

Passenger; but the Force of this Ship, her Name, being called the Heldenburg, the time of her coming from Amsterdam, and other Circumstances agreeing with the account we had from England of the Ship that brought the late Duke of Monmouth to Lime, giving occasion to suspect that this was the Vessel, or at least that she was going to Pyrate in the Indies, some of the English Merchants informed the Governor thereof, who thereupon went with his Officers to their Lodging; and finding upon their Examination great ground to encrease the suspicion, left two Guards at the Door of the House, and immediately sent to Arrest the Ship. The next Morning the Captain and the Scotch-man escaped, but the former was overtaken by a Messenger, as he was going over the Bar about two Leagues from hence, and brought back to Prison, the latter cannot yet be found, though diligent search is made for him: They left behind them two Portmantles, which the Governor caused to be opened, wherein were found several Rich Sutes of Apparel, and a Rich Furniture for a Horse. The English-man and Chirurgion were likewise seized.

Whitehall, July 25. His Majesty has received an Account by Letters written the 15th of the last month off of Mamora on the Coast of Sally, That Captain Leighton in his Majesty's Ship the Larke, Captain Mac Donnel in the Greyhound, with the Bonadventure, commanded by Mr. Fairban her Lieutenant, Captain Priestman being sick ashore, arriving on the 12th past before Mamora, Captain Leighton stood close in with the Bar, and saw two Ships at Anchor within the Harbour, which he knew to be Hackome Admiral of Sally, and another Ship of War that had not been long there; Upon which, and the Information he received the next day from four Christians, and particularly from Thomas Phelps, who escaped from Shore, he resolved to attempt the burning of them, and communicated the same to Captain Mac Donnel and Mr. Fairban, who having approved thereof, They agreed to send in all their Boats under the command of Mr. Mac Donnel in the Greyhounds Boat, the Larkes Boat being commanded by Capt. Leighton's Brother; The Bonadventures Pinnace by Mr. Harris, accompanied by Mr. Littleton, and the Yauls by Mr. Brisbane, both Midshipmen Extraordinary, all manned with chosen Men, well armed and fitted with sufficient quantity of Fireworks. At eight a clock at night they went from the Ships in good order and fell in with the Bar about 10; They found each side of the Channel well guarded, and the Ships too, which was more than was expected, but not sufficient to deter them, for they boldly rowed in and boarded the Ships, which they found manned with about 20 or 30 men apiece, and armed with great Guns and Pedereroes. After a fierce dispute on both sides, with Vollics of small and great shot from the Town and Castles, which were not above half Pistol-shot off, by continual firing Small-shot and throwing in Hand-Grenadoes, they cleared the Ships Decks and entered them, setting them on fire in several places, killed several Moors, destroyed what other Vessels and Boats were then there, and carried off four Christians. Hackomes Ship was mounted with 36 Pieces of Cannon and about 25 Pedereroes; the other was Plumash his Ship of 26 or 28 Guns and as many Pedereroes, both robbed and fitted out in 15 or 20 days, and therefore had on board all their Ammunition and Habitaments of War, with all their Sails, together with the greatest part of the Furniture and Rigging for their new Ships building at Sally. These with several others were consumed with Fire in less than two hours, and our Men and Boats safely on Board again. The loss on our side was inconsiderable in respect of the Service, having but one Man mortally wounded and five or six others slightly hurt; They all behaved themselves with the greatest courage and obedience to their Orders, especially in despoiling all manner of Plunder as they had been cautioned by Captain Leighton and Captain Mac Donnell.
