1. Key findings

1.1 Overall trends in visits to English attractions 2009-2010

By way of context, 2010 was characterised by a warm and sunny spring and early summer followed by a dull peak summer period. Whilst autumn was about average, the off-peak winter season was particularly cold.

- Winter 2009/10 was the coldest experienced in 31 years with significant snowfall in many areas from mid December until end February. However, rainfall was below average and sunshine above average during the period;
- Spring 2010 was characterised by dry weather (the driest since 1984), especially in April and May. April was also particularly sunny;
- Summer 2010 was a season of contrasts. June was generally dry and warmer than average. July and August were generally cloudier, holding down temperatures, with many areas wetter than average (although some areas bucked this trend);
- Autumn 2010 was fairly typical in terms of temperature, sunshine and rainfall, although November was colder than average, with some snow towards the end of the month.

The 1,802 England visitor attractions providing visit figures for both 2009 and 2010 reported a +3% increase in visitor admissions overall in 2010. Compared with recent years:

- +5% in 2009
- +2% in 2008
- +3% in 2007
- +3% in 2006

This increase in 2010 represents a significant achievement for the sector in light of declines in visits to England for the purposes of a holiday or visiting friends/family:

- A -6% decline in overnight staying trips made by England residents within England (source: United Kingdom Tourism Survey)
- A -1% decline in inbound visits to the UK made by overseas visitors (source: International Passenger Survey) the April 2010 'ash cloud' impacting here.

However, International Passenger Survey data also continued to report decreases in visits abroad made by UK residents. Following the -14% fall in outbound spend reported in 2009 (the first decline reported since 1968), a further decline of -2% was observed in 2010.

This would suggest potential for increasing day trips to England attractions and this is supported by figures from the table overleaf. Attractions reported a +2% increase in visitors who live locally/within day trip distance in 2010, following a +8% increase in 2009.

However, perhaps reflecting the still uncertain nature of the domestic economy, free attractions reported a +6% increase in local visitors, whilst paid attractions reported a -2% decline.

Visits to attractions made by overseas residents have also increased (+6% in 2010), despite the decline in inbound visits reported by the International Passenger Survey.

Table A.1 Visit trends by origin 2009-2010 – by admission type (%)

Indeed, as the table below indicates, visits to free attractions drove the overall increase in admissions in 2010, rising by +6%. This was driven ostensibly by museums and art galleries (+6%) and to a lesser extent, by places of worship (+10%). Conversely, paid attractions fared less well, reporting a -1% decline in visits.

The performance of attractions varied by category in 2010. Visits to museums and art galleries (+5%) increased significantly, particularly to those which were free, continuing their very strong performance of recent years. Country parks (+5%), workplaces (+4%) and places of worship (+4%) also outperformed the market overall, the latter building upon increases of +6% in 2009 and +5% in 2008. The strong performance of other historic properties was driven by a single attraction.

However, the market was suppressed by declines in visits to gardens (-6%), farms (-5%), wildlife attractions/zoos (-3%) and visitor/heritage centres (-3%). The generally poor weather experienced during the 2010 peak summer season is likely to have played a strong role in the decrease in visits to these, primarily outdoor, attractions.

Table A.4 England visit trends 2009-2010 - by geographic location (%)

Geographic location	Attractions sample	% 10/09
Coastal	(201)	-*
Rural	(942)	-1
Urban	(642)	+6
England	(1,802)	+3

2010 saw the strong return of visits to urban attractions (+6% on 2009), following the successes of rural attractions in 2009. In recent years prior to 2009, urban attractions had tended to deliver the most significant increases in visitor admissions, led by London and museums/art galleries (or both) and 2010 appears to seen a return to this pattern.

Visits to rural and coastal attractions were broadly similar to 2009.

Table A.5England visit trends 2009-2010 – by volume of visits (%)

Over 200,000	(188)	+4
England	(1,802)	+3

The increase in visits in 2010 was driven almost entirely by the very largest attractions, with over 200,000 visitors recorded per annum. The largest 10% of attractions appear to be currently compensating for the remaining 90%. These attractions reported a +4% increase in visits, with smaller attractions remaining stable compared with 2009. The very smallest attractions, with fewer than 10,000 visitors per annum continued to perform less well, reporting a -2% decline in 2010.

Table A.6 Overall visits trends 2009-2010 - by English Government Office Region (%)

East	(256)	+*
London	(110)	+6
South East	(347)	+3
South West	(284)	+1
England	(1,802)	+3

Reflecting its proliferation of large, free national museums, London (+6%) reported the strongest increase in visitor admissions in 2010. The South East (+3%) and North West (+3%) also reported notable increases, although even in these regions the performance of individual sectors varied considerably.

Overall, the strong increases in visits to attractions in the South East (+10%) and South West (+6%) in 2009, which were largely assisted by trends in the domestic tourism market, have not continued in 2010. This reflects some relative movements back away from these regions within the 2010 domestic tourism market. However, visits to attractions in these regions have far from fallen back, instead generally being maintained at similar or slightly better levels to those observed in 2009.

1.2 Overall trends in admission prices 2009-2010

Table A.7 Adult admission prices 2009-2010 (paid admission) – by category (%)

Adult admission charges to paid attractions increased by an average of +5% in 2010 compared with +4% in 200 and +5% in 2008. As in recent years, increases were not dissimilar across most attraction categories, although increases in admission charges to leisure/theme parks (+8%), gardens (+8%) and workplaces (+10%) were somewhat higher than average.

Museums and art galleries and other historic properties continued to report the lowest average admission charges at £4.51 and £4.53 respectively. The highest average admission charges were recorded for leisure/theme parks (£17.00), wildlife attractions/zoos (£8.27) and steam/heritage railways (£7.35).

Admission charge increases were similar across all regions.

England	(1,486)	35	39	26	+5

Table A.8Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by English GOR (%)

In line with the more modest increases in visitor admissions, gross revenues were also reported to have increased more modestly; by an average of +5% in 2010 compared with +10% in 2009. Increases in 2010 were akin to those observed in 2008 and 2007 (both +5%).

Perhaps of concern is the proportion of attractions reporting a decline in gross revenue in 2010, which is at the highest level in any of the past seven years. A quarter (26%) reported a decline in 2010 compared with just 15% in 2009 and around 20% in each of the previous few years. The proportion reporting an increase in gross revenue is also the lowest in recent years.

Increase in gross revenue were similar across the majority of regions, although the South West performed most positively (despite only a modest increase in visitor admission), with an increase of +10%.

Table A.9 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by attraction category (%)

Unlike in recent years, there was generally little difference between attraction categories in terms of trends in gross revenue.

Country parks (+10%) and workplaces (12%) reported the strongest average increases in gross revenue. Indeed, 61% of workplaces reported an increase in gross revenue, significantly higher than any other type of attraction. Both of these categories also reported slightly higher than average increases in visitor admissions.

Gross revenue for museums/art galleries was up by just +6% in 2010, slightly above the average for all attractions, reflecting the slightly higher than average increase in visitor admissions.

1.4 Marketing expenditure trend 2009-2010

Table A.10 Movement in spend on marketing – by attraction category 2009-20010 (%)

Little had changed until 2010 in terms of the proportions of attractions increasing or decreasing their marketing expenditure. However, 2010 has seen a slight dip in the proportion of attractions reporting an increase in expenditure and an increase in the proportion reporting a decrease. A sign of tighter economic times perhaps? 20% of attractions indicated an increase in marketing spend in 2010 and 14% a decrease. Comparisons with the past five years:

- 2009 (21% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2008 (21% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2007 (22% recorded an increase and 12% a decrease)
- 2006 (24% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2005 (25% recorded an increase and 10% a decrease)

Leisure/theme parks (29%) were most likely to report decreases in marketing expenditure, with a notable proportion of wildlife attractions/zoos (20%) also cutting back. Despite declines in visitor admissions, farms (32%) and gardens (31%) were more likely to have increased their marketing expenditure in 2010.

Table A.11 Movement in spend on marketing – by English GOR 2009-2010 (%)

Region	Sample	Increase	Similar	Down
North West	(160)	17	65	18
North East	(83)	16	71	13
Yorkshire/The Humber	(145)	18	70	12
East Midlands	(145)	21	65	14
West Midlands	(133)	17	63	20
East	(221)	23	68	9
London	(91)	12	66	22
South East	(272)	25	65	10
South West	(227)	22	65	13
England	(1,477)	20	66	14

Despite the increase in visitor admissions, attractions in London were most likely to have reduced their marketing expenditure – 20% claiming that this was reduced in 2010. Unlike in the previous two years when the proportion of attractions in London increasing expenditure was above average, attractions in this region were also least likely to have increased marketing expenditure in 2010 (only 12% did so).

2. Introduction and background

This report presents the findings of the Survey of Visits to Visitor Attractions undertaken in England by VisitEngland. The report provides a comprehensive England-wide analysis of trends plus visits data for individual attractions. Separate reports are produced by the national tourist organisations of Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Visitor Attraction Definition

For the purposes of the survey, the definition of a visitor attraction is:

"..an attraction where it is feasible to charge admission for the sole purpose of sightseeing. The attraction must be a permanently established excursion destination, a primary purpose of which is to allow access for entertainment, interest, or education and can include places of worship (but excludes small parish churches); rather than being primarily a retail outlet or a venue for sporting, theatrical, or film performances. It must be open to the public, without prior booking, for published periods each year, and should be capable of attracting day visitors or tourists as well as local residents. In addition, the attraction must be a single business, under a single management, so that it is capable of answering the economic questions on revenue, employment etc."

2.1 Research objectives

The purpose of the survey is to monitor trends in the visitor attraction sector in England and to improve understanding of the dynamics of the sector. The findings contribute to regional and national estimates of the economic impact of tourism and inform regional development and planning work. The results of the survey allow operators to benchmark their operation within their category, within their region and across the sector as a whole.

2.2 Survey method

Since the 2008 survey, attractions have had the option of online survey completion in addition to the postal self-completion survey. All attractions for whom email contacts were held were sent an email invitation to take part, with a link to their attraction's online questionnaire. Attractions not responding were subsequently sent a postal questionnaire alongside attractions for whom no email contacts were held.

Response to the online option was again notable, with a significant proportion of all responding attractions choosing to complete the survey online. Intrinsically linking the survey with the quarterly England Attractions Monitor (the related online survey providing rapid feedback to the industry on visit trends and attitudes) using a single online platform has undoubtedly continued to increase participation in both this survey and the England Attractions Monitor.

A copy of the questionnaire used can be found in Appendix 2.

BDRC Continental holds the contract for the survey in England and is responsible for the preparation of this report.

It is important to highlight that major individual attractions can have a significant impact upon the proportion of visits within each region and attraction category. Their participation or nonparticipation in the survey year-on-year can result in significant fluctuations in the data within each region and attraction category.

2.3 Population, sample and response rate

7,217 English visitor attractions were invited to take part in the 2010 survey. 1,896 English visitor attractions provided visits figures for the year 2010, an effective response rate of 26%.

Given that the value of this report lies predominantly in the assessment of trends over time, perhaps the more important sample size measure is the number of attractions providing admissions information for both 2010 and 2009. This response rate is now stable - in 2010 there were 1,802 such attractions, similar to the response in 2009 (1,806) and significantly higher than the equivalent number in 2008 (1,684) and 2007 (1,348).

A further 621 attractions (8%) responded but did not take part in the survey as they were either closed, could not provide visit figures for lack of information, they did not consider themselves to meet the definition of an attraction, they did not wish to participate in the survey or were returned as undeliverable questionnaires.

Category	Number of attractions surveyed	Number of attractions that provided data	Effective response rate
Country parks	272	55	20%
Farms	219	56	26%
Gardens	543	109	20%
Historic properties	1,308	474	36%
Leisure/Theme parks	232	28	12%
Museums/Art Galleries	2,026	642	32%
Steam/heritage railways	115	32	28%
Visitor/heritage centres	251	83	33%
Wildlife attractions/zoos	546	85	16%
Workplaces	192	58	30%
Places of worship	502	121	24%
Other	1,011	153	15%
Total	7,217	1,896	26%

Table 2.1 Response rate by attraction category

Response rates within the two attraction categories which account for over half of all English attractions – museums/art galleries (32%) and historic properties (36%) – were above average. Visitor admissions data provided at Head Office level by English Heritage, National Trust and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council have made a significant contribution to these levels of response, particularly for the key larger attractions.

Guide to the tables

Confidentiality

Visit figures for individual attractions do not appear in this report if the attraction operator did not authorise them for publication. Data provided by operators who requested confidentiality is included in the aggregated calculations. 435 attractions requested that their visit figures remain confidential in 2010, a notable increase compared with 380 in 2009, 397 in 2008, 398 in 2007 and 376 in 2006.

Estimates

If operators have stated their visits are estimates in 2010, this is clearly indicated in section 10 with an 'E' following the number of visits.

Admission

Tables in section 10 include the charging status of each visitor attraction. 'F' indicates that admission to the main attraction is free of charge. However, it should be noted that some free attractions may charge for entry to particular parts of the attraction or special exhibitions. Where an attraction charges admission for the main attraction element, the adult admission price is noted (if provided by the attraction in the 2010 survey).

Symbols

In the table, an asterisk is used to indicate a percentage is less than 0.5%. A plus or minus sign indicates whether the value is positive or negative. NA (not available) indicates that the sample base value is too low to allow robust analysis of the data.

Sample Base Values

Please note that throughout the report the base values in the tables may not necessarily sum to the total sample size due to respondents leaving questions unanswered.

3. England visit trends 2009-2010

This chapter analyses trends in the number of visits to English attractions that provided data for both 2009 and 2010. 1,802 English visitor attractions taking part in the survey provided visits figures for both 2009 and 2010.

The 1,802 English visitor attractions that provided visits figures for both years reported an average increase of +3% in 2010. Annual percentage changes by year are presented below:

Year	%
2010	+3%
2009	+5%
2008	+2%
2007	+3%
2006	+3%
2005	-*%
2004	+1%
2003	+2%
2002	+8%

Attractions undoubtedly benefitted from domestic tourism trends in 2009, with domestic overnight stays made by residents of England increasing significantly and spend on trips abroad declining for the first time in over 40 years. 2010 has seen a softening of these tourism trends and an associated slow down in the rate of increase in visits to attractions to similar levels observed between 2006 and 2008.

Commensurate with the slow down in the rate of growth in visitor admissions in 2010, the proportion of attractions reporting an increase in visits also returned to pre-2009 levels (when 64% of attractions reported a rise in visitor admissions). 45% of attractions reported an increase in visits in 2010, similar to that observed in 2008 (46%), 2007 (51%) and 2006 (48%).

The performance of attractions varied by category in 2010. Visits to museums / art galleries (+5%) increased significantly, particularly to those which were free, continuing their very strong performance of recent years. By way of comparison, visits to museums /art galleries increased by +3% in 2009 and +7% back in 2008.

Country parks (+5%), workplaces (+4%) and places of worship (+4%) also outperformed the market overall, the latter building upon increases of +6% in 2009 and +5% in 2008. The strong performance of other historic properties was driven by a single attraction.

However, the market was suppressed by declines in visits to gardens (-6%), farms (-5%), wildlife attractions/zoos (-3%) and visitor/heritage centres (-3%). The generally poor weather experienced during the 2010 peak summer season is likely to have played a strong role in the decrease in visits to these, primarily outdoor, attractions.

Gardens, farms and wildlife attractions / zoos had all reported year-on-year increases in visits in recent years. Indeed, the declines in visits to farms and wildlife attractions / zoos were the first since the Foot and Mouth outbreak in 2001 and the decline in garden visits the first since 2006.

Table 3.2 England visit trends 2009-2010 – by admission type (%)

Visits to free attractions drove the overall increase in admissions in 2010, rising by +6%. This was driven ostensibly by museums and art galleries (+6%), which make up around half of all free attractions, and to a lesser extent, by places of worship (+10%).

Conversely, paid attractions fared less well, reporting a -1% decline in visits. This decline was driven primarily by falls in visits to paid admissions gardens, farms and wildlife attractions / zoos, plus a flat position for leisure / theme parks, historic properties and museums / art galleries.

Table 3.3, overleaf, presents visit trends by free/paid admission within each category type. There are some notable shifts in visits to both free and paid attractions by attraction category type.

3.3 English visit trends 2009-2010 by volume of visits to attractions

Table 3.4 England visit trends 2009-2010 – by volume of visits (%)

Over 200,000	(188)	49	14	37	+4
England	(1,802)	45	11	43	+3

The increase in visits in 2010 was driven almost entirely by the very largest attractions, with over 200,000 visitors recorded per annum. The largest 10% of attractions appear to be currently compensating for the remaining 90%. Many of the large, free national museums / art galleries reported notable increases in visits in 2010. These largest attractions reported a +4% increase in visits, with smaller attractions remaining stable compared with 2009. The very smallest attractions, with fewer than 10,000 visitors per annum continued to perform less well, reporting a -2% decline in 2010.

Table 3.5 England visit trends 2009-2010 – by geographic location (%)

2010 saw the strong return of visits to urban attractions (+6% on 2009), following the successes of rural attractions in 2009. In recent years prior to 2009, urban attractions had tended to deliver the most significant increases in visitor admissions, led by London and museums/art galleries (or both) and 2010 appears to seen a return to this pattern. Over half (52%) of urban attractions reported an increase in visits in 2010 compared to just 38% reporting a decrease.

Visits to rural attractions declined slightly in 2010, by -1%. Back in 2009, rural attractions reported the strongest increase in visits at +7%, many benefitting the positive trends within the tourism market. Visits to coastal attractions were broadly similar to 2009, also falling back slightly following a positive performance in 2009, when visits increased by +3% on 2008.

Table 3.6 England visit trends 2009-2010 – by proportion of overseas visits (%)

As in 2009, reflecting the fact that visits to attractions made by visitors from overseas held up well, visits to those attractions for whom overseas visitors represent over 30% of their admissions also increased strongly – by +7%. The strong performance of attractions in London, particularly the free museums, lies at the heart of this increase in overseas visitors.

3.6 English visit trends 2009-2010 by proportion of child visits

Table 3.7 England visit trends 2009-2010 – by proportion of child visits (%)

Over 30%	(370)	44	12	43	+2
England	(1,802)	45	11	43	+3

There was little difference in visitor admission increases between attractions with more than 30% of visits made by children (+2%) – perhaps described as 'family attractions' - and attractions with fewer than 30% of children (+1%).

4. Visit trends – by origin (2009-2010)

This chapter, introduced for the first time in 2009, analyses trends in the number of visits to English attractions made by those living locally / within day trip distance and those from overseas.

The 808 English visitor attractions that provided an estimate of the proportion of visitors living locally / within day trip distance for both 2009 and 2010 reported an average increase of +2% in the number of these visitors in 2010. Although still a notable increase on 2009, this represents a slow down in the rate of increase in local visitors – the increase reported in 2009 being +8%.

Visits made by overseas visitors increased significantly. The 776 English visitor attractions that provided an estimate of the proportion of visitors from overseas reported an average increase of +6% in 2010. This despite the continued challenging conditions within the inbound holiday market, where visits to the UK for holiday purposes or to visit friends/relatives declined by -1% in 2010.

Table 4.1 Visit trends by origin (2009-2010) – by attraction category (%)

The increase in those living locally / those within day trip distance has been driven by places of worship (+18%), country parks (+7%) and other historic properties (+6%). Local visits were held back by declines in local visitor admissions to farms (-12%), wildlife attractions / zoos (-6%) and gardens (-3%). This would suggest that the overall decline in visits to these three attraction categories in 2010 has largely been driven by decreases in local visitors.

Table 4.2 Visit trends by origin (2009-2010) – by English GOR (%)

The increase in visitors living locally / within day trip distance was driven primarily by those visiting London attractions (+13%) and attractions in the North East (+14%), although visits by local visitors also increased notably among South West (+5%) and East Midlands (+4%) attractions.

The number of overseas visitors increased most strongly among attractions within West Midlands (+19%) and South West (+14%) regions. There was also evidence of strong performance of overseas visitors among London attractions, with overseas visitors increasing by +6% in 2010 compared with just +3% in 2009. However, overseas visits declined significantly among attractions within the East region (-9%).

The increase in local visits to attractions in 2010 was driven by free attractions, reflecting the continued uncertain state of the domestic economy. Indeed, visits by local visitors to paid attractions actually fell by -2% in 2010.

The picture was somewhat healthier within the overseas visitor market, although reflecting the overall market, it was free attractions which led the way (increasing overseas visits by +9%). However, overseas visits to paid attractions also increased in 2010 – by +2%.

Table 4.4 Visit trends by origin 2009-2010 – by volume of visits (%)

The rate of increase in visitors living locally / within day trip distance did not vary significantly in terms of size of attraction. In line with visits overall, local visitors decreased among attractions with annual visits of 10,000 or fewer.

Whereas overseas visits increased more significantly in 2009 among smaller attractions, 2010 has seen a reversal of this pattern, with visits increasing most rapidly among the very largest attractions with over 200,000 visits per annum.

As among visits overall, local visits increased most significantly for urban attractions. Local visits increased by +4% for these attractions compared with a flat picture for each of coastal (+*%) and rural (+1%) attractions.

Urban attractions also fared well within the overseas market in 2010, with overseas visits increasing by +7% among these attractions. Coastal attractions also performed well in this regard, with visit increasing by +9%.

5. English Government Office Region visit trends 09-10

This chapter provides an analysis of trends by English Government Office Region (GOR). It is based on 1,802 attractions that provided visits figures for both 2009 and 2010. The trends in these tables should be treated with caution due to the smaller number of attractions when the data is broken down within region.

Table 5.1 Overall visit trends 2009-2010 – by England GOR (%)

Reflecting its proliferation of large, free national museums, London (+6%) reported the strongest increase in visitor admissions in 2010. Over half (55%) of London attractions still managed to increase their visitor admissions and only 28% reported a decrease, compared with 43% across England as a whole.

The South East (+3%) and North West (+3%) also reported notable increases, although even in these regions the performance of individual sectors varied considerably. The North West perhaps performed particularly well given that data for overnight domestic tourism showed one of the more significant declines in this region.

Overall, the strong increases in visits to attractions in the South East (+10%) and South West (+6%) back in 2009, which were largely assisted by trends in the domestic tourism market, have not continued in 2010. This also reflects some relative movements back away from these regions within the 2010 overnight domestic tourism market. However, visits to attractions in these regions have far from fallen back, instead generally being maintained at similar or slightly better levels to those observed in 2009 – visits to South East attractions increased by +3% and to South West attractions by +1%.

Visits to attractions did not fall significantly in any region, with only the North East (-1%), East Midlands (-1%) and Yorkshire/The Humber (-*%) reporting any declines. Perhaps of most concern is within Yorkshire/The Humber, who reported the highest proportion of attractions with decreasing visitor admissions and the lowest proportion with increasing admissions.

5.2 Visit trends 2009-2010 by attraction category by English GOR

The trends in this table should be treated with caution since these are based on many regions on very small samples of attractions providing visits data in both 2009 and 2010.

Table 5.2 Visit trends 2009-2010 by England GOR – by attraction category (%)

Increases in visits to London attractions were driven by museums / art galleries, whose visits within the region increased by +7%. However, the region's performance was also boosted by the small number of farms (+30%), other historic properties (+53%), visitor / heritage centres (+60%) and workplaces (+44%), which all reported significant increases. Gardens (-12%) were the only category to see a reduction in admissions within London.

Elsewhere, the picture was mixed, with some attraction categories reporting increases and others decreased in admissions. For example, the increase in overall visits within the South East were driven by the very strong performances of museums / art galleries (+27%) and leisure / theme parks (+14%), but even within this region there were five other attraction categories which reported visit admission decreases overall.

However, with around a third of all responding attractions across the country being museums / art galleries, the regional performance tended to reflect the extent to which visits to this category had increased or decreased. The only three regions who reported an overall decline in visitor admissions were also the only three regions which reported declines in visits to museums / art galleries – the North East (-4%), Yorkshire / The Humber (-2%) and East Midlands (-6%).

Country parks – many of which are free – fared well in 2010, with visits overall increasing by +4%. The majority of regions reported visit increases to country parks, although even here, two regions (Yorkshire / The Humber and South West) reported falling admissions.

Visits to the outdoor attractions - farms, gardens and wildlife attractions / zoos – all decreased overall, although even within these categories, some regions bucked the trend. However, perhaps wildlife attractions/ zoos reported the most consistent declines in visitor admissions in 2010, with only one region reporting visit increases.

Places of worship performed well overall, with visits increasing by +4% across England. Indeed, only the East Midlands reported a decline in visits to places of worship.

Visits to free attractions increased all regions, with the exception of the North East (-*%). In several regions, increases to free attractions were highly significant and were responsible for the strong performance of the region overall. In London, visits to free attractions were up by +9% and in the South East, by +19%. Indeed, the regions which increased their visits most significantly were the ones whose free attractions increased their visitor admissions most strongly.

All regions struggled to see increases in visits to paid attractions, with only the North West (+1%), West Midlands (+%) and South West (+%) reporting modest increases. Indeed, East Midlands (-5%), South East (-4%) and London (-2%) all reported notable declines, the latter two regions' positive performance being driven primarily by strong increases in visits to free attractions.

Table 5.4 Visit trends 2009-2010 by English GOR by volume of visits (%)

Across England as a whole, the very largest attractions (over 200,000 visitors per annum) tended to drive the increase in attraction visits. This was the case across most regions and in particular, London (+6%) and the South East (+7%). However, both the East (-2%) and North East (-1%) reported declines in its very largest attractions overall.

Conversely, the very smallest attractions with fewer than 10,000 visitors per annum tended to struggle in 2010, reporting declines of -2% across England as a whole. Again, this was the situation across most regions and in particular, the West Midlands (-9%). However, the smallest attractions in both London (+2%) and East Midlands (+2%) managed to reverse this pattern, reporting small visitor admission gains.

Table 5.5 Visit trends 2009-2010 by England GOR by geographic location (%)

Urban attractions led the way in 2010 in terms of increasing visitor admissions, reporting a +6% increase in visits across England as a whole. Visits to urban attractions increased most significantly in the South East (+23%).

However, visits to urban attractions declined in both the North East (-4%) and Yorkshire / The Humber (-1%), these urban (and often free) attractions being at the root of why visits to attractions overall declined within these regions.

Both coastal and rural attractions were fairly stable in terms of visitor admissions in 2010, although this masked some notable movements within individual regions:

- The North West (+9%) and Yorkshire / The Humber (+5%) saw some strong increases in visits to its coastal attractions;
- The South East (-4%) reported a significant drop in visits to its rural attractions, with some particularly notable declines in visits to farms (-31%).

6. Adult admission price trends 2009-2010

57% of English attractions responding to the survey charged entry to the main attraction in 2010, slightly lower than the proportions observed in recent years. Indeed, there has been a gradual decrease in the proportion of paid attractions taking part in the survey in recent years. In both 2009 and 2008, 59% of attractions were paid admission, in 2007 (61%), 2006 (63%) and 2005 (64%).

Some 582 paid attractions that responded to the survey in both 2009 and 2010 provided admission charges in both years. The average adult admission charge increased by 32p in 2010, an increase of +5% - once again not untypical of the annual admission charge increases reported in recent years (in 2009, admissions charges increased by +4%). Average admission charges for adults across attractions in England increased from £6.40 in 2009 to £6.72 in 2010.

Table 6.1 Adult admission prices 2009-2010 (paid admission attractions) – by GOR (%)

Increases in adult admission charges were similar across all regions except London, whose attractions increased charges by just +2% on average. However, the capital's paid attractions remain the most expensive, at £7.76 per adult, although North West paid attractions are now not too far behind at £7.64 per adult.

The North East's attractions remained the least expensive to enter for adults, at an average of $\pounds 5.63$ in 2010, although the gap is somewhat narrowing, with adult admission charges increasing the most significantly in this region, by +7%.

Attractions with higher visitor admissions continued to report higher average adult admission charges. Whereas the average adult admission charge in 2010 was £4.87 among attractions with 10,000 or fewer visitors, among attractions with over 200,000 visitors average adult admission was £11.55.

As was the case in 2009, increases in average adult admission charges were similar among small, medium and large attractions in 2010.

Adult admission charge increases were also similar across most attraction categories. The small number of workplaces (+10%) and leisure / theme parks (+8%) who provided admissions in both years, reported the highest increases in admission charges. Gardens (+8%) and wildlife attractions / zoos (+7%) also reported increases which were above average.

Museums / art galleries now deliver the lowest average admission charges at £4.51, taking over this position from other historic properties (£4.53). The highest average admission charges were recorded for leisure/theme parks (£17.00) and wildlife attractions/zoos (£8.27).

Each of coastal, rural and urban attractions increased their adult admission charges by similar proportions in 2010. Each of these also reported similar average adult admission charges, although coastal attractions again recorded the highest admission prices in 2010 (\pounds 6.92), slightly higher than both rural (\pounds 6.70) and urban (\pounds 6.81) attractions.

Admission price increases were also similar among attractions which reported over 30% of visits made by children (+6%) and attractions which reported 30% or fewer visits made by children (+5%).

Attractions with over 30% of visits by children recorded higher than average adult admission prices (\pounds 7.47) than those with 30% of fewer child visits (\pounds 6.45) in 2010.

7.1 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010

Attractions were asked to compare their gross revenue between 2009 and 2010 and detail the overall percentage change. It should be noted that the average changes below are calculated from percentage changes reported per attraction, not changes in actual revenue figures.

1,486 visitor attractions provided information on their gross revenue trend in the 2010 survey.

In line with the more modest increases in visitor admissions in 2010, gross revenues were also reported to have increased by a smaller average percentage of +5% in 2010, compared with +8% in 2009. This level increase observed in 2010 was similar the figures reported in 2008 and 2007 (both +5%).

Perhaps most noteworthy though is that the proportion of attractions reporting a decline in gross revenue in 2010 rose sharply to 26% from just 15% in 2009. This proportion was the same as that observed in 2008 and is the joint highest proportion of any of the past seven years – 2007 (19%), 2006 (20%), 2005 (21%) and 2004 (22%). Conversely, only a third (35%) reported an increase compared with 53% last year, 38% in 2008 and 47% in each of the previous two years.

Table 7.1 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by English GOR (%)

Despite visitor admissions only increasing by a modest +1% in the South West and admission charges increasing by slightly less than the national average, gross revenue increased by +10% overall. 38% of South West attractions saw their gross revenue increase, the joint highest proportion of all regions. South East (+7%) and North East (+7%) attractions also saw their gross revenues increase by above the national average.

Conversely, attractions in the West Midlands (+2%) and East (+2%) regions each saw gross revenues increase by below the national average.

London attractions, whose visitor admissions increased most significantly, reported only average increases in gross revenues, the large free national museums perhaps finding it easier to generate increased visits than increased gross revenue.

Table 7.2 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by attraction category (%)

Workplaces (+12%) reported the strongest increases in gross revenue and also by far the greatest proportion of attractions reporting an increase in gross revenue (61%). This reflects the above average increase in visitor admissions and also the significantly above average increase in adult admission charges.

Country parks also reported strong increases in gross revenue, with this also reflecting above average increases in visitor admissions. Country parks reported the lowest proportion of its attractions with a decrease in gross revenue, at just 11% compared with 26% across England as a whole.

Museums / art galleries (+6%) also reported increases in gross revenue slightly above the national average, reflecting the strong performance of the category in terms of visitor admissions in 2010. Only 19% of museums / art galleries reported a decrease in gross revenue for the year.

Although free attractions were responsible for driving the increase in visitor admissions in 2010, it is paid attractions that contribute most strongly towards increasing gross revenue.

Gross revenue among paid attractions increased by +6% and just 4% among free attractions, again evidence that perhaps free attractions find it more difficult to increase gross revenue than visits. Indeed, 40% of paid attractions managed to increase their gross revenue in 2010 compared with just 27% of free attractions.

Note: percentages read across

Unlike visitors admissions (where the very largest categories of attractions experienced the strongest rate of growth and the very smallest the slowest growth rate), gross revenues increased at similar rates regardless of attraction size.

However, as in 2009, these figures mask the trend which indicates that the largest attractions are more likely to report an increase in gross revenue. 45% of attractions with more than 200,000 visitors per annum reported an increase in gross revenue in 2010, compared with 35% of attractions overall. The largest attractions were also much less likely to report declines than the smaller attractions. The implication is that the majority of the largest attractions, whilst perhaps generating only modest increases in gross revenue, were at least likely to have increased their revenue. However, the performance of smaller attractions was somewhat more volatile – some generating large increases and some declines in gross revenue.

In line with the strong increase in visitor admissions to urban attractions, these attractions also reported the highest average increase in gross revenues (+8%). Just 18% of urban attractions reported a decrease in gross revenue in 2010 compared with 28% of coastal and 30% of rural attractions.

However, gross revenues to both coastal (+5%) and rural attractions (+4%) also increased.

Table 7.6 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by proportion of overseas visits (%)

Note: percentages read across

Attractions with over 30% of their visits generated by overseas visitors reported a stronger average increase in gross revenues (+8%) than attractions generating 30% or fewer overseas visitors (+5%). This reflects the strong performance of attractions at increasingly attracting overseas visitors in 2010, despite declines in overseas holiday visits to the UK. Almost half (47%) of attractions with over 30% of visitors from overseas saw their gross revenues increase compared with just 34% of attractions with fewer than 30% of its visitors from overseas.

Table 7.7 Gross revenue trend 2009-2010 – by proportion of child visits (%)

Increases in gross revenue to 'family' attractions with over 30% of its visits accounted for by children were not significantly different to those attractions with 30% or fewer child visitors in 2010. Attractions with over 30% of visitors being children saw gross revenues rise by an average of +3% compared with +6% for attractions with 30% or less of their visitors being children. This reflects the similarity of increases in both visitor admissions and adult admission charges.

7.2 Marketing expenditure trend 2009-2010

This section examines the movement in marketing spend at attractions between 2009 and 2010. Attractions were asked to indicate whether spend had increased, decreased or remained similar compared with 2098. 1,477 attractions answered this question. Actual expenditure was not sought.

Little had changed until 2010 in terms of the proportions of attractions increasing or decreasing their marketing expenditure. However, 2010 has seen a slight dip in the proportion of attractions reporting an increase in expenditure and an increase in the proportion reporting a decrease. A sign of tighter economic times perhaps? 20% of attractions indicated an increase in marketing spend in 2010 and 14% a decrease. Comparisons with the past five years:

- 2009 (21% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2008 (21% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2007 (22% recorded an increase and 12% a decrease)
- 2006 (24% recorded an increase and 11% a decrease)
- 2005 (25% recorded an increase and 10% a decrease)

Table 7.8 Movement in spend on marketing – by attraction category 2009-2010 (%)

Leisure/theme parks (29%) were most likely to report decreases in marketing expenditure, with a notable proportion of wildlife attractions/zoos (20%) also cutting back. Despite declines in visitor admissions, farms (32%) and gardens (31%) were more likely to have increased their marketing expenditure in 2010.

Steam / heritage railways were the most likely of all attractions categories to have increased their marketing expenditure, with 41% claiming to have increased this spend since 2009.

Table 7.9 Movement in spend on marketing – by English GOR 2009-2010 (%)

Despite the increase in visitor admissions, attractions in London were most likely to have reduced their marketing expenditure – 20% claiming that this was reduced in 2010. Unlike in the previous two years when the proportion of attractions in London increasing expenditure was above average, attractions in this region were also least likely to have increased marketing expenditure in 2010 (only 12% did so).

Conversely, attractions within the South East region were most likely to have increased marketing spend, with 25% of attractions claiming to have done so in 2010.

As reported in recent years, paid attractions (22%) continued to be more likely to increase their marketing expenditure than free attractions (19%). These were the same proportions as reported in 2009, although the gap had narrowed in 2009 compared with the years immediately prior to this (25% of paid attractions in 2008 versus 17% of free attractions, for example).

Table 7.11 Movement in spend on marketing – by volume of visits 2009-2010 (%)

Changes to marketing spend among attractions with over 100,000 visits per annum tended to be higher, 29% of attractions with 100,001-200,000 and 24% of attractions with over 200,000 visitors per annum reporting an increase in spend compared with 20% of attractions as a whole.

However, these very largest attractions were also the most likely to report a decrease in marketing spend, indicating perhaps greater year-on-year changes to approaches to marketing within these very largest attractions.

8. Provision of services trends 2009-2010

Attractions taking part in the 2010 survey were asked about the services that they offered across five dimensions:

- Online;
- Facilities;
- Interpretation;
- Events;
- Membership scheme.

1,447 attractions responded to this question, with provision of services ranging from 83% of attractions across England that provided a website to just 15% who provide costumed interpretation. Table 8.1 below illustrates how this provision has changed compared with attractions taking part in the 2009 survey.

Table 8.1Provision of services trends 2009-2010 (%)

Events

Provision of services grew significantly across several categories in 2010, most notably the online services and provision of public events. 56% of attractions delivered public events in 2010 compared with just 49% in 2009. Availability of online booking facilities was perhaps the most striking increase, with 18% providing this in 2010 compared with only 13% in 2009.

Only provision of cafes / restaurants and corporate events did not increase in 2010, reflecting the continued suppressed business tourism market.

As Table 8.1 overleaf illustrates, provision of services varied significantly by attraction category.

Provision of websites was slightly up across many categories in 2010, but perhaps most significantly among workplaces (up from 57% in 2009 to 71% in 2010) and places of worship (67% to 77%).

Provision of online ticket booking facilities, although still fairly low overall, saw strong increases in provision among historic attractions - historic houses / castles (16% in 2009 to 28% in 2010) and other historic properties (7% to 19%). Farms (3% in 2009 to 15% in 2010) and places of worship (5% to 14%) also saw notable increases in provision of online booking. Leisure / theme parks (43%) and steam / heritage railways (42%) continue to lead the way in terms of online booking provision.

The quarterly England Attractions Monitor has established the growing importance of public events for England's attractions and this was again reaffirmed by findings from this survey, with over half (56%) offering public events in 2010, up by +7% on the previous year. Public event provision at country parks was already high, but increased further in 2010 to 84% of attractions compared with 69% in 2009. Other attraction categories experiencing strong increases in public event provision in 2010 were:

- Farms (30% in 2009 to 52% in 2010);
- Gardens (46% to 65%);
- Steam / heritage railways (51% to 61%);
- Places of worship (47% to 68%).

The England Attractions Monitor has also highlighted the growing importance of member schemes and this survey offers further evidence of this growth, with provision increasing by +3% in 2010. Provision increased among most attraction categories, with wildlife attractions / zoos (79%), farms (75%) and steam / heritage railways (74%) continuing to be the most likely to offer.

Public venue hire also increased in terms of provision in 2010, with 37% of all attractions now offering. Historic houses / castles (59%) ands places of worship (53%) were the most likely to offer this facility.

In terms of facilities, there were some attractions categories that were well ahead of the curve in terms of providing retail shops and cafés/restaurants:

- Workplaces (91%) were most likely to offer a retail shop, with visitor / heritage centres (87%), steam / heritage railways (87%) and museums / art galleries (80%) not far behind;
- Steam / heritage railways (81%) were also highly likely to provide a café / restaurant, as were farms (73%) and gardens (71%).

The heritage sector continued to lead the way in costumed interpretation, with historic houses/castles (27%) much more likely than any other attraction category to offer this service. Provision of costumed interpretation increased most significantly in 2010 for museums / art galleries (13% in 2009, 19% in 2010), steam / heritage railways (11% to 16%) and wildlife attractions / zoos (6% to 11%).

Whilst provision of corporate events did not increase in 2010, there were some increases in provision among country parks (20% in 2009 to 50% in 2010), steam / heritage railways (37% to 48%) and workplaces (17% to 25%).

Table 8.3 Provision of services 2010 by volume of visits (%)

Provision of certain services also varied significantly by size of attraction. In terms of online services, website provision was high. Even the very smallest attractions with fewer than 10,000 visitors per annum saw provision increase from 66% in 2009 to 74% in 2010). Nevertheless, a quarter third (26%) of these attractions still did not offer a website in 2010.

Online booking facilities remained the domain of only the very largest attractions. 50% of those with over 200,000 visitors (up significantly from 41% in 2009) and 31% of those with 100,001-200,000 visitors offered online booking, with provision tailing off considerably among attractions smaller than this. However, provision is growing even among smaller attractions.

Provision of retail shop and café/restaurant was generally high among attractions with over 20,000 visitors, but began to reduce significantly among attractions with 10,001-20,000 visitors and dramatically among those with fewer than 10,000 visitors.

Within costumed interpretation, growth was driven by the very largest attractions, for whom provision increased from 18% in 2009 to 23% in 2010. Provision was not the sole domain of the larger attractions however, with similar proportions of attractions within the 20,001-100,000 visits per annum band providing costumed interpretation as the 100,001 or more band.

The strong increase in public event provision in 2010 was driven by the smaller attraction categories, with the strongest increase in provision among the 50,001-100,000 visits per annum category (increasing from 49% in 2009 to 66% in 2010). There were also notable increases within the smaller attraction categories.

Corporate event provision declined steadily as attraction size reduced, with the greatest step change in provision coming once attractions reached the 100,000 or more visitor mark. Public venue hire also decreased as attractions became smaller, although the proportion offering only tailed off significantly once annual visit volume fell below 10,000 visitors. Indeed, the increase in provision was driven by attractions within the 20,001-200,000 visits categories.

Provision of member schemes was also significant among attractions with over 10,000 visitors per annum – over half offering among these attractions. Although provision tails off among the very smallest attractions, this did increase, from 32% in 2009 to 36% in 2010.

Table 8.4 Provision of services 2010 by admission type (%)

Provision of the majority of services was significantly more likely to be present among attractions with paid admission than free attractions. Only public events were as likely to be provided by free attractions as those with paid admission.

The difference is perhaps most striking for provision of member schemes, where two-thirds (64%) of paid admission attractions offered this facility, but only a third (33%) of free attractions did so. However, provision among free attractions did increase from 27% in 2009 to 33% in 2010.

The increase in public venue hire in 2010 was also driven by free attractions, with provision increasing from 25% in 2009 to 30% in 2010.

Table 8.5 Provision of services 2010 by proportion of child visits (%)

In terms of provision of online and retail / catering, provision was significantly more likely among 'family' attractions, where the proportion of child visits is in excess of 30%. Provision of costumed interpretation was also notably higher.

However, for other services, provision tends to be similar regardless of the proportion of child visits. The increase in public venue hire in 2010 was driven by the 'non-family' attractions with 30% or fewer child visits – up from 33% in 2009 to 38% in 2010.

As table 8.6 overleaf illustrates, many services were more likely to be provided by attractions where overseas visitors were in excess of 30%, reflecting the fact that these also tended to be the larger attractions.

However, retail shops and cafes/restaurants were no more likely to be provided by attractions with fewer than 30% of its visits accounted for by overseas visitors than those with more than 30% from overseas.

Member schemes were also far less likely to be offered by attractions with over 30% of its visits accounted for by overseas visitors (36%) than those where overseas visitors accounted for less than 30% of its visits (51%).

9. Trends in the number of visits to England attractions 1989-2010

9.1 Trends in number of visits to visitor attractions 1989-2010

As responding attractions tend to vary between years, operators are asked in each survey year to provide the number of visits for both the survey year and the previous year. This enables the trend between any two years to be calculated based on the same attractions.

Table 9.1 shows the indexed trend based on the visits (see Table 9.3) given by responding attractions. Because the number of responding attractions differs each year (see Table 9.2), the percentage change between any two years is applied each time to the previous year's index to take account of the varying sample sizes each year.

Table 9.3 shows the number of visits to responding attractions. It does not include estimates of non-responding attractions. Therefore these figures do not represent the total market.

10. Visits to individual attractions

This section of the report lists visits figures for 2010 by responding attractions, together with topline trends. Comparative figures for 2009, 2008, 2007 and 2006 are also shown. It should be noted that this report lists individual visits figures for attractions which authorised publication only. Country parks have been excluded from the list of major paid and free attractions, as counting methods are liable to considerable variation.

There are three sections:

- Major attractions in England by category type
- Major attractions by Government Office Region (GOR)
- Comprehensive alphabetical list of all attractions by category type within GOR

Visits are listed under twelve broad attraction categories, detailed overleaf.

The report also contains an alphabetical index of attractions which indicates the category, GOR, county and district in which an attraction can be found.

Table 10.1 Attraction categories

Visits Figures

These are recorded in the columns '2006', '2007', '2008', '2009' and '2010'. Data may not have been obtained for years 2006, 2007, 2008 or 2009. In this case

• 'DK' indicates that data were not provided

Estimates

Where visits are estimated by attractions in 2010, these are shown as an 'E' following the visits figures.

Percentage Change

Only the percentage change 2010/2009 is presented in the tables. This is recorded in the column entitled '% 09/10'. 'n/a' means that this is not applicable e.g. data was not provided/not available for both years.

Admission Charge

The standard adult admission charge for the main attraction in high season is recorded in the column entitled 'Entry'. 'F' indicates admission to the main attraction is free of charge
