

ADA's 1979 Voting Record

ADA's Voting Record has been issued each year since ADA's founding in 1947. Issues are selected by a committee of ADA members and cover a gamut of judicial, social, economic, foreign and military policy.

Votes selected display sharp liberal/conservative divisions unblurred by extraneous matters. ADA often chooses procedural votes, since votes on rules for debate, on procedures for amending legislation, or on amendments themselves may reveal basic attitudes obscured in a final vote of passage or defeat.

Note, too, that ADA often supports legislation which falls short of our full legislative goals with respect to the issue; something is frequently better than nothing.

Each Member is rated plus or minus on each vote. Prior to 1974, a Member earned a plus by voting in harmony with liberal policies, or by pairing in favor of the liberal position, or-if absent-by officially announcing a position in harmony with liberal policies.

In 1974 ADA decided that henceforth neither dead pairs nor a simple announcement of position would earn a Member a plus. (Pairing is a traditional congressional courtesy, an agreement between a proponent and an opponent that each will refrain from voting, since their votes would cancel each other. In a dead pair, both Members are absent. In a live pair one Member is present and would have voted had he/she not been paired.

This voting record is offered as a guide in judging the legislator's work in committee. It does not reflect the failure of Congress to deal with some major issues, or the degree of responsibility of individual legislators. These judgements cannot be expressed in percentages and require careful scrutiny of individual performance.

NOTE: The overall 1979 average rating of the House actually is four percent higher than the 1978 average. This figure is deceptive, however. Many liberals and moderates in both parties, recognizing a conservative trend in the House, proposed only the most modest of reforms. ADA's choice of votes to tally therefore was narrowed. Note that in 1978 only five of the 20 votes selected by ADA displayed liberal majorities, while in 1979, eight such votes appeared, out of 19.

Consequently, individual scores--Liberal Quotients--for House Members are inflated. Readers should pay close attention to the issues in evaluating the performance of their Representatives from a liberal perspective. And, in general, readers should discount the IQ of each Representative from five to 10 percent. Some Members who received 100 percent scores, for example, presumably would have received lower scores had the House held recorded votes on, say, substantial increases in spending for badly needed social programs or on some of the motions in committee which this year weakened federal regulation of industry and commerce.

place in Congress, but among the NATO partners.

HUMAN RIGHTS

Successive efforts were made this year to weaken legislation which bans arms to Chile and Argentina, as well as legislation which prohibits military aid to repressive governments. A bipartisan coalition in the House Foreign Affairs Committee, spear-headed by Representatives Don Bonker (D-Wash.), Donald Pease (D-Ohio), and Gerry Studds (D-Mass.), easily defeated the first effort. On the Senate side, Frank Church (D-Ida.) and Paul Sarbanes (D-Md.) led the successful fight to defeat a similar proposal by Senator Hayakawa (R-Calif.). Senator Kennedy (D-Mass.) displayed his legislative prowess by staving off Jesse Helms' sorties on the floor.

The one case in which Congress asserted itself was on the question of the restoration of military training to Guatemala. In the House, Representative Pease once again led a bipartisan effort to deny this aid and was supported by Edward Zorinsky (D-Neb.) in the Senate. The issue, however, is not dead. The new U.S. ambassador to Guatemala, as well as elements in the Pentagon and the National Security Council, are lobbying for U.S. military assistance to the present government.

When we turn to Asia, however, Congress' role in challenging the Administration on human rights has been disappointing, although a spirited but unsuccessful effort was made in the House Foreign Affairs Committee to slow up—on human rights grounds—delivery of military aid to Marcos of the
