Summary

- The Conservatives won an overall majority of 11 seats in the House of Commons, not including the Speaker.
- The Conservatives won 330 seats, Labour won 232, and the SNP won 56.
- The Conservatives polled 11.3 million votes, 36.8% of the vote. This compares with 36.1% in the 2010 General Election.
- Labour polled 9.3 million votes, 30.4% of the vote. This compares with 29.0% in the 2010 General Election.
- Compared with the results of the 2010 election:
  - The Conservatives gained 35 seats and lost 11 (a net change of +24).
  - Labour gained 22 seats and lost 48 (a net change of -26).
  - The Liberal Democrats lost 49 seats.
  - The Scottish National Party gained 50 seats.
- The SNP won 56 of Scotland's 59 seats and 50.0% of the vote in Scotland, the Party's highest ever share of Scottish seats and votes at a General Election.
- 24.9% of the vote went to parties other than the Conservatives, Labour or Liberal Democrats – a record high.
- UKIP won 12.6% of the vote, compared to 3.1% in 2010. Douglas Carswell (Clacton) became the Party's first MP to be elected at a general election. The Green Party won 3.8% of the UK vote, compared to 1.0% in 2010.
- Plaid Cymru won 12.1% of the vote across Wales compared to 11.3% in 2010 and retained three MPs.
- In Northern Ireland, the DUP has eight MPs, Sinn Féin four, the SDLP three and the UUP two. The independent MP Sylvia Hermon retained her seat.
- Following the May 2015 General Election 29% of MPs are women, compared to 23% in 2010. 191 women, the highest ever number, were elected.
- Turnout across the UK was 66.2%, a slight rise compared to 65.1% in 2010.

General Election 2015 - Seat Winners

General Election 2015 seat winners in equal sized constituencies

In the map below, all 650 constituencies in the UK are shown as equal size. This corrects for the disproportionate weighting of constituencies in geographic maps. For example, Labour constituencies tend to be urban and smaller in area than rural and Conservative constituencies. A map with equal sized areas provides an alternative presentation which is not affected by these factors.

1. Introduction

The Conservative Party won an overall majority in the May 2015 General Election, their first since 1992. Following the election, the Conservative Party is the largest with 330 MPs and Labour the second largest with 232. The Scottish National Party is the third largest party with 56 MPs. This is the first time since 1945 that this position has been held by a party other than the Liberal Democrats or its predecessors.

2015 General Election: Share of the votes and seats by party

111 constituencies changed party compared with 2010. The number of Liberal Democrat MPs fell by 49; of these 49 seats, 27 are now Conservative, 12 Labour and 10 SNP. The number of Labour MPs fell by 26 compared to 2010.

The SNP won 56 of Scotland's 59 seats and 50.0% of the vote in Scotland, the party's highest ever share of Scottish seats and votes at a General Election. In comparison, in 2010 the SNP won six seats and 19.9% of the Scottish vote.

318 of the Conservative's 330 seats are in England. Across the UK, the party won 36.8% of the vote. The Government elected in May 2015 holds the lowest share of the vote in both Wales (27.2%) and Scotland (14.9%) of any government since 1945. It also holds the lowest number of Scottish seats of any government.

24.9% of the vote went to parties other than the Conservatives, Labour or Liberal Democrats – a record high. UKIP gained one seat and 12.6% of the vote, and the Green Party one seat and 3.8% of the vote. Plaid Cymru retained three seats and won 12.1% of the vote in Wales.

In Northern Ireland, the DUP has eight MPs, Sinn Féin four, the SDLP three and the UUP two. The independent MP Sylvia Hermon retained her seat.

Turnout across the UK was 66.2%, a slight rise compared to 65.1% in 2010.

A Conservative majority of 11 seats

There are 330 Conservative MPs following the 2015 General Election, an increase of 24 compared to 2010. The party has a majority of 11 in the House of Commons, not including the Speaker.

35 Conservative MPs now hold seats which were not represented by the party in 2010. Of these 35 MPs, eight hold seats previously represented by Labour and 27 previously represented by the Liberal Democrats. Of the Conservative's 35 MPs in newly acquired seats, 22 overturned 2010 majorities of less than 5%.

11 Conservative seats were lost to other parties compared to 2010. Ten of these now have Labour MPs. These include Wirral West, previously the seat of former MP and Minister for Employment Esther McVey. UKIP MP Douglas Carswell retained Clacton, having been elected as a Conservative MP in 2010 but elected at a by-election for UKIP in 2014.

318 (96%) of the Conservative's 330 MPs have seats in England, where the party won 40.9% of the vote. The Government elected in May 2015 holds the lowest number of Scottish seats of any government. It also won the lowest share of the vote in both Wales (27.2%) and Scotland (14.9%) of any government since 1945.

232 Labour MPs, 26 fewer than in 2010

The Labour Party has 232 MPs following the May 2015 election, 26 fewer than 2010. The party's vote share rose from 29.0% in 2010 to 30.4% in 2015. Labour continues as the second largest party in the House of Commons.

22 Labour MPs now hold seats which were not Labour in 2010. Of these 22, 12 hold seats previously Liberal Democrat and 10 previously Conservative.

48 Labour seats were lost to other parties compared to 2010. Eight Labour seats in 2010 are now Conservative; 40 Labour seats in 2010 are SNP. Only 1 of Labour's 232 MPs now has a Scottish seat, the lowest number of Scottish seats won by the party since 1918.

A number of prominent Labour MPs lost their seats in 2015. Former Shadow Chancellor Ed Balls lost his seat of Morley and Outwood to the Conservatives. In Scotland former Shadow Foreign Secretary and Labour Chair of Election Strategy Douglas Alexander (Paisley and Renfrewshire South), former Shadow Secretary of State for Scotland Margaret Curran (Glasgow East) and Scottish Labour Leader Jim Murphy (East Renfrewshire) all lost their seats to the SNP. Kirkcaldy and Cowdenbeath, the seat of former Prime Minister Gordon Brown, was also won by the SNP.

SNP win 56 of Scotland's 59 seats

The Scottish National Party has 56 MPs, the highest percentage of Scottish seats won by a single party at any general election and over five times the party's previous record. The SNP is now the third largest party in the House of Commons, the first time since 1945 that this position has not been held by the Liberal Democrats or its predecessor parties.

50 SNP MPs won seats not represented by the party in 2010. Of these, 40 won seats previously held by the Labour and 10 won seats previously held by the Liberal Democrats. Of these 50 seats, the SNP overturned a 2010 majority of 10%-20% in 26, of 20%-30% in 18 and of 30%-40% in two.

The SNP won 50.0% of the vote across Scotland. Of the party's 56 MPs, two won over 60% of the vote in their constituencies, 34 won over 50% and 54 over 40%.

Liberal Democrats lost 49 of their previous 57 seats

The Liberal Democrats have eight MPs in the House of Commons, 49 fewer than in 2010. The party is now joint fourth largest in the House alongside the Democratic Unionist Party.

All eight Liberal Democrat MPs represent seats held by the party in 2010.

49 Liberal Democrat seats were lost to other parties compared to 2010. 27 seats represented by the Liberal Democrats in 2010 are now Conservative, 12 Labour and 10 SNP. Prominent Liberal Democrats to lose their seats include former Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills Vince Cable (Twickenham), former Chief Secretary to the Treasury Danny Alexander (Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch & Strathspey), former Minister of State at the Ministry of Justice Simon Hughes (Bermondsey and Old Southwark) and former party leader Charles Kennedy (Ross, Skye and Lochaber).

In 2010, of the 46 seats in England and Wales represented by the Liberal Democrats the Conservatives came in second place in 34, Labour in 11 and Plaid Cymru in one. In 2015 the Conservatives took 27 of the 34 Liberal Democrat seats in which they had come second in 2010; the Liberal Democrats held six and Labour took one. Labour took all 11 of the Liberal Democrat seats in which its candidates had come in second place in 2010.

Across Great Britain's 632 seats, in 2015 Liberal Democrat candidates came in second place in 63 seats, in third place in 36 and fourth in 338. The party lost its deposit (that is, won 5% or less of the vote) in 341 constituencies, compared to none in 2010.

"Other" parties won the highest share since 1945

24.9% of the vote went to parties other than the Conservatives, Labour or the Liberal Democrats, compared to 11.9% in 2010. In May 2015 the SNP won 4.7% of the vote, UKIP 12.6%, the Green Party 3.8% and Plaid Cymru 0.6%. Only the rise in support for the SNP resulted in a dramatic rise in the number of MPs elected for these "smaller" parties, however. Alongside the SNP's 56 MPs, Plaid Cymru has three MPs, UKIP one and the Green Party one.

The United Kingdom Independence Party won 12.6% of the vote across the UK compared to 3.1% in 2010. UKIP also won its first MP elected at a general election, Douglas Carswell (Clacton). However, UKIP leader Nigel Farage failed to gain South Thanet and Mark Reckless (Rochester and Strood), formerly elected as a UKIP MP at a by-election in 2014, was not re-elected. UKIP came in second place in 120 constituencies across the UK. Of these 120 seats, Labour MPs currently represent 44 and Conservative MPs 75; the other is represented by the Speaker.

The Green Party, including the Green Party (England and Wales), Scottish Greens and Green Party of Northern Ireland, won 3.8% of the vote across the UK compared to 1.0% in 2010. Caroline Lucas retained her seat for the Greens of Brighton Pavilion with 41.8% of the vote. Green Party candidates came in second place in Bristol West, Liverpool Riverside, Manchester Gorton and Sheffield Central. The party came in third place in 19 constituencies.

Plaid Cymru won 12.1% of the vote across Wales compared to 11.3% in 2010. Plaid retained all three of its MPs elected in 2010, in Arfon, Carmarthen East & Dinefwr and Dwyfor Meirionnydd. The party came in second place in six constituencies.

A record number of women MPs, BME MPs and the youngest MP in the modern era

Following the May 2015 General Election 29% of MPs are women, compared to 23% in 2010. 191 women, the highest ever number, were elected. Women MPs by party include 99 Labour MPs, 68 Conservative and 20 SNP. There are no women Liberal Democrat MPs. 43% of Labour MPs are women, 36% of SNP MPs and 21% of Conservative MPs.

There are a record 41 black and minority-ethnic MPs in the House of Commons, a rise on the 27 BME MPs of 2010. This is according to the UCL/Birkbeck Parliamentary Candidates Project.

177 of the UK's 650 MPs had not been MPs before 2015. 473 former MPs were elected, including five (Rob Marris, Boris Johnson, Alex Salmond, Joan Ryan and Dawn Butler) who had not been in the 2010-15 Parliament.

Aged 20, Mhairi Black (SNP; Paisley and Renfrewshire South) is the youngest MP in the modern era. Sir Gerald Kaufman (Manchester Gorton), 84, is the oldest MP and – as the MP with the longest continuous service as an MP – is the “Father of the House”.

- The DUP won the largest number of both seats and votes in Northern Ireland. They won eight seats, which was the same number as in 2010, and 184,000 votes.
- Sinn Féin won almost as many votes as the DUP (176,000) but only half the number of seats. They lost one seat compared with 2010, which was Fermanagh and South Tyrone.
- The UUP won two seats, which was two more than in 2010.
- The DUP and the UUP agreed to field one candidate from either party in four seats. The DUP did not field candidates in Fermanagh & South Tyrone and Newry & Armagh, while the UUP stepped aside in Belfast East and Belfast North.
- The Alliance Party lost their only seat in Northern Ireland, which was Belfast East.
- The Independent candidate Sylvia Hermon held her seat in North Down.

Note that in 2010 the UUP fielded candidates jointly with the Conservative Party as the Ulster Conservatives and Unionists (UCU). Comparisons with the UUP's performance in 2010 are based on the results for the UCU.

4. Seats changing hands

111 seats changed hands at the 2015 General Election compared with the seats won at the last general election in 2010.

The Scottish National Party made the largest number of gains of any party, winning 50 new seats in Scotland and losing none of the six seats they won in 2010. The Liberal Democrats lost more seats than any other party, losing 49 of the seats they won in 2010 and winning no new seats.

The Conservatives won 35 and lost 11, a net increase of 24; Labour won 22 and lost 48, a net decrease of 26. While the Conservatives lead over Labour increased by 50 seats to 98, compared with 48 in 2010, this was a mainly a consequence of Conservative gains from the Liberal Democrats and Labour losses to the Scottish National Party. Labour took more seats from the Conservatives (10) than the Conservatives took from Labour (8).

The United Kingdom Independence Party won its first seat at a general election, which was Clacton. The MP contesting the seat for UKIP, Douglas Carswell, was elected in Clacton for the Conservatives in 2010, but stood down to be re-elected for UKIP at a by-election held in October 2014.

In Northern Ireland, the Ulster Unionist Party won two seats in 2015, having won none at the 2010 General Election. These were South Antrim and Fermanagh and South Tyrone. The Democratic Unionist Party gained Belfast East and lost South Antrim, while Sinn Féin lost Fermanagh and South Tyrone.

The Alliance Party lost their only seat to the DUP, which was Belfast East. Independent MP Sylvia Hermon held her seat in North Down.

5. Who voted for which party?

5.1 Voting in 2015 by social background

There are no breakdowns of actual votes cast at the 2015 General Election either by characteristics of voters or for areas within constituencies. Data is made public for the total number of votes for each candidate for whole constituencies only. Opinion surveys can, however, give an idea of how party support varies between different groups.

The first table below uses data from Ipsos MORI's aggregate analysis of polls undertaken before polling day. These are based on around 6,000 individual respondents who said they were absolutely certain to vote, adjusted to match the actual results.<sup>1</sup> The second table uses similar data from YouGov's post-election poll of 100,000 people to provide analysis of voting by further variables; again this has been adjusted to match the actual election results for Great Britain.<sup>2</sup>

Conservative support appears particularly strong from older voters, particularly older women, among the higher social classes and those in owner occupied tenures. 47% of those aged 65+ are reported as voting Conservative and 46% of those who own their houses outright (i.e. with no outstanding mortgage loan).

Labour's election loss was mirrored across most groups, with the exception of younger voters, those in the lowest social class (DE), in rented tenures and among black and minority ethnic (BME) voters. In these groups Labour had a clear lead over the Conservatives. Support among BME voters was 65% Labour and 23% Conservative.

Liberal Democrat support does not vary much from the national average of 8% by social group, with the small exception of Social Class group AB, where their support is 12%. UKIP is the third party for almost all categories, notable exceptions include Social Class AB and BME voters, where the Liberal Democrats have larger proportions of votes than UKIP.

Green Party support is relatively high among younger age groups and those in private rented tenure.

While turnout in 2015 again recovered slightly from its historic low in 2005, there was a familiar pattern of lower turnout among young people, with 18-24s almost half as likely to vote as those aged 65+ (43% vs 78%) Similarly, turnout was relatively low among the working classes, renters, and BME electors.

Newspaper readership is the strongest “predictor” for voting for Labour and Conservative. 6% of Guardian readers voting do so for the Conservatives, while 69% of Telegraph readers vote Conservative. Conversely, Labour musters 67% of Mirror voters, but just 8% of voters who read the Telegraph. There is a growing divergence between private and public sector workers. The Conservatives led Labour by 17% points among people working in the private sector, while Labour is 3% points ahead of the Conservatives among public service workers.

5.2 Changes in who voted for which party since 2010

The Ipsos MORI post-election analysis for 2015 can be compared to the equivalent data for 2010. The table below shows the implied change in voter support for the same social groups.

For the two main parties there was little overall change. But compared to 2010, the Conservatives and Labour both had small gains in vote share.

The Conservatives have particularly large vote share increases from those in higher social class groups ABs, especially women, and C1s.

Labour's vote share was higher across all age groups except the oldest. Its 2015 share for 18-24 year olds was up by 12% points on 2010, while among those aged 65 and over Labour's share fell by 8% points.

For the Liberal Democrats there was across-the-board loss of support. Groups with greater than average losses included younger voters and those in private rented tenure.

Note that the impact of these changes will differ according to the number of people in each category and their propensity to vote. For example, according to Ipsos MORI, 78% of those aged 65+ turned out to vote, while for those aged under 25 years turnout was 43%, for example. So the already larger category of over 65s will have a greater impact on the election result than the under 25s who are both smaller in number and have lower turnout.

Further analysis of voting in 2015 will become available from the British Election Study funded by the Economic and Social Research Council.

6. Candidates

3,971 candidates stood for election on the 7th of May, the second largest number of candidates standing at a general election since 1945.

Across the UK there were 6.1 candidates per constituency on average. A record number of women candidates, 1,033, stood for election.

584 former MPs sought re-election, including 24 previous MPs who had not been Members in the 2010-15 Parliament.

6.1 Number of candidates

3,971 candidates stood for election in May 2015, a fall of 4.3% compared with 2010's record of 4,150 candidates.

The Conservatives had 647 candidates, the largest number of any party at this election. This total includes candidates in all of Great Britain's 632 seats except Buckingham – where the current Speaker stood unopposed by three of the main parties – together with candidates in 16 of Northern Ireland's 18 seats.

Both Labour and the Liberal Democrats had 631 candidates standing in Great Britain. UKIP had 624 candidates, a 12% increase compared with 2010 and a 26% increase compared with 2005.

The Green Parties in England and Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland had a combined UK total of 573 candidates, a 71% increase compared with 2010 and 182% increase compared with 2005. The Scottish National Party had candidates in all of Scotland's 59 constituencies. Plaid Cymru candidates stood in all of Wales' 40 constituencies.

The British National Party had 8 candidates, a fall of 98% compared with 2010. The English Democrats had 32 candidates, a fall of 70% compared with 2010.

Number of candidates at UK General Elections 1945-2015

There were around two and a half times the number of general election candidates standing in May 2015 as there were in July 1945. This was largely due to the rise of "other" parties. In 1945, 9% of candidates stood for parties other than Labour, the Conservatives and the then Liberal Party.

In 2015, 52% of candidates stood for parties other than the traditional “three main” parties. This is the second time the percentage of “other” candidates has exceeded 50%, the first being in 2010.

6.2 Women candidates

1,033 women stood for election, which was 26% of candidates. This is the largest number and percentage of women candidates at any UK general election.

Percentage of women candidates at general elections, 1945-2015

Women candidates by party (%)

The combined UK Green Party had the largest number of women candidates of any party. The Green Party had 216 women candidates in total across the UK, which was 38% of their candidates. Labour had 214 women candidates, which was 34% of their candidates, compared with 30% in 2010.

169 Conservative candidates, 26% of the party’s total cohort, were women – a 10% increase compared with 2010. 166 Liberal Democrats candidates were women, which was 26% of their candidates.

38% of Scottish National Party candidates were women and 25% of Plaid Cymru candidates. Women were 13% of UKIP candidates.

Number of women candidates at general elections, 1945-2015

Labour had the highest proportion of women candidates in marginal seats, compared to the Conservatives and Liberal Democrats

The proportion of Labour candidates who were women was higher in seats previously held by the party and in those seats with the narrowest margin to win, than in less winnable seats.

For the Conservatives the opposite was the case. Seats held by the Conservatives and those they were most likely to win had a lower proportion of women candidates than the less winnable seats.

Conservative, Labour and Liberal Democrat candidates by seat marginality, percentage women

Notes: Marginality is measured as the difference in percentage vote share of the party's candidate from the winning candidates or, in seats won by the party, from the candidate in second place at the 2010 election. A positive marginality means the party won the seat in 2010.

53% of Labour candidates in the most winnable seats (those with a 0% to 10% majority to be overturned) were women. 33% of Liberal Democrat candidates in the most winnable seats were women, and 29% of Conservative candidates.

Among those candidates defending a seat won by their party with a majority of 0% to 10% in 2010, Labour had the highest proportion of women candidates. 42% of Labour candidates defending such seats were women, compared to 26% of Liberal Democrat candidates and 21% of Conservative candidates.

The Conservatives had the highest proportion of women candidates in less winnable seats. 36% of Conservative candidates in seats with a 30% to 40% majority to overturn were women, compared to 26% of Liberal Democrat candidates in such seats and 19% of Labour candidates.

6.3 Distribution of candidates

Across the UK, there were 6.1 candidates standing for each constituency on average. Among the countries and regions of the UK, Northern Ireland had the largest number of candidates per constituency (7.7), while the East Midlands the smallest (4.7).

Uxbridge and South Ruislip was the constituency with the largest number of candidates (13) followed by Witney (12).

Number of candidates per constituency by country and region

There were around 130 parties fielding candidates in May 2015 – excluding the Speaker and independents, counting “Labour” and “Labour and Cooperative” as a single party and counting the Green Parties of England and Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland as three separate entities.

Northern Ireland has the fewest parties of any region or country (12) and London the most (46).

6.4 MPs standing down and standing again

90 MPs announced they were leaving the House following dissolution on the 30 March, including 38 Conservatives, 40 Labour, 10 Liberal Democrats and one from each of Plaid Cymru and Sinn Féin. This differs little from previous parliaments: an average of 92 MPs stood down from the House of Commons at general elections between 1979 and 2010.

MPs leaving the House at General Elections, 1979-2015

Sources: House of Commons Library; Butler, Kavanagh and Cowley; The British General Election (series) 1979, 1983, 1987, 1992, 1997, 2001, 2005

584 former MPs stood for election in May, including 560 MPs who were sitting at the time of dissolution. 24 previous but not sitting MPs also stood for election, including Boris Johnson and Alex Salmond.

7. Characteristics of those elected

7.1 Gender, ethnicity and new MPs

Of 650 MPs elected in the 2015 General Election, 191 (29.4%) are women, the highest number and proportion ever. The number of women MPs elected in 2015 was 48 more than in 2010. Women MPs by party include 99 Labour, 68 Conservative and 20 SNP; 43% of Labour MPs are women, 21% of Conservative MPs and 36% of SNP MPs.

Of all those elected in 2015, 468 (72%) had been MPs in the previous Parliament. Five MPs from earlier Parliaments were returned: Dawn Butler (Lab), Boris Johnson (Con), Rob Marris (Lab), Joan Ryan (Lab) and Alex Salmond (SNP). The remaining 177 (27%) have no previous House of Commons experience.

41 MPs elected in 2015 are from black and minority-ethnic (BME) groups, a rise on the 27 BME MPs in 2010.

7.2 Age of MPs

- For those elected in 2015 the average age is 51, one year older than at the 2010 General Election. Labour MPs are three years older than Conservative MPs on average.
- The average age for SNP MPs is 46, the lowest average for any of the main parties (those with 8 or more MPs).

- The average age of women MPs is 49 years, 2 years younger than for men.
- At 85 years, the oldest MP is Sir Gerald Kaufman, Labour MP for Manchester Gorton.
- The youngest MP is Mhairi Black, SNP MP for Paisley and Renfrewshire South, at 20 years she is the youngest MP since the minimum age for standing for election as an MP was reduced from 21 to 18 years in 2007.<sup>3</sup>

7.3 Previous Parliamentary experience

The table below shows MPs elected in 2015 by the first general election at which they were elected and by party.

Of MPs elected in the 2015 General Election:

- 192 of 650, 30%, were first elected at a general election in May 2015; of these 177 were new MPs with no previous Parliamentary experience. The other 15 were first elected at by-elections during the 2010-15 Parliament.<sup>4</sup>
- 63% of Conservative MPs were first elected between the 2010 and 2015 General Elections, compared with 49% of Labour MPs.
- 6% were first elected at by-elections, including 13% of Labour and 2% of Conservative MPs.
- Labour MP for Manchester Gorton, Sir Gerald Kaufman, has the longest continuous service, and therefore becomes Father of the House. He has been an MP since he was first elected at the 1970 General Election for Manchester Ardwick. He had previously been

General Election 2015 - Turnout

8. The electorate, turnout and invalid votes

8.1 The electorate

On polling day the UK electorate was 46.4 million. Across the UK the average constituency electorate was 71,314. Among the countries of the UK, the average electorate was largest in England (72,676) and smallest in Wales (57,044). The Isle of Wight was the constituency with the largest electorate (108,804), and Na h-Eileanan An Iar had the smallest (21,769).

On average seats won by the Conservatives had larger electorates than those won by the Scottish National Party, Labour, UKIP, the Liberal Democrats, and Plaid Cymru.

Average constituency electorate by winning party

The average electorate in Conservative constituencies was around 4,000 larger than in Labour constituencies, and around 11,000 larger than in Liberal Democrat constituencies.

The Green Party had the largest average electorate of any party, although this was based on just one seat, Brighton Pavilion. The three constituencies won by Plaid Cymru had the smallest average electorate of any party, of around 47,000.

The electorate is the number of people eligible and registered to vote.

The 2015 General Election was the first in which it was possible to register to vote online.

In the 22 days from the dissolution of Parliament (30 March) to the last day of registration (20 April) just under two million people applied to register online. 490,000 people applied on the final day.

Online voting registration applications from dissolution to the close of registration

Online voting registration applications by age

16 to 24	28%
25 to 34	32%
35 to 44	17%
45 to 54	12%
55 to 64	6%
65 to 74	3%
Over 75	2%

In the 22 days from the dissolution to the close of registration, around a third (32%) of registration applications were made by people aged 25 to 34.

8.2 Turnout

Turnout was 66.2% across the UK, a slight increase compared with 65.1% in 2010 and the highest general election turnout since 1997.

Turnout is the number of valid votes cast measured as a percentage of the registered electorate.

Turnout across the UK

Turnout in Scotland was the highest of any UK country (71.0%). The turnout in Scotland was 4.8% points greater than in the UK as a whole (66.2%). Among the countries and regions of the UK, Northern Ireland had the lowest turnout (58.1%). The North East had the lowest turnout in England (61.8%), whilst the South West had the highest (69.5%).

Turnout by country and region

Turnout increased in most of the countries and regions of the UK, with the exception of West Midlands, East of England, and East of England. Scotland saw the largest increase in turnout of any country or region. Turnout in Scotland was 7.2% points higher than in 2010.

Change in turnout by country and region, % points, 2010-15

Turnout by constituency and party

Five of the ten constituencies with top ten UK turnout were won by the Scottish National Party, four were won by the Conservatives, and one was won by the Liberal Democrats.

Seven of the ten constituencies with the smallest turnout were won by Labour, two by the Democratic Unionist Party, and one by the Social Democratic and Labour Party. Three of the 18 constituencies in Northern Ireland were among the constituencies with the 10 lowest UK turnouts.

Turnout by constituency and winning party

648	 East Londonderry	51.9%
649	 Blackley and Broughton	51.6%
650	 Stoke-On-Trent Central	51.3%

Average turnout in constituencies electing SNP Members was higher than for any party other than the Green Party, which won just one seat. Average turnout in constituencies which elected Labour MPs was 7% points lower than in those which elected Conservative MPs.

Average turnout in seats won by party

Percentage point change in average turnout in seats won by party between 2010 and 2015

Note

For each party, average turnout is the sum of votes cast in all constituencies where the party won, divided by the sum of the electorates in each of the constituencies where the party won.

8.3 Invalid votes

Broadly speaking, for every three-hundred valid votes cast in the UK, one ballot paper was “spoilt” leading to an invalid vote. Overall, 0.2% of the UK electorate cast a vote with a spoilt ballot.

The largest number of invalid votes were cast in the Buckingham parliamentary constituency, where the Speaker of the House of Commons stood. In line with tradition, the Conservatives, Labour and the Liberal Democrats did not field candidates against the Speaker. A total of 1,289 invalid votes were cast in Buckingham, which was one invalid vote for every 43 valid votes cast.

Five of the ten constituencies with the highest proportion of invalid votes were in Northern Ireland, while nine of the ten constituencies with the lowest proportion of invalid votes were in Scotland. East Lothian had the lowest proportion of spoilt ballots papers of any constituency with one spoilt ballot for every 1,640 valid votes cast.

Spoilt Ballots

Ballot papers deemed spoilt and rejected fit into one or more of the following categories:

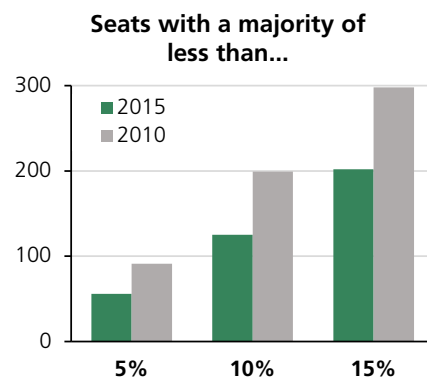

1. Voter can be identified
2. No official mark
3. Over-voting
4. Void for uncertainty

9. Safe and marginal seats

There are substantially fewer marginal seats after the 2015 General Election compared with the 2010 General Election. The charts below show the number of seats by majority in 5% bands, with 2015 shown on the left chart and 2010 shown on the right chart. The difference is clear, with larger bars to the left of the 2010 chart (indicating smaller majorities) and larger bars to the right of the 2015 chart (indicating larger majorities).

The small chart to the right summarises this data. The number of seats where the winning candidate had a majority of less than 5% fell from 91 to 56 between 2010 and 2015. There are also 39 seats where the majority is larger than 45%, compared with 12 seats in the 2010 Election.

The two tables below show the ten most marginal and ten safest seats respectively. Of the ten most marginal seats, all but one had a majority of more than 5% at the 2010 General Election. The two most marginal seats, Gower and Derby North, were both Conservative gains from Labour. Overall, 13 of the 20 most marginal seats were gained by one party from another rather than held by the same party from 2010 to 2015.

Ten Most Marginal Seats

Birmingham, Hodge Hill	Lab	Con	56.9%	23,362
Walthamstow	Lab	Con	55.5%	23,195

Liverpool Walton, held by Steve Rotheram MP, was the safest seat in the UK at both the 2010 and 2015 General Elections. The ten safest seats are all Labour-held, and four of the safest five are in Merseyside. The safest Conservative seat is North East Hampshire, held by new MP Ranil Jayawardena. Maidenhead, Esher & Walton, and Windsor also have Conservative majorities of over 50%.

Seats where UKIP came in second place tended to have larger majorities (average 35%) than those where the Conservatives (22%), Labour (22%) or the Liberal Democrats (18%) were second.

Conservative-Labour marginality

The chart below considers seats which are held by either Labour or the Conservatives, showing the gap between the two parties in these seats. The number of marginal seats in this category decreased between 2010 and 2015. In 2010 there were 121 seats held by either Labour or the Conservatives where the gap to the other of these parties was less than 10%, while in 2015 this had fallen to 87.

Conservative-Labour marginality

10. MPs who did not stand for re-election

At the end of the 2010-15 Parliament 90 MPs did not stand for re-election. These included 39 former Labour MPs, 38 Conservatives and 10 Liberal Democrats. Among those standing down was the Father of the House, Sir Peter Tapsell.

11. Incumbent MPs who were defeated

92 candidates who were MPs at the end of the 2010-15 Parliament were defeated. They included 39 former Labour MPs, 38 former Liberal Democrat MPs, and 9 former Conservative MPs.

Among those defeated were George Galloway, who had previously been the only MP for Respect, and Mark Reckless, who stood down as the Conservative MP for Rochester and Strood to be re-elected in the same constituency as an MP for UKIP in November 2014.

13. By-elections and changes of allegiance 2010-15

Comparisons in this paper are made on the basis of results at General Elections. This section summarises the 21 by-elections during the 2010-15 Parliament and lists the MPs who changed party allegiance over the period. Full by-election results are available in House of Commons Library briefing By-elections 2010-15.

13.1 By-elections

There were 21 by-elections during the 2010-15 Parliament.

The first by-election of the Parliament, in Oldham East and Saddleworth, was caused when the result of the 2010 General Election in the constituency was declared void by an election court. Phil Woolas, who had won the seat, was unable to contest the resulting by-election as the judgement prevented him from seeking elected office for three years.

This was only the fifth constituency result in a general election overturned by an election court since the Second World War and the first time since 1911 that an election court had found a Member of Parliament guilty of the illegal practice of making a false statement about a candidate at his or her election.<sup>5</sup>

Six of the 21 by-elections were caused by the death of the sitting MP. The remaining 14 were due to resignations.

Four Members resigned to seek election to other bodies. Gerry Adams resigned his Belfast West seat (January 2011) to successfully contest a seat in the Irish General Election. Sir Peter Soulsby (Leicester South) became Mayor of Leicester in May 2011 and Alun Michael (Cardiff S and Penarth) and Tony Lloyd (Manchester Central) became Police and Crime Commissioners in South Wales and Manchester respectively in November 2012.

Four Members resigned in relation to wrong-doing. Eric Illsley, (Barnsley Central) and Dennis McShane (Rotherham) both resigned before being convicted of false accounting in relation to their Parliamentary expenses. Chris Huhne (Eastleigh) resigned after pleading guilty to perverting the course of justice and Patrick Mercer (Newark) resigned when the House of Commons Committee on Standards recommended he should be suspended from the House for six months for breaching the rules on paid advocacy.

Two Members resigned to force by-elections following their defection from the Conservative Party to UKIP, Douglas Carswell (Clacton) and Mark Reckless (Rochester and Strood).

The Manchester Central by-election recorded the lowest by-election turnout in peacetime since universal male suffrage in 1918 at 18.2%.<sup>6</sup>

The last by-election in the 2005-10 Parliament was in November 2009. This meant there were no Parliamentary by-elections in the 2010 calendar year. This is only the second time this has happened since 1832; the only other year that has not seen a Parliamentary by-election was 1998.<sup>7</sup>

Rochester and Strood	20 Nov 2014	UKIP gain	Mark Reckless	-14.4%	-11.7%	...	-15.4%	42.1%	50.6%

The Labour Party had won 14 of the 21 seats at the 2010 General Election, with the Conservatives winning four, the Liberal Democrats one and Sinn Féin winning two.

Labour won one seat from the Conservatives (Corby) but lost one to the Respect Party (Bradford West). The Conservative Party lost a further two seats to UKIP towards the end of the Parliament but held Newark.

The average turnout for by-elections was just under 40%, which is about 5 points down on the average by-election turnout in the previous Parliament.

There was only one by-election each in Scotland and Wales during the 2010-15 Parliament. The figures for the previous Parliament were 5 and 1 respectively. There were two by-elections in Northern Ireland in the 2010-15 Parliament. There were no by-elections in Northern Ireland in the previous Parliament although one Northern Ireland seat was vacant at the dissolution of the 2005-10 Parliament.

Large swings to UKIP were only evident in by-elections in the second half of the Parliament. The average increase in UKIP vote share in the 13 by-elections up to the end of November 2012 was 5.2%. In the eight by-elections 2013-2015 the average increase in UKIP vote share was nearly 32% points.

At the 2015 General Election the by-election results in Corby and Bradford West were reversed. Labour regained Bradford West from Respect and the Conservative Party regained Corby from Labour.

Labour retained 12 of the 13 remaining seats it had won in 2010 but lost Inverclyde to the SNP.

The Conservatives regained Rochester and Strood from UKIP, but in Clacton UKIP managed to retain their by-election win. The Conservatives gained Eastleigh from the Liberal Democrats. Sinn Féin retained both seats.

13.2 Changes of party allegiance and party status

During the 2010-15 Parliament, there were a number of changes that affected the balance of the parties in the House of Commons, in addition to those caused by by-elections. These are detailed by MP as follows:

- Eric Illsley (Barnsley Central) – Labour whip withdrawn (2010)
- Denis MacShane (Rotherham) - Labour whip suspended (2010) but later restored
- Eric Joyce (Falkirk) - Labour whip withdrawn (2012) sat as an Independent
- Denis MacShane (Rotherham) – suspended from the Labour Party (2012) shortly before resigning his seat
- Nadine Dorries (Mid Bedfordshire) – Conservative whip suspended and sat as Independent (2012). Whip restored (2013)
- Patrick Mercer (Newark) – from Conservative to Independent (2013)
- Mike Hancock (Portsmouth South) – from Liberal Democrat to Independent
- David Ward (Bradford East) – Liberal Democrat whip suspended for two months (2013)
- Nigel Evans (Ribble Valley) – resigned Conservative whip temporarily for 9 months (2013-14)
- Douglas Carswell (Clacton) and Mark Reckless (Rochester and Strood) both resigned the Conservative whip to join UKIP (2014). They both quickly resigned their seats to force by-elections and stood as UKIP candidates in their respective seats.

At the Dissolution of the 2010-15 Parliament there were no vacant seats. As mentioned above Eric Illsley, Denis MacShane, and Patrick Mercer all subsequently resigned their seats during the 2010 Parliament. Eric Joyce remained sitting as an Independent MP until the end of the Parliament.

David Ward was the Liberal Democrat candidate in Bradford East at the 2015 General Election but lost the seat to the Labour Party. Mike Hancock contested the Portsmouth South seat as an Independent but was defeated. Douglas Carswell retained the Clacton seat as a UKIP MP but Mark Reckless lost his seat to the Conservative Party.

Nadine Dorries and Nigel Evans both retained their seats as Conservative candidates.

14. Polling day

The General Election was held on the 7th of May, a Thursday for the twentieth consecutive time. The polls were open from 7am to 10pm.

14.1 Local and mayoral elections

Elections were held to 9,335 seats on 279 local councils in England on 7 May 2015, coinciding with the 2015 General Election as well as elections for six directly elected mayors. The Local Elections comprised:

- 6,563 seats on 194 shire district councils, 131 of which had all seats up for election and 63 with a third of seats up
- 860 seats on 36 metropolitan borough councils that elect by thirds
- 1,912 seats on 49 unitary authorities, 18 of which had a third of seats up and 31 with all seats up

No local elections were scheduled in Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland.

In the six mayoral elections that took place in Bedford, Copeland, Leicester, Mansfield, Middlesbrough and Torbay, two Labour mayors were elected, two Independents, one Conservative, and one Liberal Democrat.

14.2 Weather

The 7th of May 2015 was mainly dry with only a few light showers up and down the country, temperatures were generally around average for the time of year.

Weather extremes: May 7 2015, UK

Highest day max	St. James Park	19.1°C
Lowest day max	Lerwick	6.1°C
Lowest Night min	Kielder Castle	0.3°C

Election day weather for 2015 was fairly typical for UK general elections over the last three decades – average daily temperatures of around 10°C and little rain. February 1974 stands out as being a particularly cold and wet day for a general election. The maximum Central England Temperature (CET) on 28 February 1974 was below 4°C, but this was not unusual for that time of year. Election days in July 1945 and June 1970 were the warmest for general elections on the daily CET series which goes back to 1878. November 1935 was the wettest on a series back to 1931.

14.3 Election night

Declaration times by party

The BBC/ITV/Sky exit poll was released at 10pm and correctly projected that the Conservatives would win the largest number of seats. However, in projecting 316 for the Conservatives, compared with a result of 330, the exit poll did not anticipate that the Conservatives would win an overall majority.

The projections for the Labour Party and the Scottish National Party were more accurate. The exit poll projected 239 seats for Labour, compared with a result of 232, and 58 seats for the Scottish National Party, compared with a result of 56.

For the sixth consecutive election, Houghton and Sunderland South<sup>8</sup> was the first constituency to declare, 48 minutes after the 10pm close of poll.

14.4 Historic declaration times

Over the last several general elections the average amount of time it has taken constituencies to declare has got longer. The chart below shows the percentage of constituencies declaring before 4am on the morning after polls closed at each general election since 1983.

Sources: BBC, House of Commons Library

As the chart shows, at general elections from 1983 to 2001 the percentage of constituencies that had declared before 4am ranged from 78% to 91%. At each general election since 2001 the percentage has fallen, reaching 27% in 2015.

15. Opinion polls

During the campaign period, from the 30th of March to the 7th of May, polling companies conducted 85 opinion polls asking people how they intended to vote at the 2015 General Election. The exact wording of the questions posed differed between polling companies, as did approaches to weighting results, but each of the polls attempted to gauge voting intention in Great Britain, and estimated the share of the vote for each of the five main parties fielding candidates across the whole of Great Britain.

90% of these polls suggested the Conservative and Labour vote shares were within three percentage points of each other; and an average of all 85 polls suggested the Conservative and Labour parties held around 34% of the vote each.

Notes: 1. The chart shows the results of all voting intention opinion polls carried out in Great Britain from the start of the campaign period (30 March) to polling day as reported by may2015.
 2. Solid lines represent 7-point moving averages of the results of the polls.
 3. The share of the vote won by each party at the General Election is marked with an X.

Of the 85 voting intention polls, only one poll suggested the Conservatives held a share of the vote greater than or equal to the actual result they achieved. This poll was completed by ICM on the 12th of April and it estimated a Conservative vote share of 39%. However, none of the polls conducted during the campaign showed the Conservatives with the seven percentage point lead over Labour they won on polling day.

The difference between an average of the final voting intention opinion polls and the General Election result by party, as reported by the British Polling Council

The difference between the share of the vote estimated by opinion polls and the actual share of the vote received by any party was largest for the Conservatives. Final pre-election opinion polls suggested a share of the vote 4.2% smaller than they went on to achieve. Final pre-election opinion polls most accurately predicted the result for the UK Independence Party: averaged they were 0.1% higher than UKIP's actual 7th of May result.

About the Library

The House of Commons Library research service provides MPs and their staff with the impartial briefing and evidence base they need to do their work in scrutinising Government, proposing legislation, and supporting constituents.

As well as providing MPs with a confidential service we publish open briefing papers, which are available on the Parliament website.

Every effort is made to ensure that the information contained in these publically available research briefings is correct at the time of publication. Readers should be aware however that briefings are not necessarily updated or otherwise amended to reflect subsequent changes.

If you have any comments on our briefings please email papers@parliament.uk. Authors are available to discuss the content of this briefing only with Members and their staff.

If you have any general questions about the work of the House of Commons you can email hcinfo@parliament.uk.
