDonald's All American Games in Springfield, Mass.

Quentin Richardson of Whitney Young High School scored a team high 19 points for the West squad in a 128-112 loss during the 1998 McDonald's All American Games in Norfolk, Va. Richardson would go on to star in two seasons at DePaul before becoming a first round draft pick of the Los Angeles Clippers in 2000.

CHARITABLE ARM

In 1977, Geoghan created the McDonald's All American Game, applying the same event model he launched with the Capital Classic. He courted future Hall of Fame coaches John Wooden and Morgan Wootten to bring credibility.

"The main idea was to raise money for the Ronald McDonald House," Geoghan said. "The McDonald's owner/operator group has always been behind it. They promote it and help gather volunteers but the players really make the games go and the fans turn out to watch them."

Wootten, the Hall of Fame coach retired from DeMatha Catholic High School in Hyattsville, Md., continues to serve as the Selection Committee Chairman.

"There's nothing greater than when healthy young men and women are playing for a cause greater than themselves. What they've really done is touch the lives of others. It's God's work at its best," Wootten said.

The event's significance has not eluded Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel, who no doubt needed to remain keen on the intricacies on basketball when he served as the White House Chief of Staff under former Chicago resident and President Barack Obama.

"I am delighted the McDonald's All American Games will continue to call Chicago home," he said. "These games have been a springboard for countless young men and women to outstanding athletic careers, while raising money for charity and instilling a spirit of scholarship, character and citizenship both on and off the court."

Last year's games were, well, a slam-dunk for the Ronald McDonald House Charities. The 2013 Games raised nearly $470,000, and when coupled with funds from 2011 and 2012 helped construct the nation's largest Ronald McDonald House in downtown Chicago, which opened June 2012. The Chicago house maintains 86 guest rooms, providing over 40,000 family nights, saving families more than $7 million in hotel bills.

Since 1978 the Games have raised more than $10 million for RMHC.

One of the highlights of the week is when the players visit the young patients at the Ronald McDonald House and area hospitals.

(Left) 2011 McDonald's All American of Bolingbrook High School, Ariel Massengale, interacts with a child during her visit to the Oak Lawn Ronald McDonald House. Massengale finished with 13 points and four assists for the East in a 78-66 victory at the United Center.

"It's usually a touching moment," said Doug Porter, CEO of Ronald McDonald House Charities of Chicagoland and Northwest Indiana. "The players realize how fortunate they are when they meet patients the same age. Once they see what we do, it's like one big family."

"I'll tell the players that you can make a difference and some day if you pick a cause, reach out and do some good. Maybe these games are the catalyst for this."

When Williams visited the Ronald McDonald House in 1999, it was an awakening. "I realized life is a gift and it put things into perspective when you saw the children with illness living with it everyday."

The McDonald's Games are the gift that continues to give back. The RMHC benefits, assisting affected families. The generous Chicago basketball community gains, adding another glorious chapter in the basketball tableau while the next generation of teenage prodigies prepare for the 2015 Games.

The city of Chicago's basketball legacy and the McDonald's All American Games have found common ground, both are second to none.

THE FUTURE

Moving forward, Games leadership is confident the next 37 years of the Games will be as successful as the first 37, with an opportunity for growth.

True to its core, the Games will continue to benefit RMHC, but Games leaders have hinted at the possibility of expanding to include regional skills clinics.

While no plans are in place to this point, leadership is eager to jump on the opportunity to positively contribute to dialogue surrounding youth and activity.

"The McDonald's All American Games' reputation of basketball excellence is well-established," said Douglas Freeland, director of the McDonald's All American Games, "Our goal is to continue to raise money for RMHC, contribute to the game of basketball, but also positively impact young people through a core focus on a fun, active lifestyle."

Regardless of plans for expansion, the future is bright for the McDonald's All American Games – as bright as the stars that continue to take the court each and every year.

VOICE OF McDONALD'S CONTESTANT PERFORMS AT TONIGHT'S GAMES

Ashlaé Nelms is a Global Semi-Finalist in the Voice of McDonald's®, a worldwide singing competition open to more than 1.8 million McDonald's restaurant employees. This contest shines the spotlights on the company's most talented singers, offering them the opportunity to realize their hopes and dreams.

Selected from more than 57,000 entries, Ashlaé was among 25 U.S. contestants who became U.S. Semi-Finalists. They made professional studio recordings for the online voting portion of the competition, and more than 550,000 contestant views. Her video was rated among the top three, helping her earn a trip to the 2014 McDonald's Worldwide Convention in Orlando, FL. You can learn more about the Voice of McDonald's at www.voiceofmcdonalds.com.

Ashlaé, a McDonald's restaurant crew person since she was 16, is very proud to represent her hometown of Lawrenceville, Illinois, at the Worldwide Convention. For this nineteen year old, singing is a way of life and her goal in life is to make people happy through her music.

Currently a student at Purdue University, the alma mater of McDonald's CEO Don Thompson, Ashlaé is studying

Ashlaé Nelms

Computer Graphics and Technology. As a sophomore, she already has many musical accomplishments including singing in Purdue's premier female choir, The Purduettes. Additionally, she was selected to sing a solo in Purdue's annual holiday concert, the music department's largest production of the year.

Ashlaé enjoys singing Broadway show tunes and Disney songs with her co-workers at McDonald's. She says "If I'm not singing at work, then there's a problem!" As she moves forward in the competition, she is happy to have the support of her family in Lawrenceville, her McDonald's family and her family at Purdue University.

RANDY NAPIER, WEST HEAD COACH

Perry County Central High School (Bonnyman, KY)
(811-230 Career Record)

Randy Napier is currently in his 32nd season as head coach for Perry County Central High School. During his tenure, he has amassed 811 victories, winning more than 75 percent of his career games. In late 2013, Napier became the winningest girls high school basketball coach in Kentucky with his 794th victory.

Throughout his career, Napier's teams have won 19 district titles, nine regional championships and the Kentucky state championship in 1994. Thanks to his team's success, Napier was named regional coach of the year 11 times and earned Kentucky coach of the year honors in 1994 and 2007. In 2007, he was named a finalist for national coach of the year and in 2014 he was nominated for USA Today National Coach of the Year.

Napier is a member of the Kentucky Association of Basketball Coaches Court of Honor, serving as member of the board of directors for the association from 2007 to 2009. In addition to his coaching position at Perry County Central, Napier was selected as the coach for the girls Kentucky All Stars in 2007-08 and served as director of tryouts for the All Star game from 2009-2012. Joining him on the sideline as assistants will be Kevin Whitman and Jeff Campbell.

ARIEL ATKINS #24

Height: 6-0 • Position: Guard • Duncanville High School, TX
Hometown: Duncanville, TX • PPG: 17.7 • RPG: 6.0 • SPG: 5.1 • College: Texas

Evans College/The Dallas Morning News

Atkins is an athletic and versatile guard that can defend, score and bring down rebounds. Defensively, Atkins is a lock-down defender with the quickness to stay in front of anyone and force turnovers. Offensively, Atkins looks to exploit her defender's weaknesses, utilizing a strong mid-range jump shot, impressive speed in transition and her ability to finish at the rim. Atkins was named 2014 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year, becoming the third girls player from Texas to earn the award – the most since the female award's inception in 2002. This fall, she will play for Karen Aston at Texas, joining McDonald's All American teammate Brooke McCarty.

RECEE' CALDWELL #5

Height: 5-9 • Position: Guard • FEAST Home School, TX
Hometown: San Antonio, TX • PPG: 19.0 • RPG: 5.6 • APG: 6.1 • College: UCLA

Caldwell is a smooth guard that sets up her teammates and scores depending on what the defense gives her. A superb ball handler with stellar court awareness, Caldwell moves purposefully in the offensive zone, collapsing defenses and finding her teammates for easy scoring chances. Caldwell is one of four 2014 players hailing from Texas. In the fall, she'll join McDonald's All American teammates, Jordin Canada and Lajahna Drummer, at UCLA to play for Cori Close.

Steven Matkoski/UCA Basketball

JORDIN CANADA #21

Height: 5-7 • Position: Guard • Windward School, CA
Hometown: Los Angeles, CA • PPG: 16.3 • RPG: 5.1 • APG: 6.0 • College: UCLA

Canada is a point guard who consistently leads her team offensively by scoring and distributing. With dynamic speed and floor presence, Canada can dictate the pace of the game. An excellent shooter, she can pull up and bury mid-range shots while also generating offensive opportunities for her teammates. Canada is the second girls player from the Windward School to be named a McDonald's All American after Imani Stafford made the team in 2012. Canada will play for Cori Close next season at UCLA, joining fellow McDonald's All Americans, Reece' Caldwell and Lajahna Drummer.

MIKAYLA COWLING #3

Height: 6-1 • Position: Guard/Forward • Saint Mary's College High School, CA
Hometown: Benicia, CA • PPG: 16.6 • RPG: 7.9 • APG: 4.5 • College: California

Seven Milkoski/USA Basketball

With smooth shooting form and an effective release point beyond the arc, Cowling is a consistent threat from 3-point range. Cowling's height and agility help her pull down rebounds and finish on drives to the basket. On defense, Cowling uses her quickness to close out on defenders and disrupt opponent's drives to the basket. She is one of five players from California to make the 2014 squad. In the fall, she'll join her high school teammate and 2014 McDonald's All American, Gabby Green, at California to play under Lindsay Gottlieb.

LAJAHNA DRUMMER #12

Height: 6-2 • Position: Forward/Center • Long Beach Polytechnic High School, CA
Hometown: Inglewood, CA • PPG: 12.2 • RPG: 8.8 • APG: 4.2 • College: UCLA

A dynamic athlete with tremendous energy, Drummer is an interior threat on the offensive and defensive side of the court. With solid footwork, strength and post moves, Drummer easily gains position offensively, overpowers defenders and finishes in traffic. Drummer's energy is valuable on the glass where she's able to corral loose balls and rebounds. Drummer is the fourth player from Long Beach Polytechnic High School to play in the Games and the first since 2011. She will play for Cori Chase at UCLA next season, joining fellow McDonald All Americans, Reece Caldwell and Jordyn Canada.

GABBY GREEN #33

Height: 6-1 • Position: Guard/Forward • Saint Mary's College High School, CA
Hometown: Oakland, CA • PPG: 16.0 • RPG: 9.0 • APG: 6.0 • College: California

Green uses her height and wingspan to make plays at both ends of the court. Her size and college-ready frame make her a versatile backcourt contributor along with a solid swing player. Green has a quick first step and is an excellent ball handler, enabling her to explode to the basket and either score or distribute to teammates. Green compares her style of play to that of 2006 McDonald's All American Kevin Durant. She will play for Lindsay Gottlieb at California next season alongside high school and McDonald's All American teammate, Mikayla Cowling.

BROOKE McCARTY #4

Height: 5-3 • Position: Guard • Clear Springs High School, TX
Hometown: League City, TX • PPG: 26.8 • RPG: 3.2 • APG: 5.3 • College: Texas

McCarty uses her elite quickness to create space off the dribble and spark transition opportunities. A creative passer with great court awareness, McCarty consistently finds teammates in scoring areas. McCarty has an impressive basketball IQ, allowing her to read the floor, make smart decisions and limit turnovers. McCarty is also a star off the court, volunteering in the Peer Assistance leadership program and playing an active role in the Safe School Ambassadors program. She will join fellow McDonald's All American Ariel Atkins at Texas next season.

JAIME NARED #30

Height: 6-1 • Position: Guard/Forward • Westview High School, OR Hometown: Portland, OR • PPG: 30.0 • RPG: 13.3 • SPG: 4.3 • College: Tennessee

Nared's quick first step allows her to explode past opponents and drive to the basket. A versatile perimeter player, she also consistently knocks down mid-range and 3-point shots. With great size for her position, Nared can also pull down rebounds on both ends of the floor. With her selection, Nared becomes the fifth girls player from Oregon to make the McDonald's All American Game. In the fall, Nared will join McDonald's All American teammate, Alexa Middleton to play for Holly Warlick at Tennessee.

ALYSSA RICE #45

Height: 6-3 • Position: Center • Reynoldsburg High School, OH
Hometown: Reynoldsburg, OH • PPG: 18.6 • RPG: 8.5 • BPG: 14 • College: Kentucky

Steven Matkosi/USA Basketball

Rice is extremely active defensively and on the glass, using her strength and wingspan to block or alter shots and corral rebounds on both ends of the floor. A solid scorer, Rice is effective from 12-15 feet and uses her first-step quickness to gain separation from defenders and get to the line. Rice is an honor roll student and member of the National Honor Society off the court. She will play for Matthew Mitchell at Kentucky next season.

Height: 6-3 • Position: Forward • Manvel High School, TX
Hometown: Pearland, TX • PPG: 20.3 • RPG: 11.4 • BPG: 3.6 • College: Notre Dame

Turner dominates opponents on the defensive end of the floor with her height and explosive athleticism, altering shots and preventing traffic in the lane. Offensively, Turner is a polished post player with a developed mid-range game. Turner is excellent in transition and many times converts the defensive rebounds she collects into points for her team. Both of Turner's parents played college basketball with her father playing at Lamar and her mother playing at Houston. Turner will join fellow McDonald's All American Kathryn Westbeld to play for Muffet McGraw at Notre Dame next season.

CHATRICE WHITE #32

Height: 6-3 • Position: Center • Shelby-Rising City High School, NE
Hometown: Shelby, NE • PPG: 24.2 • RPG: 12.0 • BPG: 4.4 • College: Illinois

White's strength and physicality in the post area make her a double-double threat every game. With exceptional footwork and body control, White can gain position to score on offense and sky for rebounds on the defensive end. With an excellent motor and work ethic, White is active on both sides of the floor, generating opportunities for herself and her teammates. White is also active off the court in the community, working as a youth basketball instructor and volunteering at her local senior center. With her selection, White becomes the first female McDonald's All American from Nebraska. She will play for Matt Bollant at Illinois next season.

GABBY WILLIAMS #1

Height: 6-0 • Position: Guard • Edward C. Reed High School, NV
Hometown: Sparks, NV • PPG: 22.0 • RPG: 8.0 • SPG: 7.0 • College: UConn

Williams is an athletic combo guard that excels at attacking the rim and finishing in transition. Williams can handle the ball and knock down shots from behind the arc when she plays off the ball. Her explosiveness also helps her on defense where she contests shots and consistently stays in front of defenders. In addition to basketball, Williams excels at track and field, finishing fifth in the high jump at the 2012 U.S. Olympic trials. She will play for Geno Auriemma at Connecticut next season.

ANGIE HEMBREE, EAST HEAD COACH

Norcross High School (Norcross, GA)
(446-149 Career Record)

Angie Hembree has 20 years of experience as a head high school basketball coach in the state of Georgia and is currently in her seventh season as the head coach at Norcross High School. During her career, which includes time at Collins Hill High School, South Forsyth and Milton High School, Hembree has amassed more than 440 victories, winning more than 75 percent of her games. Hembree also spent two seasons, from 2005-2007, as assistant coach to Katie Meier at the University of Miami.

Since 2001, Hembree has led six teams to state championships – three at Collins Hill (2001, 2002 and 2005) and three at Norcross (2010, 2011 and 2013). For her successes, Hembree was named Women's Basketball Coach of the Year for District 9 by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association, serving as assistant coach at the WBCA All Star Game in 2010. She was named Female Prep Coach of the Year for Metro Atlanta in 2002 and 2005 ATOC/AJC Female Prep Coach of the Year in Georgia. Additionally, Hembree has been chosen by the Atlanta Sports Writers as Coach of the Year three times.

Throughout her career, Hembree has coached two McDonald's All American alumnae, Maya Moore (2007) and Diamond DeShields (2013). Joining her on the sidelines will be Norcross assistants Jay Nebel and Tamara Brooks.

EAST ALL AMERICANS

LYNEE' BELTON #34

Height: 6-3 • Position: Forward/Center • Bullis School, MD
Hometown: Clinton, MD • PPG: 21.5 • RPG: 15.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: Duke

Steven Matkoski/USA Basketball

With excellent height, Belton has a highly effective back-to-the-basket game. She's able to score in the post with either hand in traffic. Belton is great in transition with nimble footwork helping her on both sides of the court. Off the court, Belton works as a student tutor, peer mentor and is a consistent member of her school's honor roll. In the fall she will join fellow McDonald's All American, Sierra Calhoun, to play for Joanne McCallie at Duke.

SIERRA CALHOUN #4

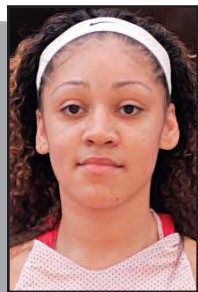

Height: 6-0 • Position: Guard • Christ the King High School, NY
Hometown: Brooklyn, NY • PPG: 23.0 • RPG: 8.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: Duke

Calhoun uses her athleticism to attack defenses inside and out. A skilled player with a variety of strengths, her versatility allows her to play several positions on the floor. Calhoun is a solid defender with strength and quickness that poses matchup problems for opponents. She comes from a basketball family, as her older brother, Omar, plays at Connecticut. She and McDonald's All American teammate Lynee' Belton will play at Duke next season.

BIANCA CUEVAS #1

Height: 5-5 • Position: Guard • Nazareth Regional High School, NY
Hometown: Harlem, NY • PPG: 25.0 • RPG: 4.0 • APG: 4.0 • College: South Carolina

Cuevas shows no fear attacking the rim, even when playing against taller opponents. Her speed and court savviness allow her to make quick decisions and find teammates for scoring opportunities. Cuevas also has great ball-handling skills and consistently makes shots ranging from pull-ups to floaters. With her selection to the 2014 team, Cuevas becomes the second player from Nazareth Regional High School to play in the McDonald's All American Games. Next season, Cuevas and fellow McDonald's All American, Jatarie White, will play for Dawn Staley at South Carolina.

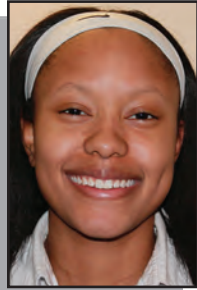

EAST ALL AMERICANS

SADIE EDWARDS #14

Height: 5-9 • Position: Guard • Blair Academy, CT
Hometown: Meriden, CT • PPG: 22.0 • RPG: 7.0 • APG: 7.0 • College: UConn

A scoring threat inside and out, Edwards consistently makes shots from mid-range and breaks down defenders to finish at the basket. With stellar court vision, she attacks defenses and finds teammates for easy scoring chances. Edwards has a high basketball IQ and is quick to adapt to defenses, easily shifting her mindset from scorer to distributor. Edwards is the second female McDonald's All American from Blair Academy, and the fourth overall after 2011 McDonald's All American, Temi Fagbenle and 2003 players Luol Deng and Charlie Villanueva. She will play for Geno Auriemma at Connecticut next season.

40

MYISHA HINES-ALLEN #2

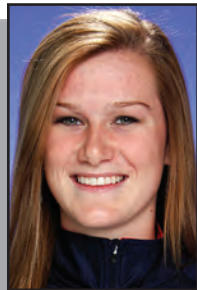

Height: 6-2 • Position: Guard/Forward • Montclair High School, NJ
Hometown: Montclair, NJ • PPG: 22.0 • RPG: 12.0 • APG: 8.0 • College: Louisville

Hines-Allen is a consistent threat from the perimeter but can also attack the basket, scoring readily on contact. Her athleticism makes her a dynamic defender and a matchup problem for opponents. Hines-Allen also uses her height and strength to post up opponents and bring down rebounds in traffic. With her selection, Hines-Allen becomes the 12th player from New Jersey to play in the Games. She will play for Jeff Walz at Louisville next season.

ALEXA MIDDLETON #23

Height: 5-9 • Position: Guard • Riverdale High School, TN
Hometown: Murfreesboro, TN • PPG: 18.0 • RPG: 4.5 • APG: 4.0 • College: Tennessee

Steven Malkoski/USA Basketball

Middleton is a true floor leader who displays great poise on the court. She uses her high basketball IQ to read defenders and either create her own shot off the dribble or knock down shots from the perimeter. A tremendous passer, Middleton can find her teammates in transition or in the half-court game for easy scoring opportunities. Middleton's mother, Celeste, played basketball at Lipscomb University. In the fall, Middleton will stay in state to play for Holly Warlick at Tennessee.

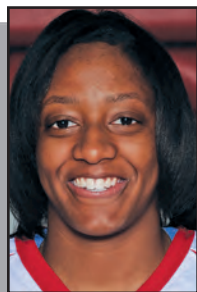

EAST ALL AMERICANS

KELSEY MITCHELL #3

Height: 5-8 • Position: Guard • Princeton High School, OH
Hometown: Cincinnati, OH • PPG: 27.1 • RPG: 4.6 • APG: 6.4 • College: Ohio State

Mitchell is a high-powered scorer with the ability to carry a team offensively. A versatile player, Mitchell can finish at the rim in traffic but also hit long-range shots consistently. Mitchell is also a tenacious defender and has excellent court vision on both ends of the floor. A success in the classroom, Mitchell was named to her conference All-Academic team from 2010-2013 and is an honor roll student. Next season, Mitchell will join her twin sister, Chelsea, to play at Ohio State for head coach Kevin McGuff and her father, Mark, an assistant coach on the staff.

MARIYA MOORE #21

Height: 6-0 • Position: Guard/Forward • Salesian High School, CA
Hometown: San Pablo, CA • PPG: 18.7 • RPG: 9.0 • APG: 7.9 • College: Louisville

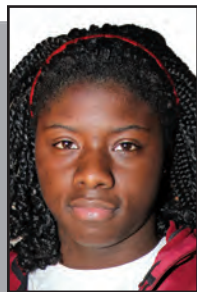

Moore is a strong perimeter player who can also drive to the basket to score. A stellar athlete, Moore uses her speed and quickness to her advantage on both ends of the floor. With great court vision and strong ball handling skills, she can lead her team in transition effectively. Moore is one of five 2014 players hailing from the state of California. She and fellow McDonald's All American, Myisha Hines-Allen, will play for Jeff Walz at Louisville next season.

Steven Matkosi/USA Basketball

SHAKAYLA THOMAS #20

Height: 6-0 • Position: Guard/Forward • Sylacauga High School, AL
Hometown: Sylacauga, AL • PPG: 34.0 • RPG: 5.4 • SPG: 5.2 • College: Florida State

FSU Women's Basketball

Thomas is a physical offensive player that uses her speed and athleticism to attack the basket. With a long wingspan and jumping ability, she is an effective rebounder on both ends of the court. Thomas has a knack for scoring and uses her variety of offensive skills to score points in bunches. Thomas compares her game to that of 2003 McDonald's All American, LeBron James. Next fall, Thomas will play for Sue Semrau at Florida State, becoming the fourth female McDonald's All American to play for the Seminoles.

KATHRYN WESTBELD #33

Height: 6-1 • Position: Forward • Kettering Fairmont High School, OH
Hometown: Kettering, OH • PPG: 17.1 • RPG: 10.0 • APG: 3.2 • College: Notre Dame

With a high basketball IQ, Westbeld succeeds at executing offensive sets and reading defenses. She has impressive mobility for a power forward and uses it to her advantage in the post and on the perimeter. A strong and athletic player, Westbeld is a dynamic rebounder and can finish at the rim in traffic. Westbeld is one of three girls players from Ohio participating in the Games this year. She will join fellow McDonald's All American, Brianna Turner, at Notre Dame in the fall.

JATARIE WHITE #40

Height: 6-4 • Position: Forward/Center • Providence Day School, NC
Hometown: Charlotte, NC • PPG: 22.5 • RPG: 9.0 • BPG: 2.4 • College: South Carolina

White has great strength and aggressively attacks the basket. A solid low-post finisher, she's able to execute in heavy traffic and is very assertive offensively. An excellent defender, White can shut down opposing team's post players, blocking and altering shots at will. Thanks to her height, athleticism and scoring ability, White compares her on-court style to that of 2002 McDonald's All American, Chris Bosh. She will join fellow McDonald's All American, Bianca Cuevas, to play for Dawn Staley at South Carolina next season.

A'JA WILSON #22

Height: 6-4 • Position: Guard/Forward • Heathwood Hall Episcopal School, SC
Hometown: Hopkins, SC • PPG: 35.7 • RPG: 14.6 • BPG: 4.7 • College: Undecided

Steven Minkski/USA Basketball

With great footwork and balance, Wilson can attack the basket and score with ease. She uses her athleticism and quickness to get out in transition, run the floor and score quickly. At 6-4, Wilson uses her height and strength to play through contact, finish at the rim and consistently reach the foul line. Wilson models her game after 2004 McDonald's All American, Candace Parker. She's the sixth girls player from South Carolina to play in the Games. She remains undecided on her college selection* but is considering Connecticut, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee. *at the time of printing

DJ R-TISTIC PERFORMS AT TONIGHT'S GAMES

Hip-hop and burgers joined forces when McDonald's USA launched the 2013 - 2014 Flavor Battle competition. The 13-week national DJ competition challenged some of America's hottest up-and-coming mix masters to show off and prove they were the best on the wheels of steel. At the onset of the competition, 12 DJs, each representing a U.S. region and one of McDonald's Quarter Pounder®* burgers — the Bacon and Cheese Quarter Pounder* (East Coast), Deluxe Quarter Pounder(Central) and Bacon Habanero Ranch Quarter Pounder (West Coast) battled it out for DJ supremacy. Now in its fifth year, the competition has garnered recognition from hip-hop elites, such as DJ Funkmaster Flex, who served as this year's host.

Throughout the competition, music and burger lovers listened to custom music mixes from each DJ on www.FlavorBattle.com and voted daily for their favorite flavor master in each region. When voting concluded, three DJ's rose to the top including DJ R-Tistic of Los Angeles, DJ Niena Drake of Chicago and DJ Erika B of Newport News, Va. Each traveled to the finale in New York City to compete for the grand prize of $10,000 in front of a panel of celebrity judges.

Music industry heavy hitters Spinderella, Just Blaze and DJ Clue used their renowned and respected DJ'ing expertise to help crown the 2014 McDonald's Flavor Battle champion during an online broadcast of the finale. Ultimately, DJ R-Tistic was announced as the Flavor Battle champion.

Hailing from Los Angeles, CA, DJ R-Tistic is known for DJing at clubs and festivals nationwide. He began producing music in elementary school and became a DJ while attending Florida A&M University. R-Tistic is known for bringing high energy to every event he DJ's, using his creative transitions and wide array of musical selections to excite every crowd he entertains. DJ R-Tistic will perform live during halftime of the Boys All American Game.

The next Flavor Battle competition will launch in Fall 2014. For more information, visit www.365Black.com.

FRANK ALLOCCO, WEST HEAD COACH

De La Salle High School (Concord, CA)
(606-85 Career Record)

Frank Allocco is in his 17th season as head coach at De La Salle High School and 23rd as a head coach in California. During his career at both De La Salle and Northgate High School, he's earned more than 600 victories and only 85 losses – an impressive winning percentage of 88.

During his six-year tenure at Northgate High School, Allocco's team won a state championship in 1995 and took home state runner-up in 1996. His success has continued at De La Salle where Allocco has led teams to 16 league championships, 10 section championships, three regional titles and two state championships. Allocco is the only coach in California state history to win a state championship at two different schools. His teams have won at least 20 games for 23 consecutive seasons.

Among his many coaching accolades, Allocco was named California State Coach of the Year by three different organizations, and was named national coach of the year by Sportsfaith International in Chicago. He will be joined on the sideline by De La Salle assistants Mark Noack and Brian Sullivan.

GRAYSON ALLEN #1

Height: 6-4 • Weight: 195 • Position: Guard • Providence School, FL
Hometown: Jacksonville, FL • PPG: 22.0 • RPG: 6.9 • APG: 5.0 • College: Duke

Allen is an excellent shooter, specifically from 3-point range where he remains a constant threat to take over games when hot. He can shoot the ball off screens or create his own shot off the dribble. Allen is also a tremendous passer, constantly looking to get his teammates involved on the floor. A success in the classroom as well as on the court, Allen is a National Honor Society member, the Vice President of his student council and was named his school's student of the year in 2013. He is one of four McDonald's All Americans to play for coach Mike Krzyzewski at Duke in the fall.

JOEL BERRY II #11

Height: 6-1 • Weight: 190 • Position: Guard • Lake Highland Preparatory School, FL
Hometown: Apopka, FL • PPG: 25.0 • RPG: 7.1 • APG: 4.2 • College: North Carolina

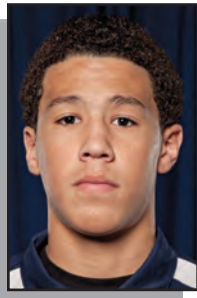

Berry is a floor leader who uses strength and athleticism to run his team's offense. He demonstrates great body control on offense, driving against opponents to convert or finding teammates for scoring opportunities. Berry also uses his quick feet on defense to stay in front of his opponents to prevent scoring chances. A strong student, Berry has maintained a 3.5 GPA throughout his high school career. As a sophomore and junior he was named Florida's Mr. Basketball. He is one of three McDonald's All Americans that will play under Roy Williams at North Carolina in the fall.

Steven Matkoski/USA Basketball

DEVIN BOOKER #2

Height: 6-6 • Weight: 205 • Position: Guard • Moss Point High School, MS
Hometown: Moss Point, MS • PPG: 32.0 • RPG: 9.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: Kentucky

Booker is an excellent outside shooter with an extremely high basketball IQ. He has a soft shooting touch and can consistently hit shots from beyond NBA range. Booker can take players off the dribble and find space on the wings to make open shots. He has basketball in his genes – his father, Melvin, played basketball at the University of Missouri where he was Big 8 player of the year and 2nd team All-American in 1994. Booker will join three of his fellow McDonald's All Americans at Kentucky in the fall.

WEST ALL AMERICANS

STANLEY JOHNSON #5

Height: 6-7 • Weight: 220 • Position: Guard • Mater Dei High School, CA
Hometown: Fullerton, CA • PPG: 27.0 • RPG: 11.0 • APG: 6.0 • College: Arizona

Johnson dominates games with his strength and athleticism, overpowering opponents at will. He is an adept ball handler, making it a challenge to stop him in the open court. Johnson can also score from multiple spots on the court, using his size to score inside and his guard skills to be effective on the perimeter. Johnson is the latest McDonald's All American from Mater Dei High School (CA) which has produced six other McDonald's All Americans including David and Travis Wear (2009) and Taylor King (2007). Johnson will play for Arizona and coach Sean Miller in the fall.

50

TREY LYLES #41

Height: 6-9 • Weight: 241 • Position: Guard/Forward • Arsenal Technical, IN Hometown: Camby, IN • PPG: 26.5 • RPG: 15.5 • APG: 4.5 • College: Kentucky

Lyles utilizes his size and a wide range of developed post moves to dominate opponents inside. He's also adept at making outside shots and can put the ball on the floor. A formidable defensive presence, Lyles can alter shots and displays great patience and composure on the floor. Lyles compares his game to a combination between Tim Duncan and 2002 McDonald's All American, Carmelo Anthony. In the fall, Lyles and three other 2014 McDonald's All Americans will attend Kentucky to play under coach John Calipari.

Steven Matlock/USA Basketball

EMMANUEL MUDIAY #0

Height: 6-5 • Weight: 185 • Position: Guard • Prime Prep Academy, TX
Hometown: Dallas, TX • PPG: 19.5 • RPG: 8.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: Southern Methodist

Mudiay uses his superior athleticism and quickness to beat opponents, consistently burying shots coming off ball screens. He has great floor vision, using it to distribute the ball to his teammates in transition and in half-court sets. He's also developed a solid midrange game and can hit step-back jumpers regularly. Mudiay plans to attend SMU in the fall and will play under head coach, Larry Brown. With his commitment, Mudiay is the school's second straight McDonald's All American after 2013 McDonald's All American, Keith Frazier.

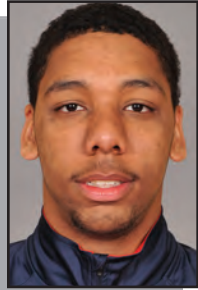

WEST ALL AMERICANS

JAHILIL OKAFOR #22

Height: 7-0 • Weight: 270 • Position: Center • Whitney Young Magnet High School, IL
Hometown: Chicago, IL • PPG: 25.0 • RPG: 14.0 • BPG: 3.0 • College: Duke

Bart Young/USA Basketball

Okafor has great height and strength, making him a force in the low post. He uses his athleticism to outmatch opponents, with footwork that allows him to gain positioning and easily grab rebounds on both sides of the floor. He's a proven defender who can alter opponents' shots while keeping them out of the lane. Okafor was named 2014 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year, becoming the second straight Chicago-area player to win the award after Jabari Parker won in 2013. He is one of four McDonald's All Americans planning to attend Duke in the fall.

KELLY OUBRE JR. #12

Height: 6-7 • Weight: 215 • Position: Guard/Forward • Findlay College Prep, NV
Hometown: Richmond, TX • PPG: 23.5 • RPG: 6.7 • APG: 2.3 • College: Kansas

Oubre has a large wingspan and natural athletic ability that he uses to attack the rim and convert in traffic. On the perimeter, Oubre demonstrates a consistent shot from 3-point range with a quick release and smooth shot. Oubre is also a great dribbler and can lead his team on fast breaks with his strong crossover. He is joined on the 2014 team by his Findlay Prep teammate, Rashad Vaughn. In the fall, Oubre will attend Kansas University alongside fellow McDonald's All American, Cliff Alexander.

REID TRAVIS #24

Height: 6-8 • Weight: 240 • Position: Forward • DeLaSalle High School, MN
Hometown: Minneapolis, MN • PPG: 17.6 • RPG: 6.8 • APG: 2.8 • College: Stanford

Bart Young/USA Basketball

Travis is an excellent rebounder with the ability to corral rebounds on both ends of the court. He consistently scores in traffic, creating separation on the block by outworking his opponents to gain positioning by the basket. Travis can also step outside to knock down shots and maintains his poise with solid shot selection. A success on and off the court, Travis is an honor roll student, National Honor Society member and maintains a 3.9 GPA. Next season, he will head west to play for Johnny Dawkins and the Stanford Cardinal.

Height: 5-9 • Weight: 150 • Position: Guard • Marian Catholic High School, IL
Hometown: Matteson, IL • PPG: 23.4 • RPG: 4.0 • APG: 7.0 • College: Kentucky

Ulis displays great unselfishness offensively, finding his teammates for easy baskets. He has excellent vision on the fast break and uses his speed to attack opponents in transition. Ulis can also knock down shots consistently, scoring at will when needed. He is one of three Chicago-area players on the 2014 roster. He'll join McDonald's All American teammates Trey Lyles, Devin Booker and Karl-Anthony Towns at Kentucky in the fall to play under head coach, John Calipari.

RASHAD VAUGHN #20

Height: 6-6 • Weight: 210 • Position: Guard • Findlay College Prep, NV
Hometown: Golden Valley, MN • PPG: 20.5 • RPG: 5.5 • APG: 5.3 • College: UNLV

Vaughn possesses a great wingspan which helps him sky for rebounds and attack the rim. He has developed superb ball-handling skills which he uses to lead fast breaks and score in transition. Vaughn also sports a high basketball IQ demonstrated in his great decision making on both ends of the floor. He and fellow McDonald's All American Kelly Oubre Jr. are the eighth and ninth McDonald's All Americans to hail from Findlay Prep. Vaughn will follow in the footsteps of Findlay Prep alum and 2012 McDonald's All American Anthony Bennett and attend UNLV this fall.

THOMAS WELSH #40

Height: 7-0 • Weight: 245 • Position: Center • Loyola High School, CA
Hometown: Redondo Beach, CA • PPG: 15.9 • RPG: 10.5 • BPG: 2.4 • College: UCLA

Welsh has great height and court awareness that allow him to play efficiently offensively. He's an excellent rebounder who uses his long arms and leaping ability to corral rebounds on both ends of the court. Welsh also serves as a defensive force, consistently contesting shots and demonstrating excellent shot-blocking abilities. Off the court, Welsh volunteers at local elementary schools and the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank. He'll join fellow McDonald's All American, Kevon Looney at UCLA in the fall where they'll play for head coach, Steve Alford.

LOU WILSON, EAST HEAD COACH

Riverdale Baptist High School (Upper Marlboro, MD)
(582-224 Career Record)

Lou Wilson, from Riverdale Baptist High School is in his 28th year as a high school coach in the state of Maryland. Throughout his career, which also included stints at Frederick Douglass High School and Largo High School, he has accumulated 582 wins, winning more than 70 percent of his career games. His record makes him the second winningest active coach for public or private schools in the state of Maryland.

At Riverdale Baptist, Wilson has led his teams to four National Christian Schools Athletic Associations Championships and two National Association Christian Athletic Championships. In 2013 and 2014, Wilson led his team to back-to-back Capital Beltway Athletic Association titles. Prior to his time at Riverdale Baptist, Wilson's teams earned seven county championships and one state championship. Wilson's success has earned him 11 Coach of the Year awards and the title of Coach of the Decade by Gazette Newspaper.

Coach Wilson is a member of the Junior FIVE STAR BASKETBALL Coaches Committee. During his playing days at Howard University, he was a member of the first HBCU basketball team to go to the NCAA tournament in 1981. Recently, Wilson was recognized by Senator Anthony Muse with a Senate Citation Award for his "service and commitment to the community." Joining him on the sideline as assistants will be current Riverdale Baptist High School assistants, Dale DeBerry and Henry Lloyd.

CLIFF ALEXANDER #11

Height: 6-9 • Weight: 235 • Position: Forward/Center • Curie Metro High School, IL
Hometown: Chicago, IL • PPG: 26.0 • RPG: 16.0 • BPG: 5.0 • College: Kansas

USA Basketball

Alexander is a tremendous interior post player who dominates the boards on both ends of the floor. Along with serving as a rebounding force, Alexander is known as an interior defender, blocking shots and denying his opponents the ball. With great height and strength, he's also developed a consistent hook shot and uses that to his advantage when getting the ball in the post. Alexander is one of three Chicago-area players to make the 2014 team and will join forces with West team player Kelly Oubre Jr. at Kansas this fall.

JAMES BLACKMON JR. #24

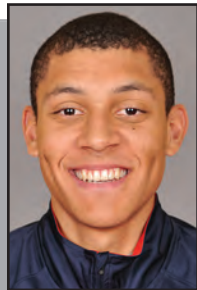

Height: 6-4 • Weight: 180 • Position: Guard • Marion High School, IN Hometown: Marion, IN • PPG: 36.5 • RPG: 5.0 • APG: 3.0 • College: Indiana

Blackmon is a smooth combination guard that can shoot from anywhere on the court whether it's off a screen, kick outs or pull ups. A good decision maker and controlled player, Blackmon can put points up in a hurry and break a game open when he gets on a roll. Blackmon comes from a great basketball family – his father, James Sr., was a McDonald's All American in 1983, sharing high-scorer honors for the West squad with 21 points. Blackmon's skills extend to the classroom where he is a National Honor Society member and a four-year member of the honor roll. He plans to attend Indiana University in the fall.

JUSTIN JACKSON #44

Height: 6-8 • Weight: 200 • Position: Guard/Forward • Homeschool Christian, TX
Hometown: Tomball, TX • PPG: 33.0 • RPG: 11.0 • APG: 4.0 • College: North Carolina

Bart Young/USA Basketball

Jackson has developed a consistent mid-range pull up that goes well with his quickness and ability to ignite a fast break. A very versatile athlete, Jackson can play both the small forward and shooting guard positions. He also uses his height and athleticism to his advantage, easily shooting over defenders. The first-ever homeschool athlete to be named to the McDonald's All American Boys Team, Jackson has been a Homeschool All-American since 2010, and earned the 2013 Jefferson Award given to the best homeschool player in the country. He'll team up with fellow McDonald's All Americans Theo Pinson and Joel Berry II at North Carolina next season.

TYUS JONES #21

Height: 6-1 • Weight: 180 • Position: Guard • Apple Valley High School, MN
Hometown: Apple Valley, MN • PPG: 27.7 • RPG: 4.0 • APG: 7.0 • College: Duke

Jones has the ability to improve his teammates' performances with his leadership and composure on the court. He also possesses adept court vision, finding his teammates in ideal spots to convert. With excellent speed, Jones can lead the fast break or attack defenses in the half-court offense where he can score at the rim. During his high school career, Jones earned two gold medals with Team USA. In the fall, he and 2014 McDonald's All American teammates Justise Winslow, Grayson Allen and Jahlil Okafor will head to Duke.

KEVON LOONEY #5

Height: 6-9 • Weight: 210 • Position: Forward • Milwaukee Hamilton High School, WI
Hometown: Milwaukee, WI • PPG: 29.0 • RPG: 14.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: UCLA

Looney is a versatile player with the ability to post up defenders and knock down 3-pointers. He uses his tremendous athletic ability and great wingspan to consistently grab rebounds. He's also a very unselfish player, doing an excellent job finding his teammates in the half-court offense. With his selection to the 2014 squad, Looney becomes the fifth player from Wisconsin to play in the Games. Next fall, he and the West team's Thomas Welsh will play for Steve Alford at UCLA.

Bert Young/USA Basketball

THEO PINSON #1

Height: 6-6 • Weight: 190 • Position: Guard/Forward • Wesleyan Christian Academy, NC
Hometown: Greensboro, NC • PPG: 23.0 • RPG: 6.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: North Carolina

Pinson is an excellent scorer who can put up points in a hurry from beyond 3-point range and off-the-dribble. He has tremendous athleticism and the ability to beat players to the basket and score in transition. Pinson is also an elite defender, locking down opponents on the perimeter and closing down opponent's driving lanes. On the court, Pinson compares his game to that of 1977 McDonald's All American, Magic Johnson. He plans to attend North Carolina in the fall where he will join fellow McDonald's All Americans Justin Jackson and Joel Berry II.

D'ANGELO RUSSELL #3

Height: 6-5 • Weight: 190 • Position: Guard • Montverde Academy, KY
Hometown: Louisville, KY • PPG: 15.3 • RPG: 4.0 • APG: 4.0 • College: Ohio State

Russell has unlimited range from beyond the arc with the ability to find open teammates when defenders attempt to close out on him. A versatile player on offense, Russell is an adept ball-handler who can play both guard positions. Off the court, Russell volunteers with the Special Olympics. He attends the same high school as 2013 McDonald's All Americans Kasey Hill and Dakari Johnson. In the fall, he'll play under Thad Matta at Ohio State.

KARL-ANTHONY TOWNS, JR. #32

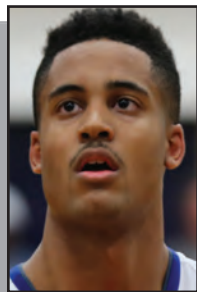

Height: 7-0 • Weight: 250 • Position: Forward/Center • St. Joseph High School, NJ
Hometown: Piscataway, NJ • PPG: 22.1 • RPG: 11.6 • BPG: 5.0 • College: Kentucky

Topping out at seven feet tall, Towns uses his height and wingspan to corral rebounds, block shots and score in traffic. Outside the lane, he moves on the perimeter and hits shots from behind the 3-point arc. Towns also has great court vision and the ability to find teammates outside when defended in the post. A success in the classroom as well as on the court, Towns is a consistent member of his school's honor roll. He'll play under John Calipari at Kentucky next fall, joining three of his fellow McDonald's All Americans Devin Booker, Trey Lyles and Tyler Ulis.

MELO TRIMBLE #2

Height: 6-3 • Weight: 190 • Position: Guard • Bishop O'Connell High School, MD
Hometown: Upper Marlboro, MD • PPG: 23.0 • RPG: 8.0 • APG: 5.0 • College: Maryland

Trimble excels as a shooter, consistently converting 3-pointers from beyond NBA range. He has the ability to get to the basket and consistently convert, using his speed on scoring plays. Trimble is an excellent ball handler and passer, allowing him to play point guard when needed. With his selection to the 2014 team, Trimble is the 14th player to attend Maryland and the first since 2003. Trimble is also the 38th player from the state of Maryland to be named to the boys team.

MYLES TURNER #35

Height: 7-0 • Weight: 230 • Position: Forward/Center • Trinity High School, TX
Hometown: Bedford, TX • PPG: 20.0 • RPG: 13.0 • BPG: 7.0 • College: Undecided

Bart Young/USA Basketball

A very productive center, Turner uses his great height, wingspan and athleticism to his advantage on both ends of the court. He's a well-polished post player and has a superb touch on post moves. Turner is also a tremendous defensive disrupter, blocking shots and defending the lane from opponents. Turner is one of five 2014 McDonald's All Americans hailing from the state of Texas. He remains undecided on his college selection, still*considering Arizona, Duke, Kansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma State, Ohio State and Texas. *at the time of printing.

ISAIAH WHITEHEAD #15

Height: 6-4 • Weight: 200 • Position: Guard • Lincoln High School, NY
Hometown: Brooklyn, NY • PPG: 29.5 • RPG: 7.0 • APG: 7.0 • College: Seton Hall

Whitehead uses his athleticism and strength to attack the rim and convert with great power and body control. He has the ability to pull up on the break and knock down shots with consistent range from beyond the 3-point line. Whitehead is also a solid rebounding guard with a knack for finding his teammates in scoring areas. He compares his style on the court to that of 2007 McDonald's All American James Harden. In the fall, he will attend Seton Hall, becoming just the fifth McDonald's All American to play for the Pirates and the first since 2000.

Steven Maltoski/USA Basketball

JUSTISE WINSLOW #20

Height: 6-6 • Weight: 220 • Position: Guard • Saint John's High School, TX
Hometown: Houston, TX • PPG: 28.2 • RPG: 13.2 • APG: 3.5 • College: Duke

Winslow is a superb defender who's able to shut down his opponents with great lateral foot speed. He's not afraid to take a charge and displays great unselfishness on both ends of the floor. Winslow has proven to be a great leader, making his teammates and players around him better. Winslow's father, Rickie, was a member of the 1983 McDonald's All American team and played basketball at the University of Houston. Winslow will head to Duke in the fall with fellow McDonald's All Americans Tyus Jones, Grayson Allen and Jahlil Okafor to play for coach Mike Krzyzewski.

McDONALD'S ALL AMERICAN GAMES' FOUNDER SHARES LIFE LASTING MEMORIES

My association with the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Games evolved from my love of basketball and sports in general. From the beginning, my vision was to create the first national high school event of its kind – one that young people would dream of participating in. It was clear to me that whoever did it first and did it right would be able to create an event that lasted for years. And here we are today celebrating 37 years of the Boys Game and now 13 years of the Girls Game and seeing how both games have evolved into the gold standard of high school all-star events. It's an incredible feeling.

In addition to showcasing America's finest high school basketball players on a national stage, the Games offer the best student-athletes in the nation an opportunity to experience working with a national charity and learning what it really means to give back to the community. It has been very gratifying to know that the Games have raised millions of dollars for Ronald McDonald House Charities and helped thousands of children and families.

Over the years, I've witnessed some great players and some great games. Michael, Magic, LeBron, Kobe, Dominique, Shaq and Derrick were all exciting players even in high school. The addition of the Girls Game in 2002 in New York City during the 25th anniversary of the Boys Game was a highlight. Now, we're building a tradition for the girls. Candace Parker, Shanna Zolman, Ivory Latta and Maya Moore are just some of the terrific athletes who made the girls' game so important.

It truly has been both an honor and privilege to work with so many wonderful people throughout the years.

The next part of this souvenir program offers you a chance to experience the highlights of every All American game that's ever been played – beginning with the inaugural boy's game, held at The Spectrum in Philadelphia, in 1978 and the inaugural girl's game, held at Madison Square Garden in New York City, in 2002. I've enjoyed them all in person, and I hope the following pages provide you with a memorable look back at some of the great moments and players in McDonald's All American Games history.

John Wooden (left) was honored for his outstanding contribution to the McDonald's All American Games and presented an oil painting by Bob Geoghan, in 2002.

LeBron James
2003 McDonald's All American

1978 • Philadelphia

The first McDonald's All American Game was played at The Spectrum in Philadelphia in front of 13,063 fans. Rudy Woods, from Bryan High School in Gray, Georgia, who went on to star at Texas A&M, pulled down 16 rebounds and scored 13 points to help the West beat the East, 94-86. Woods earned the John Wooden Award as the game's Most Valuable Player.

Other contributors to the West team's victory included Mark Aguirre, (formerly with Detroit Pistons) who scored a team-high 17 points, while Vince Taylor and Tyren Naulis contributed with 13 and 11 points respectively.

The East team was led by Darryl Mitchell, who put up a game-high 20 points, along with Cornelius Thompson, who added 12 points in the loss.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson was on the first McDonald's All American team in 1977. The team, which included future NBA greats Albert King and Gene Banks, played a group of Washington, D.C.-area high school stars in the McDonald's Capital Classic.

Tim Thomas guards the lane during the 1996 Game held in Pittsburgh.

1979 • Charlotte

The roster in 1979 looked like a page from the NBA Register. Darren Daye (former UCLA Bruin and Boston Celtic) earned the Wooden Award as the East downed the West, 106-105, in overtime. Former Laker James Worthy, former Atlanta Hawk Dominique Wilkins, former Piston Isiah Thomas, and former NBA All-Star Game MVP Ralph Sampson also played.

Daye scored 22 points in a losing cause for the West, while Thomas added 19 points and ex-Notre Dame standout and former Chicago Bull John Paxson had 14.

The victorious East was led with 18 points from Horace Owens, who went on to play at Rhode Island and later with the New Jersey Nets. Wilkins chipped in 16 points while Dirk Minniefield and Quintin Dailey each had 14. Sampson and Worthy were limited to four and two points, respectively.

Future NBA star Dominique Wilkins drops in 2 of his 16 points during the 1979 McDonald's All American Game held in Charlotte, NC.

1980 • Oakland

Bay area fans witnessed a 135-111 West victory at the Oakland Coliseum, as former Purdue star Russell Cross scored 20 points

Glenn "Doc" Rivers and his son, Austin, became the second father/son duo in Games history when Austin made the team in 2011. Doc scored 20 points in the 1980 Game held in Oakland, CA.

to earn the Wooden Award as Most Valuable Player.

Glenn "Doc" Rivers, who went on to play at Marquette and play and coach for a number of NBA teams, also scored 20 points for the West. Kenny Fields added 18 points, while James Banks and Barry Spencer added 16 and 13 points respectively in the win.

Sam Perkins (formerly of the Indiana Pacers) pulled in a game-record 24 rebounds for the East to go with his 12 points. In all, eight East players scored in double digits, with Gary Springer, who went on to Iowa, leading the East with 18 points.

1981 • Wichita

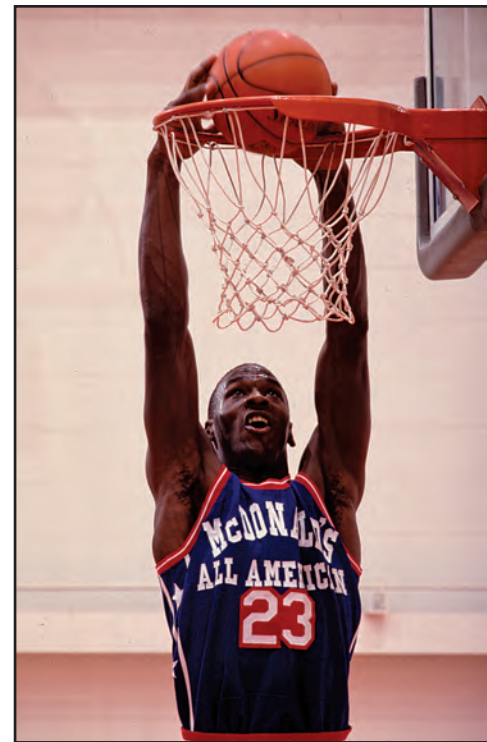

An underdog East Team won a 96-95 thriller in front of a crowd of more than 10,000 at the Henry Levitt Arena when Michael Jordan hit both ends of a one-and-one with 11 seconds left. Local Wichita player Aubrey Sherrod of the West and Adrian Branch of the East shared the Wooden Award for MVP. Jordan netted 30 points in the victory, an All American Games record that stood until 1999 when Jonathan Bender scored 31.

Branch (who played at Maryland) scored 24 points while Sherrod scored 19 points in front of the hometown fans to share West leading scorer honors with Bobby Lee Hurt.

Dream Team member and Golden State legend Chris Mullin registered two points for the East Team.

Michael Jordan and the East team's Milt Wagner went on to be on NCAA National Championship teams: Jordan with the University of North Carolina and Wagner at the University of Louisville.

Jordan has also won six NBA championships with the Chicago Bulls and was named one of the NBA's 50 greatest players.

At the 1981 Game in Wichita, Michael Jordan set the Games scoring record after dropping 30 points. The record stood until 1999.

1982 • Chicago

The Rosemont Horizon in suburban Chicago was the stage for a 103-84 West victory in front of 15,836, a then-games record. The attendance mark set that day stood as the highest in All American Game history for 13 years.

Efrem Winters, who starred at Martin Luther King High in Chicago and went on to play at the University of Illinois, was named MVP after scoring 19 points in front of the hometown fans. Kenny Walker, later an NBA slam dunk champion, scored 20 points for the winners.

Dell Curry scored 20 for the East while Billy Thompson added 15 and Ernie Myers chipped in 10 in a losing effort. Wayman Tisdale, Johnny Dawkins and North Carolina alum and former Cleveland Cavalier Brad Daugherty also played.

Nikki Blue looks to make a pass to an open teammate as the 2002 East Team crowds around her.

1983 • Atlanta

In the fifth annual McDonald's All American Game, the West won again, 115-113, with a come-from-behind victory in the last eight seconds at the Omni in Atlanta, Georgia.

Winston Bennett and Dwayne "The Pearl" Washington shared MVP honors.

Bennett scored 21 points for the victorious West to share leading scorer honors with James Blackmon of Marion, Indiana. Bennett and Blackmon went on to become teammates at the University of Kentucky.

Washington scored just 11 points but set what was then a game record for assists with eight, a mark which was tied by his teammate that day, Melvin Howard. Washington went on to play at Syracuse, Howard at Georgia State. The East's Tom Sheehy, who played collegiately at Virginia, led all scorers in the contest with 22 points.

Tommy Amaker, contributed five points playing guard on the East Team.

With the victory, the West squad took a 4-2 lead in the all-time series.

106 victory. For his efforts, Williams received the Wooden Award as MVP. Williams was backed that day by the co-Mr. Basketball’s from Indiana, Troy Lewis and Delray Brooks. Lewis, who went on to star at Purdue, scored 18 points, and Brooks, who started at Indiana before transferring to Providence, tossed in 16 points. Roger McClendon and Gary Grant contributed 15 and 16 points respectively in the victory.

Derrick Chievous paced the East squad with 16 points while Shelton Jones was a perfect seven for seven from the field and added 15 points in the loss.

Four years later the West team’s Danny Manning would lead Kansas to an NCAA championship and be named National Player of the Year.

1985 • Dallas

Northwestern University’s Walker Lambiotte scored 24 points to lead the East to a 128-98 victory at Moody Coliseum on the campus of Southern Methodist University, breaking the West’s three-game winning streak in the series.

Lambiotte sank his first seven shots and finished 10 of 12 from the field to earn the Wooden Award.

Danny Ferry (formerly a San Antonio Spur) and Terry Dozier backed Lambiotte with 17 points apiece. The West was led by Tito Horford and

1986 • Detroit

The East, led by MVP J.R. Reid, racked up 34 points in the fourth quarter to overcome a 12-point deficit to win 104-101.

Derrick Coleman contributed 19 points and 15 rebounds for the West squad in the 1986 Game.

Reid scored 23 points and was joined in the effort by Rumeal Robinson (19 points) and Steve Hood (16 points), as 15,527 fans looked on at Detroit's Joe Louis Arena. Terry Mills, who went on to become Robinson's teammate at Michigan, led the West with 20 points. Derrick Coleman, who led Syracuse to the 1987 NCAA championship game and was selected first overall in the 1990 NBA draft by the New Jersey Nets, had 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Also in double figures were the West's Dwayne Schintzius and Mark Randall with 15 apiece, and the East's Brian Oliver and Rex Chapman with 13 and 10, respectively.

With the victory, the East team closed the gap on the all-time series against the West team. The West held a 5-4 lead as the Game moved into their 10th year of existence.

1987 • Philadelphia

The McDonald's All American Game celebrated its 10th year by returning to The Spectrum, site of the inaugural contest. Brian Shorter scored 24 points to lead the East past the West, 118-110 and the East's Mark Macon tallied 14 points and picked up the MVP award.

Marcus Liberty led the West with 18 points. Five of Liberty's teammates also reached double digit point totals for the Game. Sean Higgins added 15 points, Larry Johnson dropped in 16 on 6 of 8 shooting, Brian Williams chipped in 10 while Jerome Harmon and Jay Edwards scored 12 and 11 points respectively.

Johnson (formerly of the New York Knicks), who scored 16 points in the game, would go on to win an NCAA championship at UNLV in 1991, and be named the 1992 NBA Rookie of the Year playing for the Charlotte Hornets.

Alonzo Mourning scored 16 points and Billy Owens grabbed 14 rebounds to lead the East, 105-99, at "The Pit" on the University of New Mexico campus. Mourning and Owens shared the Wooden Award for MVP.

The West team was led by Shawn Kemp, who scored a game-high 18 points. Five other West players, Chris Mills, Stanley Roberts, Todd Day and Eric Anderson also reached double digits in points in the loss.

In the 1992 NBA Draft, three of the five top selections were members of the 1988 McDonald's All American Team: the second pick was Alonzo Mourning, Christian Laettner was selected third and the fifth choice was LaPhonso Ellis. The first selection was Shaquille O'Neal and the fourth was Jimmy Jackson, both members of the 1989 McDonald's All American Team.

Other first round selections in the NBA Draft from the 1988 McDonald's All American Team were: Malik Sealy, Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, Jerrod Mustaf, Shawn Kemp, Chris Mills, Stanley Roberts, Todd Day, and Lee Mayberry.

Former Miami Heat star Alonzo Mourning scored 16 points during the 1988 All American Games.

1989 • Kansas City

The "Shaq Attack" hit Kemper Arena as Shaquille O'Neal scored 18 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked six shots to lead the West to a 112-103 victory and snap a four-year win streak by the East. O'Neal led a West squad that had six players reach double digits in points including Allan Houston, who chipped in 14. Duke's Bobby Hurley dished out 10 assists and added 10 points, enough to share the John Wooden Award with O'Neal. East

Arena. With the East nursing a two-point lead and just over three minutes remaining, the Arizona-bound Reeves scored nine straight points over the ensuing 1:18 to secure the victory. He finished with 22 points, as did the East's Clifford Rozier, while Adrian Autry handed 11 assists. Reeves set an All American Game record with 10 steals and shared the John Wooden MVP Award with the West's Shawn Bradley, who had 12 points, 10 rebounds, and six blocks. Sharing scoring honors for the West were Anthony Cade and Ed O'Bannon with 19 apiece. Grant Hill had 16, while Eric Montross added 12.

1991 • Springfield, MA

Chris Webber's dunk with six seconds remaining, his 10th of the game, capped a second half comeback and gave the West a thrilling 108-106 victory. The Michigan-bound Webber led the West with 28 points, 12 rebounds, and 3 blocks. Glenn Robinson added 20 points and eight boards to the winning cause.

Sharing the John Wooden MVP Award with Webber was the East's Rick Brunson, who stood out with 19 points, seven rebounds, and six assists. James Forrest (22 points, 10 rebounds) and Donald Williams (20 points) aided the East's effort.

The game was played in Springfield, "The Birthplace of Basketball," as part of the sport's centennial celebration.

With the victory, the West team evened the all-time series against the East at 7-7.

Chris Webber, West Team Most Valuable Player in 1991, was named the NBA's Rookie-of-the-Year in 1994.

Othella Harrington scored 19 points and grabbed 21 rebounds to lead the West to a 100-85 victory before an Easter Sunday crowd at Georgia Tech's Alexander Memorial Coliseum.

Harrington, the 1992 Big East Conference Rookie of the Year, was named MVP of the contest which the 7-7 tie in the all-time series.

West teammates Jason Kidd, and Corliss Williamson also contributed to the West's victory. Kidd registered six assists and hushed the crowd with his ball handling ability. Williamson grabbed 10 rebounds and chipped in 14 points.

Jason Kidd was the first round selection of the Dallas Mavericks and second overall choice in the 1994 NBA Draft.

The East was led by hometown favorite Carlos Strong. He showed tremendous versatility in scoring 19 points and also was the winner of the Slam Dunk contest. Other East contributors included Michael Lloyd (17 points) and Tony Delk (15 points).

1993 • Memphis

The 1993 McDonald's All American Game was billed as the coming out party for such great "big men" as Darnell Robinson, Rasheed Wallace, Jerald Honeycutt and Dontonio Wingfield. In the end, it was a little man who stole the show and left behind his mark.

West Team Most Valuable Player guard Jacque Vaughn broke Adrian Autry's assist record, dishing out 13 to Robinson and Charles O'Bannon.

Jerry Stackhouse totaled 27 points and took home the East Most Valuable Player Award.

Earlier in the week Stackhouse also won the dunk contest with a slam he appropriately nicknamed the "McStack Attack." Jeff McInnis, Stackhouse's teammate at Oak Hill Academy, as well as on the East Team, dished out seven assists. Wingfield was king of the backboards, pulling down 13 rebounds in 20 minutes of play.

Corey Maggette, scans the floor during the 1998 Game. Maggette's West squad lost to the East 128-112.

Rasheed Wallace (33 in red) takes the opening tip for the East squad in the 1993 Game held in Memphis. Wallace and the East beat the West 105-95.

1995 • St. Louis

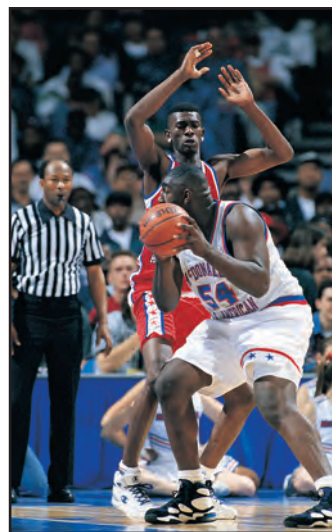

Chicago Farragut Academy's Kevin Garnett showed his incredible talents on a national stage for the first time scoring 18 points and grabbing 11 rebounds as the West Team won 126-115.

Garnett, who three months later was the fifth pick in the NBA Draft by the Minnesota Timberwolves, was named MVP earning the Wooden Award before a then McDonald's All American record crowd of 16,201 at the new Kiel Center in St. Louis.

Garnett was joined on the West team by Paul Pierce of Inglewood, California who tallied a game-high 28 points. Jelani McCoy and Robert Traylor also contributed to the victory, adding 13 points each. Stephon Marbury dished out 10 assists and scored 11 points and Ron Mercer poured in 19 points for the East Team.

Kevin Garnett throws down two of his 18 points during the 1995 Game. Garnett, who also had 11 rebounds, earned MVP honors.

Robert Traylor faces forward Randell Jackson in the 1995 McDonald's All American Game.

1996 • Pittsburgh

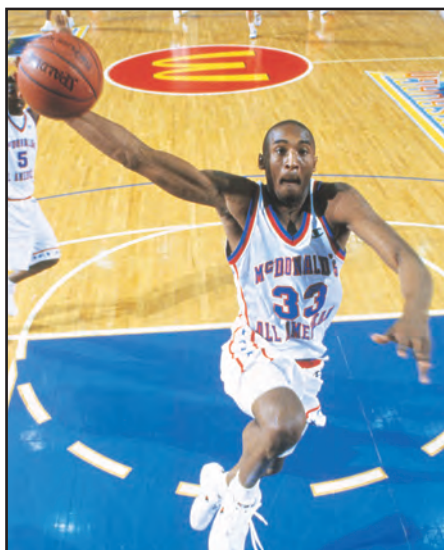

Pittsburgh hosted the 1996 McDonald's All American Game before a crowd of 13,411 and local fans were treated to a special little player. Guard Shaheen Holloway brought the crowd to its feet several times with spectacular passes earning the John Wooden Award given to the Most Valuable Player of the game, as the East came away with a 120-105 victory. Holloway, finished with seven points, eight assists and six steals. The East team was led in scoring by Stephen Jackson who finished with 21 points. Other stars included Richard Hamilton, Tim Thomas, Mike Bibby and Kobe Bryant.

Before being selected in the 1996 NBA Draft, Kobe Bryant helped the East team beat the West 120-105.

1997 • Colorado Springs

In the 20th Anniversary McDonald's All American Game, the East Team jumped out to an early lead and never looked back defeating the West Team 94-81 on the campus of the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Forward Elton Brand scored 16 points and Dion Glover added 15, as the East held off a furious second half rally by the home West Team. Kenny Gregory earned the John Wooden Award scoring a game high 18 points and exciting the crowd with dazzling dunks. The first set of twins competed in the contest, Jason and Jarron Collins, who both played at Stanford University, were named to the West Team.

In honor of the game's 20th Anniversary, McDonald's allowed fans to vote on an all-time team. The winners were: point guard Magic Johnson (1977), shooting guard Michael Jordan (1981), small forward Grant Hill (1990), power forward Christian Laettner (1988), and center Patrick Ewing (1981).

Kenny Gregory was the MVP of the 1997 Game and received the John Wooden Award.

1998 • Norfolk

The 21st Game took place before a sold-out crowd at the Scope Arena in Norfolk, VA, where the East defeated the West 128-112. Ronald

Curry of the East, dazzled fans with his MVP performance. He scored 19 points, corralled 13 rebounds, a McDonald's record for point guards, and nine assists, which gives him the fifth best assist game in McDonald's All American history. East teammate Jason Capel, who played with Ronald Curry at North Carolina, went on to score 22 points with slashing moves to the basket.

The West was led by both high scoring guard Quentin Richardson and JaRon Rush, who had 19 points each.

The West led 57-54 at half-time, but the East team came out in the second half to score 74 points. The West fought hard with 17 points from Rashard Lewis, and Quentin Richardson's 10 rebounds.

1999 • Ames

Michael Jordan's number was not his only possession retired during the 1999 McDonald's All American High School Basketball Game.

Picayune Memorial High School standout, Jonathan Bender scored 31 points, eclipsing Michael Jordan's game record of 30, as the West beat the East 141-128 in Iowa State's Hilton Coliseum. The Game was played in front of nearly 11,000 fans.

Carlos Boozer and Casey Jacobsen each added 22 points for the West team. Home crowd favorite Nick Collison of Iowa Falls added 16 posted a double-double (23 points and 15 rebounds). Leading all scorers was fellow West teammate DeShawn Stevenson who pitched in 25 points. Andre Brown of the West squad contributed with his own double-double (20 points and 14 rebounds), while teammate Darius Miles pitched in with 17 points. The West squad shot an amazing 48.9 percent from the field, as they scored 118 of their 146 points in the paint, and led by as much as 33 points when they pulled away in the third quarter.

The East squad's Darius Rice, who shot 50 percent from three-point land (4 of 8), led the team in scoring with 24 points. Roman Catholic High School's Eddie Griffin contributed with 19 points (2-for-2 from three-point land and 3-for-3 from the foul line), and Gerald Wallace pitched in with a double-double (15 points and 10 rebounds). Andre Barrett's 12 assists tied Erick Barkley (West, 1998) for second most in McDonald's All American Game history.

2001 • Durham

Eddy Curry led the West back from a 15-point halftime deficit, and with his 28-point performance, earned the John R. Wooden Award as game MVP. The fans at Cameron Indoor Stadium got their money's worth as they saw one of the greatest comebacks in McDonald's All American history. The East led 75-60 at halftime due to a great offensive attack led by Dajuan Wagner, Chris Thomas and Julius Hodge, who each scored 11 points in the opening half.

Kelvin Torbert's 21 points and Daniel Ewing's 10, helped erase the deficit to one after the third quarter. West guard, T.J. Ford, missed a triple-double by only three assists as he recorded 11 points and 10 rebounds in the game.

The East was led by Wagner's 25 points, and Kwame Brown's 17. James White and David Lee added 19 and 21 respectively for their squads as the West won 131-125.

2002 McDonald's All American

2002 • New York

The inaugural McDonald's All American girls game was about as even as it gets, with 23 lead changes during this significant event.

Ann Strother (formerly of Atlanta Dream) had 21 points, three blocks and three steals in leading her West squad to a 94-85 victory and an early 1-0 lead in the game series.

2002 co-MVP Ann Strother (formerly of Atlanta Dream) drives to the basket for two of her 21 points.

The East took an early lead but was up only by one at the end of the first quarter. There were four ties in the second quarter, which ended with the West leading by one at halftime.

The West went on an 11-to-3 run late in the third quarter, but ended the quarter ahead by only five. The East came back in the fourth and was up by one with 2:53 remaining in the game, but the West finished the game going 6-for-6 from the foul line.

Shanna Zolman (formerly of the Tulsa Shock) led the East with 21 points and five assists and led both teams with a game-high seven steals. For their outstanding performance, Zolman and Strother were named Co-MVP's and received the distinction of being the John R. Wooden Award winners for the inaugural girls game.

2002 • New York

J. J. Redick, the 2002 POWERADE Jam Fest three point shoot-out champion, led the East to victory in the 25th annual boys game with 26 points. Rashad McCants added a solid 22 points and six rebounds to help guarantee the win.

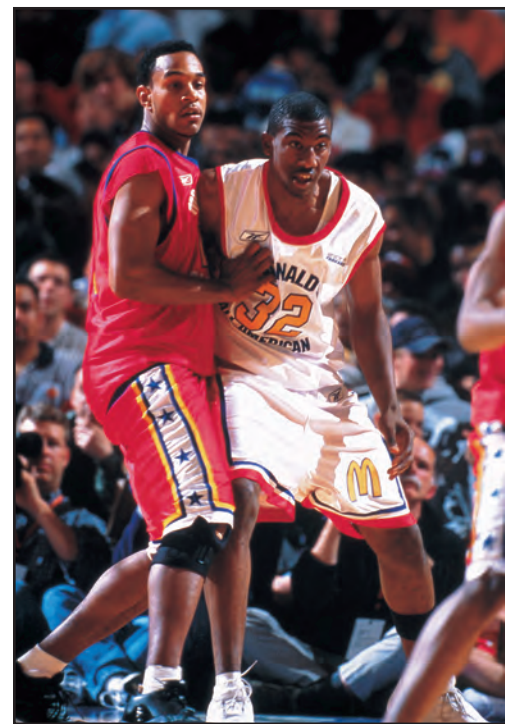

Bracey Wright was the bright spot for the West squad as he led the team with 16 points and 11 rebounds.

Chris Bosh's 14 points and seven rebounds helped cut into the East's lead, but the West only came within 19 points twice during the second half. Redick hit consecutive three-pointers for the second time in the game to make it 87-62 with 4:44 left in the third quarter. Redick went 10-for-15 from the field, including 5-for-6 from three-point range. He also had four assists and was chosen for the John R. Wooden MVP Award.

The West went on a 10-point run with 10 minutes remaining in the third quarter led by a steal, five made free-throws and a dunk all by Wright.

However, the West could not contain the East's Carmelo Anthony and Jason Fraser in the final stretch, as they scored 19 and 13 points respectively.

Amar'e Stoudemire (white #32) posts up against DeAngelo Collins in the 2002 game.

2003 • Cleveland

The second annual McDonald's All American girls game displayed teamwork at its best as the West squad was led by an all around balanced attack in defeating the East.

Katie Gearlds and Erin Lawless paced the West squad in their 92-72 victory and to a 2-0 lead in the game series. Gearlds contributed with 17 points, four assists and three rebounds, while Lawless added 16 points, six rebounds and three assists. Gearlds was named MVP and was backed up by solid performances from Jennifer Hall who scored 10 points and Liz Podominick who added 11 for the West team.

Erin Lawless looks to score two of her 16 points against Camille Little in leading the West team to victory in 2003.

The East squad was led by Ivory Latta with 12 points and three steals. Cori Chambers also added 12 points, six rebounds and five steals. Alison Bales set a game record with nine blocks for the East.

The 18,728 fans in Gund Arena broke the all-time attendance record for a McDonald's All American Game as it surpassed the 18,624 mark that was set in 2000 at the Fleet Center in Boston.

2003 • Cleveland

In his last high school basketball game in the state of Ohio, LeBron James, the 2003 POWERADE Jam Fest Slam Dunk Champion, put on a show for the hometown crowd as he led the East to victory in the 26th annual boys game with 27 points.

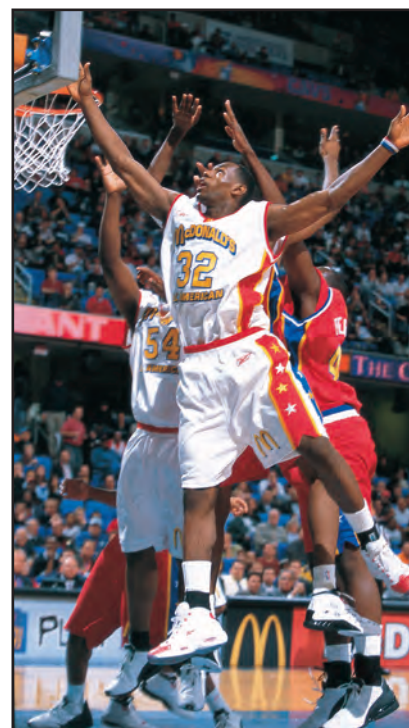

Shannon Brown sparked the West as he scored 23 points to lead the team.

The East ran out to an early lead and never looked back. Chris Paul, who had a game high 10 assists, converted an array of lob passes to numerous East teammates. The first half was topped off though by a no look alley-oop pass from LeBron James to Charlie Villanueva as he went up, dunked on two defenders and drew the foul.

The West had a consistent attack as both J.R. Giddens and Kris Humphries both chipped in with 16 points. Leon Powe had a solid game with 15 points and a game high 12 rebounds.

The East had respectable performances from Villanueva and James Lang as they scored 17 and 15 respectively. Michael Jones, Andrew Lavender, Travis Outlaw and Brandon Bass also scored in double digits.

James shot an astonishing 12-24 from the floor to go along with his seven rebounds and seven assists. He was chosen for the John R. Wooden MVP Award.

LeBron James goes for two of his game-high 27 points in the 2003 East team's 122-107 victory.

2004 • Oklahoma City

The third annual McDonald's All American girls game showcased one of the most talented rosters of high school players ever assembled.

Paced by the brilliant play of John R. Wooden MVP winner Alexis Hornbuckle, the Girls East Team routed the West, 91-66.

(Left) Candace Parker looks to score two of her team high 19 points in 2004.

Hornbuckle had a game high 22 points and knocked down 4 out of 5 from three-point range. She also recorded six rebounds, two steals and two assists. She helped the East Team jump out to a 39-22 halftime lead and they never looked back.

Wanisha Smith added 15 points and Laura Harper brought down seven rebounds for the victorious East squad. The East Team shot a remarkable 58 percent from three-point range and 41 percent from the field.

POWERADE Jam Fest slam dunk competition winner and national media sensation Candace Parker led the East with 19 points, grabbed a game high 10 rebounds and blocked a game high four shots. The West also saw a solid contribution from Charde Houston, who tallied 10 points and five rebounds. This is the first time in the three-year history of the girls game that the East team defeated the West.

2004 • Oklahoma City

In the Games first appearance in the state of Oklahoma, the 14,424 in attendance were treated to a high scoring affair which featured seven NBA first round draft picks.

The East broke out to an early lead with their impressive inside-outside game. Five East Team players scored in double figures, led by J.R. Smith's game high 25 points. J.R. excited the crowd on numerous occasions with his high flying dunks and long distance jumpers. The East also saw a solid contribution from Dwight Howard, who amassed 19 points and eight rebounds. J.R. and Dwight shared the John R. Wooden Most Valuable Player Award. The East controlled the second half of the game, en route to their 126-96 victory.

Other key contributors for the East included power forward Al Jefferson, who recorded 16 points and 11 rebounds, and swingman Rudy Gay, who put up 10 points and four assists. Point guard Sebastian Telfair, dished out a game high 11 assists and Rajon Rondo had 14 points and four assists.

The West Team had several outstanding players who shared the spotlight. DeMarcus Nelson led the West with 22 points and five rebounds. High school teammates from Detroit, Joe Crawford and Malik Hairston contributed 15 and 11 points respectively, while 6'11 center and first round draft pick Robert Swift added 10 points and five rebounds.

2004 Co-MVP Dwight Howard (red #12) puts in two of his 19 points.

four years. The West was led by stellar play from game MVP Courtney Paris who contributed 16 points, 12 rebounds and four blocks. She helped set the pace when the West went on a 20-5 run to break the game open. The West shot a solid 56 percent from the floor in the second half and 50 percent from beyond the arc. Paris' brilliant play was matched by teammate Alexis Gray-Lawson who poured in 12 points and dished out three assists and three steals. The Morgan Wootten National Player of the Year Abby Waner added nine points, four rebounds and three assists for the West.

Other key contributors for the West were Lindsay Schrader and Ashley Paris who dropped in nine and eight points respectively.

The East received a game-high 19 points from Marissa Coleman and 12 points from Carrem Gay. Kia Vaughn ripped down seven boards to go along with her four points.

2005 • South Bend

At first glance, the 2005 edition of the McDonald's All American boys team seemed to lack the "star power" of the 2003 and 2004 squads as they invaded Notre Dame's Joyce Center in March 2005. That perception was soon put to rest as seven players were taken in the 2005 NBA Draft.

Unlike most all-star events, the 2005 McDonald's Game was a close contest that brought much excitement to the Joyce Center. The East held a hefty lead most of the game and at one point reached 22 points thanks to high flying Gerald Green, who led all scorers with 24 points on 8-of-12 shooting. Game MVP Josh McRoberts had 17 points on 7-of-8 shooting and grabbed a game high 12 rebounds. Greg Paulus had nine assists and 13 points, making 7-of-8 free throws in the final 2 minutes to help the East hang on to the 115-110 victory.

Other key contributors for the East included shooting guards Louis Williams and Eric Devendorf, who recorded 14 and 13 points respectively.

The West team had several players who helped lead the charge from their 22-point deficit. Mario Chalmers led the West with a team high 20 points, five steals and five assists. Martell Webster started the game with two consecutive three-point baskets on his way to 16 points for the contest. Small forward Julian Wright had a solid performance with 14 points, four assists and three rebounds.

2006 • San Diego

Fans swarmed San Diego State's Cox Arena for the 2006 edition of the McDonald's All American Games. A sold out crowd of 11,900 were treated to a tightly contested first game, as the girls game kicked-off the action.

Morgan Wooten Player of the Year award recipient and East Team superstar Tina

Charles turned in a strong performance with 12 points and nine rebounds. But the night's star and John R. Wooden Most Valuable Player of the Game was the West Team's Jayne Appel with 12 points, seven rebounds and a great all-around performance. Dymond Simon added a great offensive performance with her game high 14 points, while Amanda Thompson led the way defensively with five blocked shots. The West Team was coached by Wade Vickery of Santana High School (Santee, CA) and the East Team was headed by coaching legend Leta Andrews of Granbury High School (Granbury, TX) who became the all-time winningest girls coach in 2006.

The 2006 edition of the girls game went down to the wire and the 80-76 margin makes it the closest contest to date. After trailing at the half, the West team put together a strong second half performance to pull out another victory, as they lead the series 4-1.

The halftime performance by hip hop artist Nick Cannon took second stage to the showcase of basketball talent at the 2006 McDonald's All American Games.

A sold-out boys game was headlined by hometown favorite and co-Most Valuable Player of the Game, Chase Budinger who had 11 points, four assists, three steals and three rebounds. He shared the John R. Wooden Most Valuable Player Award with West-squad teammate Kevin Durant, who racked-up 25 points, five rebounds, four assists and two steals. The East Team was led by Gerald Henderson with 16 points and Thaddeus Young with 14 points. Morgan Wooten Player of the Year award winner and Boy's East Team player Greg Oden also had a stellar game with 10 points, five rebounds and four blocks despite an injured right wrist.

The 2006 crop of McDonald's All Americans made a huge impact during their inaugural season in the NCAA, including placing three players each on the 2007 rosters of the ACC Champion-North Carolina Tarheels, and Big Ten Champion-Ohio State Buckeyes. The Big 12 Champion-Kansas Jayhawks also boast two players from this squad.

The West Team came back from being down 20 points during the first half to win the game 112-94. The West's victory is their first since 2001 and narrows the series lead to 16-13 in favor of the East squad.

Wooten Award winner Greg Oden faces up against Robin Lopez in 2006.

The sixth annual Girls Game kicked off an action packed evening at Freedom Hall. A crowd of nearly 12,000 fans witnessed two record-breaking performances by the All American girls.

Wootten Award winner Maya Moore led the East Squad with 18 points and tied the record for most field goals in a game with eight, while Kelley Cain added 10 points and a new single game record 14 rebounds.

Kayla Pedersen was high scorer for the West Team with 18 points. She also led the team in rebounds with 12. Other West Team notables included, Angie Bjorklund, who poured in 13 points and Victoria Baugh, who pulled down nine rebounds.

Wootten Award winner, Maya Moore displays her player of the year skills during the 2007 contest.

The 2007 John R. Wooden MVP Award went to Jasmine Thomas. She scored 16 points, grabbed nine rebounds and dished six assists in just 15 minutes on the court. The coaches and her All American teammates voted Drey Mingo as the Naismith Award winner for Sportsmanship during event week.

The west All Americans maintained an all-time series 4-2, but the 2007 game was a memorable night for the East. They jumped out to a big halftime lead and never looked back, as they dominated the game from start to finish.

2007 • Louisville

The crowd at Freedom Hall was electric as super-producer Timbaland took the court with the All American girls for a halftime performance to remember. That atmosphere carried over into an exciting second half of basketball, as the 30th annual Boys Game went down to the wire.

J.J. Hickson scored a team-high 14 points, while shooting 78% from the field, for the East squad. Naismith Sportsmanship Award winner Gani Lawal recorded a double-double with 12 points and 12 rebounds. Nick Calathes contributed with a solid performance, as he scored 13 points (3-3 from beyond the arc), grabbed five rebounds and dished out six assists.

The West Team was led by Michael Beasley, as he tallied 23 points and 12 rebounds. Both of those totals place Beasley in the record books and for that he was crowned the John R. Wooden MVP of the game. Wootten Award winner Kevin Love proved he was deserving of the honor, as he added 13 points and six rebounds. Long-range specialist, Jerryd Bayless added 11 points and was a perfect 2-2 from three-point range.

Shooting 54% from the field and 42% from three-point land, the West Team took an 11-point lead into the locker room. A strong defensive effort by the East Team in the second half helped keep the game close. The West squad was limited to just one three point basket and three free throws in the second half. Held scoreless from the 2:31 mark on, the West relied on solid defense and an errant shot at the buzzer to escape with the 114-112 victory.

O.J. Mayo goes up for shot over Wootten Award winner Kevin Love.

watch an East Team, filled with an array of big name talent, dominate a smaller, lesser-known West Team. However, it was the West Team's shooting and team play that prevailed in the 80-64 victory and a commanding 5-2 series lead.

Brooklyn Pope led a balanced attack for the West Team, as she tallied a team high 13 points. Teammates Tiffany Hayes, Nikki Speed and Nnemkadi Ogwumike added 9 points each. Ashley Gayle showcased her jumping ability, as she swatted an incredible six shots, which placed her second all-time.

The East Squad's offensive attack was headed by Shekinna Stricklen with a game high 17 points. The 2008 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year, Elena Delle Donne, contributed a double-double, as she netted 10 points and grabbed 11 rebounds. That rebound total (at the time) placed her in a tie for fifth placed overall.

The 2008 John R. Wooden MVP Award went to co-recipients Nikki Speed and Brooklyn Pope, while LaSondra Barrett took home the Naismith Award for Sportsmanship during the week's events.

2008 • Milwaukee

Nearly 11,000 fans filled the Bradley Center and witnessed a closely contested 107-102 victory by the visiting East Team. The victory widens the East's lead in the overall series to 17-14 and stops a two game winning streak by the West Team.

The John R. Wooden MVP Award was given to Tyreke Evans, as he led the East squad in both points (21) and rebounds (10). Michael Rosario contributed 18 points and five steals. That steal total (at the time) earned Rasario a tie for fifth place all-time in the record books.

Willie Warren led the West Team with 23 points on 65% shooting from the field. Brandon Jennings had a solid game with 12 points, five rebounds and nine assists, which (at the time) placed him in the 10th spot all-time. The West featured a balanced attack where six players scored in double figures and four players grabbed five or more rebounds.

The West Team also featured the 2008 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year and the Naismith Sportsmanship Award winner. They were Greg Monroe and Luke Babbitt respectively.

This game looked to be a great match-up from the tip. The teams traded buckets, had three ties and four lead changes within the first three minutes of the game. However, the East Team grabbed the lead at 8-6 and kept it the remainder of the game. The West Squad fought hard to keep the lead to single digits and had it down to a two point game late in the second period, but they couldn't overcome a 14 rebound deficit and 52% shooting from the East Team.

The West Team grabbed a hard-fought 69-68 victory in the opener at the BankUnited Center. The contest was close throughout and came down to a missed free throw with seconds remaining. Kelly Faris was fouled as she was forced to take a desperation 3-pointer with two seconds to go. After nailing the first two shots, the third came up short and so did the frantic comeback of the East Team.

Eliza Pierre and Erica Wheeler scramble for a loose ball during the 2009 contest.

In a game that was dominated by defense, the West Squad managed to get double figure scoring from only five players. Taber Spani, Christina Marinacci and DeNesha Stallworth led the offensive attack with 11 points each, while Gennifer Brandon added 10. Tierra Ruffin-Pratt poured in 10 points and grabbed a team high 10 rebounds.

The East Team was led by Skylar Diggins, who scored 18 points, grabbed five rebounds and nabbed three steals. Morgan Wootten Player of the Year Kelsey Bone and TaShauna Rodgers contributed with 10 points and five rebounds each. Kelly Faris provided an all-around solid performance, as she paced the East in rebounds with seven, added four points, three steals, three assists and two blocks in just 15 minutes of play.

For their efforts, Skylar Diggins and Tierra Ruffin-Pratt were selected as the John R. Wooden MVP's of the game. Unable to play due to injury, Stephanie Holzer was given the Naismith Sportsmanship Award for her involvement in the week's events and for the support she displayed towards her fellow All Americans.

The All American Boys treated nearly 6,000 fans to one of the best All American Games in recent history. The high scoring, back-and-forth game kept everyone on the edge of their seats. It wasn't until Morgan Wootten Player of the Year Derrick Favors slammed home an alley oop pass from Lance Stephenson, with just 40 seconds remaining, that the East Team felt in control.

Top contributors to the East victory were John R. Wooden MVP Award winner Favors, with 19 points and eight rebounds, and Dante Taylor, with 15 points and six rebounds. Lance Stephenson added a solid performance that consisted of 12 points, four rebounds, six assists and three steals. Peyton Siva put his name in the record books, as he compiled nine assists.

The West Team used a balanced offensive attack that resulted with six players scoring in double figures. Keith Gallon was the top performer for the West Squad in both points (20) and rebounds (7), while Naismith Sportsmanship Award winner Avery Bradley, Jr. tallied 15 points and six rebounds. John Henson shot an incredible 70% from the field, which led to 14 points.

The East Team came back from an eight point halftime deficit, due in large part to strong second half shooting (60%) and a 19 point advantage from their bench players. The 113-110 victory increased the East's lead to 18-14 in the overall series.

that they had what it took to control all facets of the game. Early on, the Game was tightly contested and no team had an edge. That all changed with 9:55 to go in the half when Karla Gilbert drained a jumper that put the West Team on top for good. The East squad outscored the West in the second half, but couldn't get any closer than six points the rest of the way.

For the West Team, Co-MVP Meighan Simmons dropped in a game high 21 points and Madison Williams grabbed 13 rebounds, while National Player of the Year Chiney Ogwumike shot 75% from the field in route to 14 points. Karla Gilbert also had a great all around game with 15 points, on five of six shooting, three rebounds and five steals. Richa Jackson pitched in with 12 points on five of eleven shooting.

Natasha Howard led the East squad in points (20), rebounds (9) and assists (5). She was rewarded for her efforts by being named the Co-MVP of the game. Other East Team standouts include Bria Hartley and Stefanie Dolson. Hartley contributed with 17 points and five steals, while Dolson added 12 points and eight rebounds.

The 2010 All American Game will go down as one of the best match ups of all time. Fans at the Value City Arena were treated to a game that had 17 lead changes and wasn't decided until the final seconds.

Brandon Knight made a deep three pointer from the corner, with just seconds left on the clock, to secure the win for the West. However, it was National Player of the Year Harrison Barnes who paced the West squad with a remarkable offensive effort. He shot 70% from the field, which resulted in a team high 18 points. Defensively, Fab Melo dominated the paint, as he tallied all three blocks recorded by the West Team.

Tobias Harris scored 13 points on six of seven shooting, to aide a balanced attack for the East Team, which included five players scoring in double digits and a shooting percentage of 53% for the game. In an offensive preview of his playing days in college and the pros, Jared Sullinger was the game's high scorer with 22 points.

For their combined efforts, Sullinger and Barnes were named the Games Co-MVP's. Kendall Marshall took home the Naismith Sportsmanship Award, while Corey Joseph won the three point contest and Josh Shelby triumphed in the Slam Dunk contest, at the POWERADE Jam Fest

In the 10th Annual Girls Game, Morgan Wootten Player of the Year and Game MVP Elizabeth Williams set the all-time scoring mark with 23 points, while leading the East team to a 78-66 victory. Williams dominated the game from start to finish, scoring the team's opening basket and closing two points en route to her record setting performance. Local standout Ariel Massengale tacked on 13 additional points for the East team whose largest deficit was by two points in the opening minutes.

Brianna Banks and Kaleena Mosqueda-Lewis carried the West squad with a team-high 17 and 12 points, respectively. Down by as many as 24 points in the second half, the West team closed out the second half on a high note, outscoring the opposition 21-9. Despite the East's victory, the West holds the all-time series lead, 7-3.

Cierra Burdick was honored before the game with the Naismith Sportsmanship Award, while Mosqueda-Lewis won the three point contest and Ariya Crook-Williams won the skills competition at the POWERADE Jam Fest.

Returning to Chicago for the first time since 1982, the 2011 McDonald's All American Games played host to 20,018 fans at a sold-out United Center, showcasing the nation's top prep basketball talent. The record-setting crowd saw several familiar names take the court – Austin Rivers, son of 1980 McDonald's All American, Doc Rivers, marking only the second father/son duo in the event's history; Cody Zeller, the third Zeller to be named a McDonald's All American, following brothers Luke (2005) and Tyler (2008); and Marshall Plumlee, following brother Mason who played in 2009.

The Boys East squad completed a near wire-to-wire victory in its 111-96 win over the West team in the 34th Annual Boys Game. Co-MVPs James McAdoo and Michael Gilchrist led the way for the East with 17 and 16 points, respectively. Two big men, Khem Birch and Chicago-native Anthony Davis, carried the West in defeat with a combined 29 points and 10 blocks. The East victory increased their all-time series lead to 19-15.

Gilchrist took home the Naismith Sportsmanship Award, while Kyle Wiltjer won the three point contest and LeBryan Nash triumphed in the Slam Dunk contest at the POWERADE Jam Fest.

The 2012 Games (combined boys & girls) attracted 16,308 fans, contributing to the highest consecutive attendance total in Games' history (2011-2012) and raised more than $650,000 for Ronald McDonald House Charities of Chicagoland & Northwest Indiana. Funds from the Games helped to construct the nation's largest Ronald McDonald House in Chicago.

The 11th annual Girls Game featured the closest margin of victory in the history of the McDonald's All American Games. The back-and-forth contest wasn't decided until a Bashaara Graves' free throw with less than a second left sealed a 79-78 win for the East squad. The East team's Alexis Prince earned MVP honors tallying 15 points and nine rebounds. The West Team was led by Nirra Fields' game-high 20 points and 18 points from local standout, Morgan Tuck. Even in defeat, the West team still holds the all-times series lead with a record of 7-4.

Brittney Sykes was honored before the game with the Jack Daly Sportsmanship Award, while Tuck won the three point contest and Jordan Jones won the skills competition at the POWERADE Jam Fest.

Morgan Wootten Player of the Year, Breanna Stewart, avoids two defenders as she scores two points in the East's 79-78 victory.

In 2012, the McDonald's All American Games returned to Chicago and the United Center, making it the first time in history that the Games were played in the same host city back-to-back. The 2012 Games also marked an important milestone – the 35th Anniversary of the Boys Game. In celebration of this important anniversary, the McDonald's All American Games unveiled its 35 Greatest, a list which recognized some of the greatest players in Games' history.

The 35th annual Boys Game came down to the final seconds with the West team holding on to win 106-102. After leading by 25 points in the second half, the West team, led by Game MVP and Shabazz Muhammad and the three-point shooting of Rasheed Sulaimon, pulled out a victory despite a furious rally by the East team. Muhammad led all scorers with 21 points while Sulaimon chipped in 18 points in the victory. The East squad was led by Alex Poythress' 19 points, Rodney Purvis' 15 points and 12 rebounds from DaJuan Coleman. With the victory, the West team narrowed the gap on the East's all-time series lead, which now stands at 19-16.

Devonta Pollard took home the Jack Daly Sportsmanship Award, while Sulaimon won the three point contest and Muhammad triumphed in the Slam Dunk contest at the POWERADE Jam Fest.

2013 • Chicago

For the third year in a row, the 2013 McDonald's All American Games took place at Chicago's United Center. The 2013 Games (combined boys & girls) were played in front of a crowd of 15,818. Combined with the attendance figures of the 2011 and 2012 Games, the 2013 Games capped off the highest three-year attendance run in Games history.

The 12th annual Girls Game featured its own bit of history as 2013 Morgan Wootten Player of the Year, Taya Reimer, and her father, 1991 Games alumnus Ben Davis, became the first father/daughter duo in Games history.

On the court, the West team defeated the East squad 92-64. The West team's Mercedes Russell took home MVP honors after tallying a game-high 16 points and 12 rebounds. Russell's

West teammate, Jordan Reynolds, chipped in an additional 10 points and 11 rebounds while Tyler Scaife added 15 points. In a losing effort, Diamond DeShields led the East team with 15 points while Stephanie Mavunga made a run at a number of all-time Girls Game records after corraling 13 rebounds and blocking six shots. Mavunga's performance moved her into second on the McDonald's All American Girls list in blocks and rebounds. With the victory, the West team increased its lead over the East team in the all-time series 8-4.

At halftime, Linnae Harper, Erica McCall and Kelsey Plum were awarded with the Jack Daly Sportsmanship Award for exhibiting the best sportsmanship during Games week.

The 36th annual Boys Game made history by featuring a record six players on the boy's roster committed to the same university. Twins Aaron and Andrew Harrison, Julius Randle, Dakari Johnson, Marcus Lee and James Young all went on to attend the University of Kentucky.

In addition to the historic lineup, the Boys Game featured a matchup between Morgan Wootten Player of the Year and local Chicago star, Jabari Parker and top recruit, Andrew Wiggins as well as Randle, a late addition to the team. Randle, who was hurt early in his high school season, was named the 25th player on the boy's squad after returning to true All American form.

Despite these stars sharing the spotlight, high-flying Aaron Gordon led the West team to a 110-99 victory. Gordon stole the show and earned MVP honors by scoring 24 points and grabbing eight rebounds. Parker added 10 points and eight rebounds for the West squad while Wiggins and future Kansas teammate Wayne Selden combined for 32 points. Despite the loss, the East squad maintained a 19-17 in the all-time Games series.

Demetrius Jackson brought home two pieces of hardware from his time in Chicago after earning the Jack Daly Sportsmanship Award and winning the skills competition at the POWERADE® Jam Fest. Also at the POWERADE Jam Fest, Nigel Williams-Goss shot his way to the three point contest victory.

BEST COMMUNITY BANKS IN TOWN.

Every bank talks about how great they are, but not everyone can back it up. Don't take our word for it, see what some of our customers have to say about us:

"I always feel welcome when I come into the bank, more like a friend than a customer. Any time I need help with my accounts I always get it right away. I think your people do a great job and I'm always satisfied with the service you provide. I like the community services such as the Platinum Club and the shredding events that you offer. Everyone gets an A Plus from me"

"Even though my funds are limited EVERY time I go to your bank I feel like I have millions because of the way I am always treated."

"I love the community feeling and the great customer service. It's completely opposite of the mega banks."

"This is one of the best local banks in the country. We appreciate all you have done for us. Everyone is friendly, courteous, knowledgeable and efficient. Love the community events for the kids, like Santa Claus, Easter Bunny, the find the pig game, etc."

"It's like the 'Cheers' of banks... everyone knows your name!"

"You're a great bank. Just having a human answer the phone is the best."
