CALLBECK, HONOURABLE LL.D., C.M., O.P.E.I., CATHERINE SOPHIA, businessperson; b. 25 July 1939 in Central Bedeque, the daughter of Ralph R. Callbeck and Ruth Campbell; United.

Callbeck, a Liberal, was first elected to the Legislative Assembly in the general election of 1974 for 4th Prince. In 1978, she resigned her seat to return to her business. She was later reelected in the general election of 1993 for 1st Queens. Callbeck served as Minister of Health and Social Services, Minister Responsible for the Disabled, and Minister Responsible for Non-Status Indians from 1974 to 1978.

In the federal election of 1988, Callbeck was elected to the House of Commons as the representative for Malpeque and remained there until 1993, when she resigned her seat to seek the leadership of the Prince Edward Island Liberal Party. While in Ottawa, she served as the Official Opposition critic for consumer and corporate affairs, energy, mines and resources, financial institutions, and as the associate critic for privatization and regulatory affairs. Callbeck was also the vice-chair of the Caucus committee on sustainable development.

In 1993, she returned to the provincial scene, becoming Liberal leader 23 January 1993 upon the resignation of Premier Joseph Ghiz*. She was sworn in as Prince Edward Island's 28th Premier and President of Executive Council on 25 January 1993. She became the country's first elected female premier.

Callbeck resigned as premier in August 1996. On 23 September 1997, Callbeck was appointed to the Senate of Canada by Prime Minister Jean Chrétien. She was a member of the Senate Standing Committee on National Finance and the Senate Committee on Social Affairs, Science and Technology. She served as a Member of the Senate Standing Committee on Agriculture and Forestry; Banking, Trade and Commerce; Transportation and Communications; and Internal Economy. She was also named vice-chair of the Prime Minister's Task Force on Woman Entrepreneurs in 2002. On 28 June 2005, Callbeck was elected as vice-chair of the National Liberal Caucus for a term which ended in October 2007. She retired from Senate in 2014. She was appointed the 9th Chancellor of the University of Prince Edward Island in February 2018.

At the time of her 1974 election, she became the second woman to be elected into the provincial Legislature, and was the youngest woman to be appointed a provincial Cabinet minister and only the second woman to be appointed to the provincial Cabinet.

On 21 November 2006, Callbeck was named one of Canada's Top 100 Most Powerful Women by the Women's Executive Network in Toronto. On 10 June 2008, she was an inaugural inductee into the Canadian Women in Politics Hall of Fame in Ottawa. In November 2016, Callbeck was one of 42 recipients invested into the Order of Canada.

She received her early education in her native community at the Central Bedeque School, and then attended Summerside High School. Subsequently, she studied at Mount Allison University in Sackville, New Brunswick, where she earned a Bachelor of Commerce in 1960. In 1963 Callbeck earned a Bachelor of Education from Dalhousie University and then completed postgraduate courses in business administration at Syracuse University. She received an Honorary Doctorate of Laws from Mount Allison University in 1996.

Callbeck was inducted into the Junior Achievement PEI Business Hall of Fame on 2 June 2011. She has also served many organizations, community and church groups and in a variety of other volunteer roles.

In December 2015, Callbeck was named to the Order of Canada by Governor General David Johnston. In July 2017, Callbeck was named to the Order of Prince Edward Island. She lives in the family home in Central Bedeque.
